

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that every entry, no matter how small, should be recorded to ensure the integrity of the financial statements. This includes not only sales and purchases but also expenses, income, and any other financial activity.

The second part of the document provides a detailed breakdown of the accounting process. It starts with the identification of the accounting cycle, which consists of eight steps: identifying the accounting cycle, analyzing and journalizing the transactions, posting to the ledger, preparing a trial balance, adjusting the accounts, preparing financial statements, and closing the books. Each step is explained in detail, with examples and practical advice.

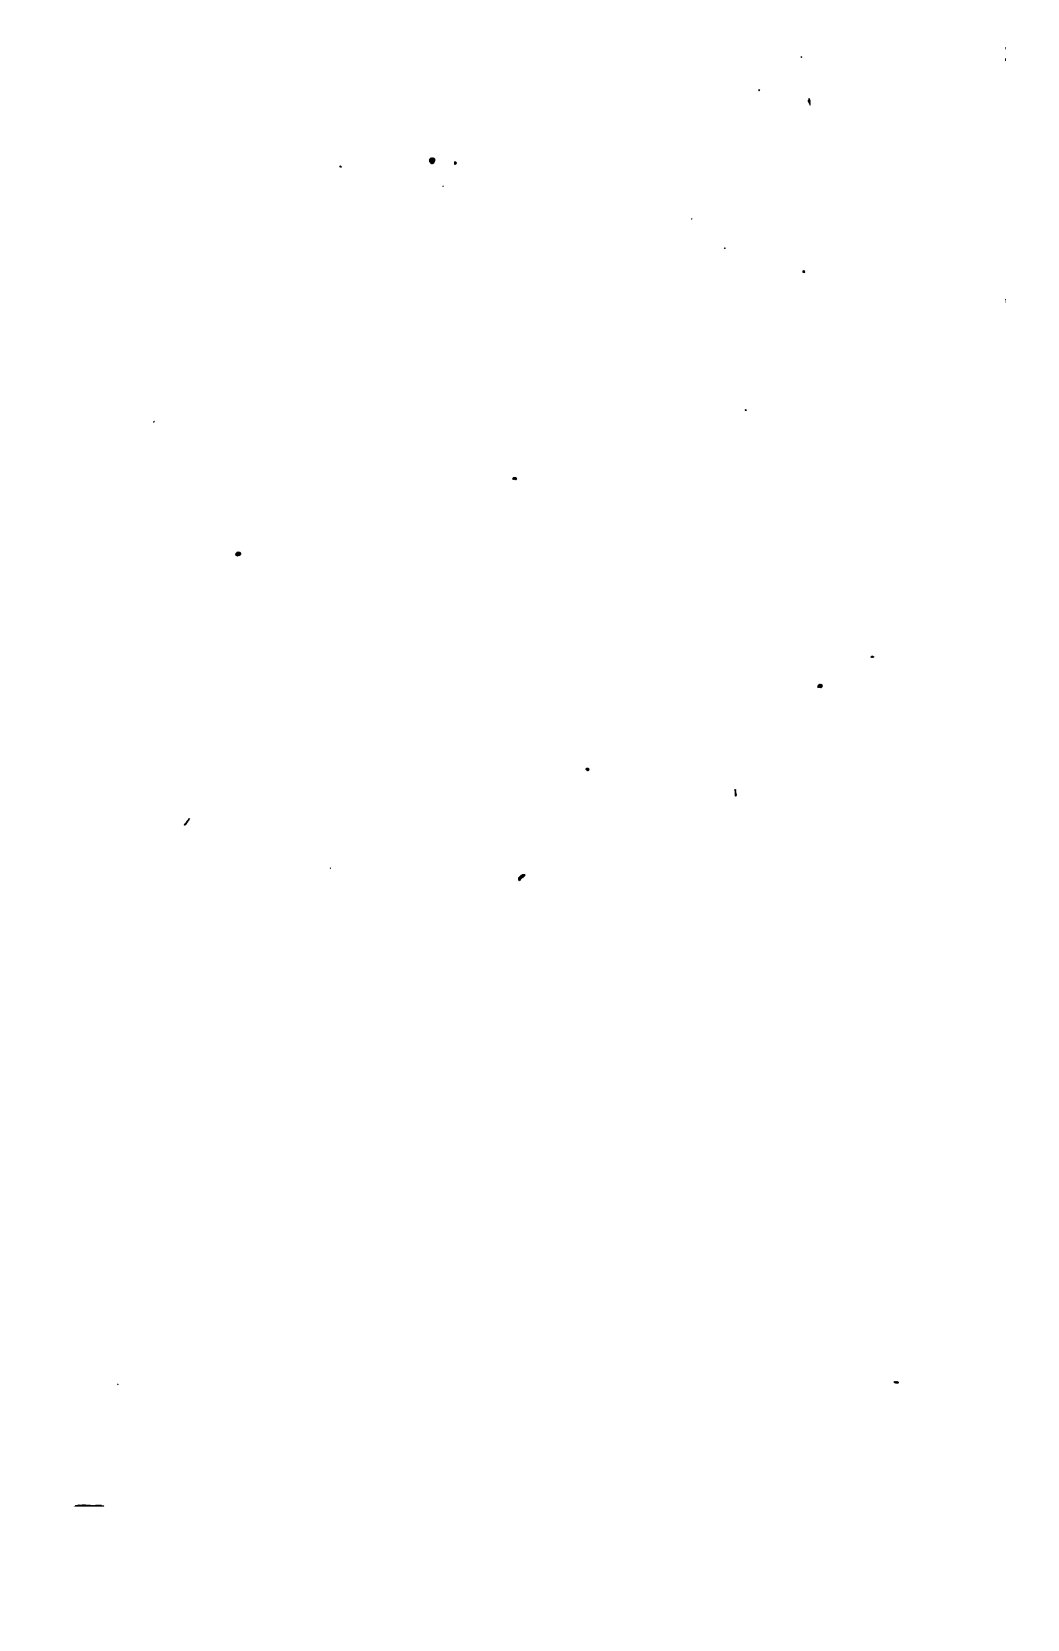

The third part of the document focuses on the preparation of financial statements. It covers the balance sheet, the income statement, and the statement of cash flows. It explains how to calculate net income, determine the ending balance of each account, and present the information in a clear and concise manner.

The fourth part of the document discusses the importance of internal controls. It explains how to design and implement controls to prevent errors and fraud, and how to monitor and evaluate the effectiveness of these controls.

The fifth part of the document provides a summary of the key concepts and principles of accounting. It reviews the accounting cycle, the accounting equation, and the relationship between the accounting cycle and the financial statements.

BIENNIAL MESSAGE

OF

JOHN M. HAMILTON,

GOVERNOR OF ILLINOIS,

TO THE

THIRTY-FOURTH GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

JANUARY 30, 1885.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.:
H. W. BOKKER, STATE PRINTER AND BINDER,
1885.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives of the Thirty-fourth General Assembly:

With cordial greeting to you on your coming together as the representatives of the people of Illinois, I have the honor to submit to you, as required by the Constitution, the biennial message of the Governor.

In writing this message I have endeavored to lay before you a comprehensive business view of the transactions of the State Government during the two years last passed, the present condition of affairs, and the estimates of expenditures for the next two years, as accurately as can be ascertained.

I came into the Executive office February 6, 1883. Since that time the people of the State have been peaceful and prosperous, with but few exceptions.

FINANCIAL AFFAIRS.

A statement of the financial condition of the State Government must commence with the fiscal year, beginning with October 1, 1882, the time to which the last biennial message submitted by my predecessor brought the statement, and end with the end of the fiscal year, October 1, 1884.

GENERAL REVENUE FUND.

On hand October 1, 1882.....	$2,977,412 95
Received to October 1, 1884.....	4,293,789 87
Total	$7,271,202 82
Disbursements to October 1, 1884.....	4,143,636 15
Balance on hand	$3,127,566 67

STATE SCHOOL FUND.

Balance on hand October 1, 1882.....	$267,014 63
Received to October 1, 1884.....	2,052,430 11
Total	$2,319,444 74
Disbursements.....	2,133,224 13
Balance	$186,220 61

MILITARY FUND.

On hand October 1, 1882.....	$45,556 68
Received to October 1, 1884.....	151,845 07
Total.....	$177,451 75
Disbursements.....	177,451 75

BALANCE IN TREASURY OCTOBER 1, 1884.

General revenue fund.....	$3,127,566 66
State school fund.....	186,220 61
State military fund.....
Total.....	$3,313,787 27

This balance in the State Treasury, erroneously supposed by some people to be a useless surplus, is accounted for as follows:

Balance on hand.....	$3,313,787 27
Deduct State school fund already appropriated.....	186,220 61
Balance.....	$3,127,566 66
Deduct, also, appropriations to July 1, 1885, for Executive and Judicial Department, already appropriated.....	$603,249 34
Balance of appropriation to charitable, educational, penal and reformatory institutions.....	1,186,835 97
Balance of miscellaneous appropriations.....	256,999 08
Expenses of Illinois National Guard.....	43,554 54
Completion of State House, already appropriated.....	200,000 00
Balance in Treasury unappropriated.....	$889,926 73

Against the last-named sum must also be drawn all such appropriations as may be made by the 34th General Assembly in emergency bills for special purposes. That amount, of course, can not be foretold. To the balance left in the Treasury July 1, 1885, will be added $1,500,000 expected to reach the Treasury from new taxes by that period, from which total sum the entire appropriations made by the General Assembly for the next following fiscal year must be paid. It is reasonable to suppose that such new appropriations will almost, if not quite, reach the above total amount, and therefore no large or unnecessary surplus remains in the Treasury.

I am also directed by the Constitution to submit to you estimates of the amount of money required to be raised by taxation for all purposes for the next two years:

My estimate is as follows:

Legislative Department.....	$239,500 00
Executive Department, including all the Executive Bureaus, salaries and expenses.....	477,716 29
Judicial Department, salaries of Judges, State's Attorneys, and expenses.....	578,130 00
Conveying convicts to penitentiary.....	50,000 00
Conveying convicts to reform school.....	8,000 00
Arresting fugitives from justice.....	35,000 00
Public printing, binding, and printing paper and stationery for General Assembly and Executive Departments.....	80,000 00
State House, completion of.....	$31,713 00
Illinois National Guard.....	300,000 00
Northern Penitentiary—
Repairs and extra costs.....	11,000 00
Contingent fund.....	50,000 00
Southern Penitentiary—
Orinary subsistence and expenses.....	175,000 00
New buildings.....	25,000 00

Southern Normal University—
Ordinary expenses.....	$23,000 00
For new buildings, heating, light and furniture.....	172,500 00
Illinois State Normal University—
For current expenses, including one-half interest on College and Seminary fund.....	52,937 12
For building out-houses.....	2,000 00
Illinois Industrial University—
For ordinary expenses and salaries.....	50,000 00
For ordinary expenses and maintenance of inmates of four State Hospitals for the Insane, the Deaf and Dumb, Blind, and Feeble-Minded Asylums, the Soldiers' Orphans' Home, the Charitable Eye and Ear Infirmary, and the State Reform School.....	1,740,000 00
Contingent appropriation for the Illinois and Michigan Canal.....	40,000 00
For State school purposes—one million dollars per annum.....	2,000,000 00
Total.....	$6,461,546 41

The above does not include any estimate for the extra appropriations usually made to the charitable institutions for new buildings, furniture, improvements, etc., for the reason that I have no definite information on the subject, and the amount of such appropriations can only be conjectured. If the Legislature follows the example of several preceding Legislatures, appropriations for such purpose would probably amount to $500,000; but, in my judgment, no more than $300,000 will be needed.

The estimate for the next two years is increased, it will be observed, by these items materially:

1. The estimate contemplates the care of 1,500 more inmates of our charitable institutions than we have ever had before, chiefly owing to the increase of the capacity in the insane hospitals, as shown hereinafter.
2. The estimate is increased by $172,500 for rebuilding the Southern Normal University.
3. The appropriation recommended for the Illinois National Guard is increased $150,000.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD FUND.

During my term of office the report made to me by the Illinois Central Railroad Company, semi-annually, of 7 per cent. of the gross earnings which that company is required by law to pay into the State treasury, have been as follows:

For six months ending April 30, 1883.....	$182,104 80
For six months ending October 31, 1883.....	206,638 39
For six months ending April 30, 1884.....	172,070 42
For six months ending October 31, 1884.....	184,609 21

The last two reports have not come up to my expectations of one year ago of what they would be, but they show a corresponding decrease with other great railroads during the same period, resulting from commercial causes. In February, 1883, I attended an important meeting of the Illinois Central Board in New York City, and made thorough examination of their manner of doing business, with satisfactory results. In the month of October, 1884, I employed a railroad expert of my own selection, also a practical railroad accountant, and sent them to Chicago to examine the books of account of the Illinois Central Railroad with reference to the claims of the State, and the manner of ascertaining the same. After investigation, they reported to me in writing that the rules under which the divisions of earnings between the main line on which the State derives its 7 per cent. of gross earnings, and the branches and extensions, were just and equitable. They also reported that the rule of the company dividing its earnings with branches and extensions, not included in the seven per cent. original line, have been made to conform to the suggestions of the Finance Committee of the House of Representatives of the Thirty-third General Assembly. With these sources of information I sincerely believe that the management of the Illinois Central Railroad is efficient, and that the interest of the State in its earnings are honestly and fully protected and accounted for.

STATE BONDED DEBT.

There is a remnant of the old State bonded indebtedness still outstanding, which has long since been called in by proclamation of the Governor, and upon all of which interest has ceased since January 1st, 1879.

It is as follows:

New Internal Improvement Stock.....	$4,000 00
New Internal Improvement Int. Stock payable after 1877.....	4,000 00
1 Refunded Stock Bond, payable after 1877.....	1,000 00
1 Old Internal Improvement Bond.....	1,000 00
13 Canal Bonds.....	13,000 00
Total.....	$23,000 00

It is supposed that most of these bonds have been lost or destroyed. The Legislature has usually appropriated a sum sufficient to take them up if presented, ever since they were called in. My predecessor in office advised the 33d General Assembly that it would be no longer necessary to so appropriate, under the belief, no doubt, that no more of these bonds would be presented. Since the adjournment of that General Assembly, one of these old bonds has been presented for payment. It is a bond for $500 of Class "New Internal Improvement Int. Stock, payable after 1877," and with the interest on it from July 1st, 1857, to January 1st, 1879, now amounts to $1,145.00. A sum of money should again be appropriated sufficient to pay this bond.

ASSESSMENT OF TAXES FOR STATE PURPOSES.

I desire to call the attention of this General Assembly to what I consider a growing evil arising out of our State revenue laws. That is the varying and gradual decreasing amount of value of property in the State, for taxable purposes. In 1874 the amount of taxable property in the State as returned by the State Board of Equalization was $1,194,456,451. This sum gradually decreased from year to year until 1879, when it amounted to $784,623,550. It then began to increase yearly until in 1883 it amounted to $817,904,721, while in 1884 it again fell off to $809,169,303. In levying the assessments in 1883 of taxes for State purposes, the State officers charged with that duty found it necessary to levy only 32 cents on the $100 of taxation for State purposes, to raise the amount directed by the Legislature. But when we came to make the same levy to raise the same taxes in the year 1834, we found we had $8,734,918 less of taxable property on which to levy, therefore, we were compelled this year to levy 35 cents on the $100 in order to meet the same appropriation. This vacillation and uncertainty is attributable to a fault in our revenue laws. It seems that the township and county assessors, and the members of the State Board of Equalization, have grown into a practice of constantly vieing with each other in their efforts to reduce the taxable values of property in their several localities. No one will deny but that the total cash value of all classes of property in this State is now much greater than it was in 1874 and in 1883, and yet, we are forced to tax on a value this year of $385,286,648 less than in 1874, and $8,734,918 less than one year ago. This constant change and reduction of values must necessarily work an injury to those who perchance have their property in such shape as that it can be taxed for something near its real value, as against others whose property cannot be so readily valued. It also shows to the great disadvantage of the State, and misrepresents its taxation compared with real values, in comparison with other States of the Union whose revenue laws compel the more equitable and real return of the taxable value of property. I therefore call the especial attention of the Legislature to this evil, and ask that such remedies may be applied by legislation as the case demands.

EDUCATIONAL.

Under the able supervision of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, Hon. Henry Raab, the school system of the State has shown very satisfactory progress. The increase over former years of daily attendance of children in proportion to total enrollment, is very large, as is also the increase of average daily attendance. The report of the School Superintendent shows marked increase of attendance in high and graded schools, while the attendance in ungraded schools has greatly decreased. His report also shows that in two years the average wages of men teaching has increased from $46.86 per month to $51.81, and of women from $37.76 to $40.44.

The amount spent for school houses has increased from $770,000 to $1,100,000 and the total expenditures by school districts from $8,000,000 to $9,400,000.

From these facts and statistics the State Superintendent ably argues—and in his argument I fully concur—that there is a public demand for the maintenance, in good shape, of the State Normal schools we now have, if not for additional ones. He shows that over 2,000 students of these Normal schools are now teaching in this State, with marked improvement in the work of the public schools.

I also concur with him in recommending that the school law be amended so as to compel the personal visitation and supervision of all the public schools in a county by the County Superintendent. The country district schools are entitled to improvement and supervision as well as those of the town or city.

In regard to the Normal schools, they are both doing a noble work that the State should be proud of. The State Normal school at Normal should be more generously supported by the State than it has been heretofore, in order that financial embarrassment hindering and cramping thorough work may be avoided.

The Southern Illinois Normal University at Carbondale has had a peculiar and sad experience since the last Legislature adjourned. Under an able and devoted corps of teachers it rapidly developed into the source of power in public education in Southern Illinois. It is, in fact, the light of Egypt. On the 26th day of November, 1884, its fine and only building was totally destroyed by fire with the exception of foundation and part of the walls, which can, in re-building, still be utilized. It would be supposed that such a sudden calamity would paralyze the life of such a young institution as this. But not so. By the prompt and heroic action of the faculty and students much of the furniture, apparatus and library was saved. The generous citizens of Carbondale at once threw open halls, offices and other accommodations, and the school went right on, most of the students devotedly remaining. The citizens of Carbondale promptly raised a subscription fund of $6,000 with which a temporary wooden one-story structure was built on the Normal grounds in a very short time for the use of the school. In this structure, not much better than barracks of upright boards, the school has been run for over a year. During this time the total attendance at the school has actually increased. The trustees and faculty have succeeded in running it within the appropriation made by the last General Assembly for its support. The school is now doing splendid work under such adverse circumstances. The edifice for the school should be rebuilt without delay, because: 1st. The necessities of public and popular education in the State demand it. 2nd. It would be a disgrace to the State not to promptly rebuild it under such circumstances. 3rd. Because the section of country in which it is located is entitled to its benefits. 4th. The city of Carbondale contributed about $125,000 for the location of the University at that place, with the implied understanding at least, with the State, that it should be maintained perpetually.

I therefore most earnestly recommend that from $150,000 to $200,000 or whatever sum may be found necessary, be promptly appropriated to restore the building and equipments of the Southern Normal University. At the time of its destruction I was warmly importuned by many prominent citizens of Southern Illinois to call the Legislature together in special session to make the necessary appropriation to restore it. But I deemed that an unwise and expensive course, and refused. I have left the matter until this regular meeting of the General Assembly, and hope it will do its plain duty in the case.

The Illinois Industrial University at Champaign has also been doing good work, as shown by the report. It should be encouraged and properly supported. During my administration, by action of the Board of Trustees, in which I, being present, fully concurred, the Nebraska lands belonging to the University were offered for sale at fixed minimum prices. I am informed that many very good sales have been effected, the amount of which I am not able to state. It will be fully shown in the financial reports of the University. The lands were a continual yearly expense by way of taxes, and in my judgment, were properly sold when good prices could be obtained. The finances and interests of this University should be closely guarded.

CHARITABLE INSTITUTIONS.

The policy of this State through its Legislature has been for many years to make liberal appropriations and expenditures for the care of persons who are the objects of public charity, including the insane, idiotic, blind, deaf and dumb, and soldiers' orphans. A vast amount of money is annually appropriated from the public treasury for the maintenance of these charitable institutions. Large as the sum may seem, however, the necessity for those liberal expenditures may be readily seen by a glance at the facts and figures.

From the tenth U. S. census, June 1st, 1880, it appears that in Illinois there were at that time insane, 5,134; idiots, 4,170; blind, 2,615; deaf and dumb, 2,202; in all 14,121, not including the inmates of private charitable institutions. That number has probably increased since then in about the proportion of increase of the population of the State. Many of them are now taken care of in State institutions, others are in county poor houses, or are a constant charge and burden on friends and relatives. It has been demonstrated beyond question, that the cheapest and best way of taking care of these unfortunates is in State institutions aggregating and accommodating large numbers, under one system of care and management. This reasoning is the justification of the large appropriations and extensive plans of charitable institutions embraced in the State policy. In pursuance of this policy, the last Legislature appropriated $400,000 for the Kankakee Insane Hospital to add new buildings and increase its capacity for number and care of patients. The work has been undertaken and successfully carried on by the cordial co-operation of the Trustees of that hospital and the State Board of Charities, with the Executive. The plan comprehends the erection of eighteen additional detached buildings. Five of them are already complete and filled with patients. The contract for three additional buildings was let under plans and specifications at such favorable terms that when the buildings are complete it is believed that it will be the cheapest hospital for the insane ever erected in the United States. The whole expense of the hospital under the present plan and contract, of grounds, and buildings all of stone, including fireproof main buildings, water works, gas works, sewerage etc., will be only $559.55 per patient. The present plan, when completed, will give additional capacity to the hospital for 1,000 patients. The work is rapidly progressing and is being paid for from the appropriations as fast as it is properly done according to contract.

In the same line of policy the last Legislature appropriated $135,000 for the extension of the buildings and capacity of the Jacksonville Insane Hospital. The design of this enlargement has been carried out by the erection of a detached building to accommodate 300 patients. The building is already under roof and $60,951.33 has been drawn from the appropriation of $135,000 to pay for work done, while $74,048.67 of the appropriation still remains in the treasury undrawn. When the Kankakee and Jacksonville extensions are finished, it is estimated by the State Board of Charities that there will be sufficient capacity in our insane hospitals in the aggregate to relieve our county poorhouses of all their insane, a result much to be desired.

I am informed by the State Board of Charities that the Soldiers' Orphans' Home and State Reform School will both need special legislative attention at this session in order to properly care for them and put them on good footing.

The Northern and Southern Insane Hospitals, the Deaf and Dumb, the Blind and the Idiotic Asylums are all in healthy, well-ordered condition, and should receive the usual necessary appropriations for their maintenance. This charitable work cannot be too strongly commended to the careful consideration of the Legislature.

PENITENTIARIES.

It is with great pleasure that I am able to report that the Northern Penitentiary at Joliet is self-supporting so far as ordinary expenses are concerned. The $50,000 appropriated by the last General Assembly as a contingent fund, has not been drawn upon at all. This result has been produced by the favorable position and opportunities of the penitentiary for securing good contracts for the work of the prisoners. Many of the contracts for the work of prisoners expired during the last few months, and the new letting of contracts proved very favorable to the State. This penitentiary is being run on very successful business principles, and it is believed will continue to be self-supporting, so far as ordinary expenses are concerned, under the present laws and principles. The contingent fund of $50,000, to be used in cases of emergency, should be again appropriated. The duration of the favorable and self-supporting condition necessarily depends upon the condition of business affairs, so far as they may affect future lettings of the labor of prisoners.

The recommendation of the Warden for an appropriation of $10,000 for necessary repairs, and $1,000 additional for extra expenses on account of a murder in the prison, are hereby approved and recommended.

The Southern Illinois Penitentiary, at Chester, is a comparatively new prison, and could not reasonably be expected to be anything near self-supporting. It is still incomplete and undeveloped. It has only a capacity for taking care of eight hundred prisoners as a maximum. It has but one work-shop, which is occupied by the contractors in the shoe-manufacturing business. It has also a brick-yard, making bricks from clay within the stockade, which is let to contractors. These two industries contract for and employ about three hundred men, at good wages. I have, from time to time, so adjusted the territory between the districts of the Northern and Southern Penitentiaries as to keep an average of about seven hundred prisoners in the Southern Penitentiary, sending all the remainder to the Northern Penitentiary, where they could be amply accommodated, and their labor contracted with advantage to the State. Of the average of seven hundred kept in the Southern Penitentiary, about three hundred were let on contract work, while the remaining four hundred were either employed in the immense stone-quarry within the stockade, reducing a hill of stone and producing rip-raps and paying stone, which sold at good prices, or were doing work of State improvement about the penitentiary. Much work for the State for improvements about the penitentiary has been done by the convicts, which does not show in cash against the subsistence account.

Of the $150,000 appropriated for this penitentiary for ordinary subsistence, $125,000 has already been drawn. Whether the remaining $25,000 will be sufficient to maintain them until July 1, 1885, I am unable to state, but it is doubtful. Much work remains to complete the design of this penitentiary. I recommend that a sufficient work-shop shall be built for letting contracts for labor to advantage. Also, for a State work-shop, in which the State may have work done which has heretofore been imperfectly done in temporary sheds. A reservoir and reservoir-house are also imperatively demanded. The additional wing of the cell-house should also be erected in due time, but it is not at present imperatively necessary.

For the extra buildings above suggested, an appropriation of $25,000 is recommended. $175,000 for ordinary expenses should be appropriated, which I have reason to hope will not all be needed.

If the Legislature would devise some plan and enact it into a law by which the penitentiary convicts of the State could be classified so as to send the monstrous, incorrigible and hardened criminals to the Northern prison, and make it purely a prison of hard labor, while the accidental criminals and the young, first offenders could be sent to the Southern prison, which might, under salutary laws and restrictions, be made a reformatory institution with all necessary regulations, I think the effect would be excellent upon the results of the treatment of the criminal classes of the State.

RAILROAD AND WAREHOUSE COMMISSION.

This very important Bureau of the State Government shows exceedingly gratifying results during the past two years. The authority of this Board, under the law, to regulate railroad charges and prevent discrimination, is now so well established by the decisions of the Courts, that nearly all complaints from the people of violations of law are adjusted by the railroads themselves, without litigation, on notice from the Commissioners. The result is a much more harmonious feeling between the railroads and the people, and without expensive litigation the people are protected from extortionate rates. Rules and regulations adopted by the Commission under the law, and well established and recognized, are generally found sufficient to settle all complaints and difficulties.

The State Grain Inspection Department at Chicago, which is under the charge of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission, is in the very best of condition, and has, under the very able management of Chief Inspector Drake, been giving unusual satisfaction. This Department has done an unprecedentedly large business during the past two years, and the immense interest of shippers and dealers in grain in that great grain market of America have been so smoothly and equitably preserved that complaint is very rare. The department has been, and is, entirely self-supporting, and keeps a reasonably safe cash surplus on hand.

ILLINOIS AND MICHIGAN CANAL.

The past two years have been unusually trying ones on the business of the Illinois and Michigan canal, and, but for the excellent business management of the Commissioners, would have probably showed a financial loss.

During the first year, owing to comparative failure of crops and railroad facilities in competition, the transportation of grain over the canal was small, and that condition has substantially remained through the whole two years. But by reducing rates on lumber and heavy freights to about half the former rates, the Commissioners succeeded in obtaining sufficient business for the canal to make a very good financial showing.

The canal itself has been greatly improved by repairs and additional facilities. The right of the State to valuable real estate along and near the canal has been asserted and maintained. All expenses have been promptly paid and the surplus earnings, or cash capital of the canal, has been materially increased, as shown by the report of the Commissioners, while the contingent appropriation of $40,000 has not been drawn upon for a dollar.

MILITARY AFFAIRS.

On the 30th of September, 1884, the Illinois National Guard was shown by official reports to number 4,959 officers and men. They are well organized into nine (9) regiments of infantry; one (1) regiment of cavalry; three (3) batteries of artillery, and one (1) detached company (colored) of infantry, divided into two brigades, each commanded by a Brigadier-General.

These citizen State troops are under good discipline and well armed. The arms are all furnished by the General Government and have not cost the State anything. The artillery has been acquired by the companies themselves from private resources and does not belong to the State. During my term of office I have succeeded, by requisition on the Secretary of War, in equipping the Danville Battery with a complete outfit of furnishings and accoutrements except guns, and by a recent requisition have secured from the Secretary of War a Gatling gun for the Joliet battery and a large amount of needed supplies for repairs and replacing worn out pieces for all arms of the service. This requisition has furnished supplies to put the arms and accoutrements of the whole service in good shape.

This requisition will exhaust all of the current year's allowance from the National Government to this State for military supplies, and will anticipate about $1,600 on next year's allowance. I have also succeeded, during my term of office, in making uniform the infantry arms of the National Guard, by procuring from the National Government a sufficient number of the Springfield breech-loading rifles, calibre 45, with steel bayonet scabbard and McKeever cart-ridge box, to supply all of them, and have taken up the old 50 calibre arms which some of them had. All these troops are yet without canteens, haversacks and knapsacks except where they have purchased them themselves. They are well uniformed, but have bought and paid for their own uniforms, except where I have been able to use the military contingent fund to assist them some. A board of officers recently authorized by me have adopted the service uniform of the United States Regular Army as the regulation uniform for the Illinois National Guard, and companies and regiments will comply with that regulation as fast as practicable.

The number and organization of the Guard is now very commendable and satisfactory. It is highly creditable to this great State. The State, however, has not, in my judgment, done its duty toward its National Guard.

The necessity for a military organization as large as the State has now, thoroughly equipped, must be apparent to every one; it became a necessity at one time during my administration, in suppressing riots and preserving the peace in St. Clair and Madison counties. The companies ordered out responded promptly and performed their duty in a most honorable and soldierly manner. I reported this occurrence, however, specially to the last General Assembly. The existence of a well organized and equipped militia in a State is a necessary and powerful reserve police force, which is recognized by nearly all the States in the Union, and by its very existence tends strongly to preserve the peace. The Constitution of the United States also recognizes and refers to the militia of States in several places, and men of greatest experience in military and public affairs are now urging that the organized militia of the several States shall be recognized by the Federal Government as a reserve part of the Regular Army of the United States. Illinois, with her proud position, ought not to be behind other States in taking care of her citizen soldiers. But the fact is that she is badly behind many of them. Illinois only appropriates $75,000 per annum to her National Guard. This is used up in paying armory rent, current expenses and the cost of annual encampments, camp equipage, etc., leaving the officers and men to buy their own uniforms. The men composing the National Guard are representatives of the best young men of the State as a rule. It is wrong that they should devote so much of their time, after attending to their private business, to drilling and training, and then be compelled to pay their own money for many necessities. The State of New York, in addition to providing armories and uniforms, appropriates $500,000 annually to support twelve thousand troops. Pennsylvania, $220,000 annually for eight thousand troops. Massachusetts, $150,000 annually for less than five thousand troops. It is believed that if this State would appropriate $150,000 per annum, the troops could be creditably uniformed and maintained. Well knowing that the present appropriation of $75,000 is shamefully insufficient, I earnestly recommend the appropriation of $ 50,000 per annum, and the amendment of the Military Code so that part of the money can be used to purchase the regulation service uniform and other regular equipments.

Encampments of the two Brigades of the National Guard have been held annually, which I have always attended in person, and in which very satisfactory results were witnessed.

The proceeds of the sale of old arms authorized by resolution of the last General Assembly should be appropriated to the military fund of the current year, as was intended, to make up some unavoidable deficiencies, as shown in the Adjutant-General's report.

The uniform alacrity, courtesy and zeal with which the officers and men have responded to orders and have joined with the present efficient Adjutant-General, and the Commander-in-Chief, to perfect military discipline and organization, is highly commendable and deserving of public recognition.

BATTLE FLAGS.

The 33d General Assembly appropriated ten thousand dollars for the restoration and proper care of the battle flags carried by Illinois regiments during the war of the rebellion. The fund and supervision of the work was placed under the direction of the Governor and Adjutant-General. The flags, to the number of over three hundred, were skillfully preserved and arranged. The vacant hall, formerly called the "Art Gallery," in the front of the upper story of the capitol, was selected as the repository, and it was fitly decorated and furnished with cases for receiving the flags and relics emblematic of the patriotism and valor of the Illinois troops in the war for the preservation of the Union. Memorial Hall, as it is now called, was, when furnished, dedicated with proper ceremonies. It shows for itself the completeness of the work. The work was all done and paid for within the appropriation. A special account of the expenditures will be given in a report of the expenditures of all funds subject to the order of the Governor.

Much credit is due the late Adjutant-General Elliott for the success of this work. He made it his special pride, and he made it a success. Memorial Hall will for ages be "the shrine of each patriot's devotion."

BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS.

Special attention is invited to the utility of labor statistics as is shown in the report prepared and submitted to me by its capable Secretary, J. S. Lord. The statistical information therein contained of the manufacturing and mining industries of the State, and especially of the wages, cost of living, and general condition of the laboring classes; the relations between capital and labor, as showing the legitimate profits of each, is suggestive and instructive.

The system of mine inspection and protection of the safety and health of the miners inaugurated by the acts of the last General Assembly have proved to be very beneficial to the miners. The work of the inspection of mines, according to the law passed by the last Legislature, has been well executed by an able and industrious corps of inspectors selected under the rules prescribed by law. Any additional protection afforded to the miners or other laboring men by law, either in their wages or personal safety and health, would be commendable. The duty imposed upon the Legislature by the 20th section of Article IV of the Constitution, to provide for the safety and protection of miners, should always be borne in mind, and the salutary work of the Bureau of Labor Statistics should be sustained.

FISH COMMISSION.

The Illinois Fish Commission, under the very able management of the present Commissioners, is proving to be a means of great satisfaction and benefit to the people of the State. Through its agency the cultivation and protection of food fishes has been greatly promoted, and interest in fish culture has been awakened, and hundreds of ponds, lakes and streams have been stocked with fine fish.

Special attention is called to the necessity of amending the fish laws in regard to the prohibition of dragging seines, the size of meshes and the denomination of "food fish" instead of "game fish" in the prohibitory laws. Also, such needful amendments as tend to preserve food fish from wanton and useless destruction.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.

The State Board of Health, which was in its inception very difficult to establish by legislative enactment, has steadily grown in usefulness and popular favor, until now it is one of the most important bureaus of the State government. By reason of the able management of its members, and especially of its secretary, the medical profession of the State has been very much elevated and improved. Incompetent beginners have been prevented from practicing. The grade of medical education required for practice has been raised to a respectable and safe standard, while mountebanks and quacks have been driven from the practice of their wiles and deceptions on the people of this State. The health of the citizens and their protection from inroads of contagious and epidemic diseases have been faithfully and carefully watched. Rules for sanitary care and regulation and instruction as to prevention and cure of prevalent and especially dangerous diseases, have also been so successfully published and promulgated that it is believed thousands of lives have been saved.

The recommendations which will be made to the General Assembly by the Board of Health for amendments to the laws by which it is constituted and operated, should be carefully considered and needful changes made. The regular appropriation for the ordinary expenses of this Board for the year ending September 30, 1884, was $9,000, but this amount was found too small by $606.94, which was made up from fees and other receipts. The regular appropriation for ordinary expenses should be $22,500, at least. A very important subject for the consideration of the General Assembly presents itself in this connection. Asiatic cholera has, during the past year, made fearful ravages among the population of European countries, especially in Spain, Italy and France. According to the usual history of this scourge, its course runs westward around the world. The chances of its reaching this country next summer are very great, and its frightful visitation to the United States can only be prevented by extreme vigilance on the part of both the national government and the States of the Union in enforcing thorough quarantine and sanitary regulations. The State of Illinois should be thoroughly prepared to meet this contingency through the agency of its Board of Health under proper regulations, and equipped with an adequate appropriation to meet all emergencies. To completely quarantine the State of Illinois and protect it all along the eastern, southern and northeastern frontier by systematic inspection at railroad crossings and boat landings would, in the estimation of the Secretary of the Board of Health, cost from $80,000 to $85,000, if this State were acting alone in the matter. But I take it for granted that the National government will do its whole duty in the matter, and that other States east of us will co-operate in protective measures, so that a much less sum will have to be provided by this State for the contingency. Therefore, I suggest that a contingent appropriation of $40,000 be made, subject to the order of the Board of Health, to be used on approval of the Governor only in case of approach of cholera or other ravaging disease threatening the lives and health of large portions of the people of the State.

STOCK DISEASES AND STATE VETERINARIAN'S DEPARTMENT.

The last General Assembly amended the existing law for the prevention of pleuro-pneumonia and other contagious diseases among cattle so as to make its provisions apply to the disease of glanders among horses. The State Veterinarian was by the law given supervision over these subjects and directed to inspect animals suspected of having these diseases, and to condemn, cause to be appraised and slaughtered diseased animals, and quarantine premises under directions therein contained. Ten thousand dollars was appropriated to pay the expenses and per diem of the State Veterinarian, and to pay the appraised value of animals condemned and slaughtered. The past year has been singularly marked with an epidemic of these diseases. Glanders among horses has spread to nearly all parts of the State. Upon inspection and condemnation up to the present date, horses have been slaughtered by order of the State Veterinarian on account of glanders, and in many cases quarantine of infected premises has been established.

The most revolting feature of this ravaging disease is that the contagion may be communicated from the equine species to persons. Several cases have occurred in the State with certainly fatal results, which have been pronounced by skilled physicians to be glanders among men communicated from horses. This horrible disease has been widely prevalent but it is believed is now largely under control, although it still exists.

During the last summer quite an excitement was raised by the importation of cattle from Texas and other southwestern localities into the Chicago stockyards which were disease with splenic or so-called Texas fever. I was importuned by many to at once quarantine against the importation of these cattle from the infected localities. But after inspecting the nature of the disease and learning that it could not be communicated to Illinois native cattle, but only to the cattle of the southwest on the trail, and after getting assurances from the State authorities of Kansas and Missouri that no more cattle infected with that disease should be shipped to Illinois, I declined to quarantine against them. Since then no further agitation of the matter has occurred, and no danger from that source is believed to exist, except that provisions should be made to constantly inspect shipments from the southwest to Chicago markets so as to guard against diseased animals being sold in the stockyards and slaughtered for beef.

During the past year the other dreaded disease, pleuro-pneumonia, among cattle made its appearance in our State. It was first discovered in shipments of Jersey cattle from a certain locality in Ohio, these coming from localities farther east, particularly in New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia. When the disease first made its appearance I caused the State Veterinary Surgeon to make close examination and inspection of the suspected cattle. In this work he was assisted by the United States Veterinary Surgeon, Dr. Salmon, and the State Veterinary Surgeon of Kansas, whom I had invited to assist and co-operate with him. His special report to me, in which the other surgeons coincided, was that the disease was a contagious pleuro-pneumonia. This report was based upon ante and post-mortem examinations of a number of animals. Several of the owners of animals diseased, and stock-raisers, have also corroborated the opinions of the surgeons that it that the disease was contagious pleuro-pneumonia, I have no doubt Prompt and rigid measures were taken. Diseased animals were slaughtered and those exposed were closely quarantined. The quarantine before existing against certain localities in the Eastern States on account of the prevalence of this disease there, was at once enlarged by my public proclamation according to law, so as to include all infected localities. By these prompt and stringent measures the disease was confined to a few Jersey herds among which it first made its appearance, although a few cases occurred where it was communicated from the Jerseys to other cattle. It is believed that the disease is now under control and will be speedily stamped out. This visitation of scourges has been quite alarming, troublesome and expensive. The law as it now exists placed all the work for the whole State upon Dr. Paaren, the single State Veterinarian, without power granted to employ deputies or assistants. The consequence was that he had more to do than it was in the power of any one man to do. He has been very active and energetic, and has been going constantly in the line of his duty. The law should be amended so as to allow the State Veterinarian to appoint deputies in case of necessity, whose salaries should be provided for, or to divide the State into districts, with a responsible veterinary surgeon in each district.

The appropriation of $10,000 for these purposes for two years was entirely inadequate. Of this appropriation, $5,968.66 has already been used, up to December 30, 1884, in paying the per diem of the Veterinary Surgeon and his traveling expenses, and the appraisal of forty-eight horses and mules slaughtered on account of glanders, leaving but $4,031.34 of the fund remaining. I have still on hand, regularly reported to me, appraisements for slaughtered cattle on account of pleuro-pneumonia, to the amount of $4,130. I did not deem it wise to entirely exhaust this fund, inasmuch as the per diem and expenses of the State Veterinarian must be paid from the remainder of this fund until July 1, 1885, unless further emergency appropriations are made by this Legislature. Therefore,

I have approved the appraisements for the cattle slaughtered, ($4,130,) contingent on an appropriation to be made by this Legislature. I therefore recommend that a deficiency appropriation of $5,000 be at once made, to pay the above sum of $4,130, and any other such claims as may yet appear. I also recommend that the contingent appropriation for preventing the spread of these diseases be increased to $20,000 per annum. The interests involved in an epidemic of these diseases is so great, and so apparent, that they cannot be ignored.

I also call attention to the necessity of so amending the law as to more accurately define the measure of damages in condemning and appraising these diseased animals. I have directed the appraisal of the animals to be on the basis of their value as diseased, based on the percentage of their chance of recovery. In case of glanders among horses, not much trouble has been experienced, for the almost certain fatality of the disease being generally recognized, the appraisements have usually been very low, and acquiesced in. But among fine thoroughbred Jersey cattle, when the chances for recovery from disease is said to be about equal, the measure of damages on a valuable animal has always been a subject of much controversy.

In aid of the execution of the law, and to induce co-operation of cattle men, I have been inclined to be liberal in approving their appraisements of cattle destroyed as above stated, an itemized account of which will be submitted to the General Assembly; but the measure of values should be more definitely fixed by law. The power and method of quarantine should also be more specifically defined.

ELECTION LAWS.

The recent attempt to control the election of a State Senator in the 6th District and to secure control of the Legislature by bold and daring changes and forgeries upon the true returns of election in a certain precinct of that District, strongly suggests the necessity of reform in our election laws by which the purity on popular elections may be more firmly secured. On a fair election, honest count, and true returns, rests the whole fabric of popular government. The laws regulating elections should be so perfected that the whole people would feel secure in the potency of their right of suffrage, and be assured that their judgment and wishes, as expressed at the ballot box on election day, are not to be, by any possibility, overthrown by the manipulations of the ballots and returns, by common burglars, thieves, forgers and ballot-box stuffers. In the amendment of the laws so as to keep pure, and render inviolable the freeman's sacred rights of suffrage, all good men should join without regard to party affiliations. So far as the particular crime committed at the last election is concerned, a perfectly lawful and proper remedy was found. But the election laws of the State are such as to admit of an infinite variety of frauds being perpetrated, many of which could not legally be so easily defeated. I have no doubt whatever but that it is not only the plain command of the law, by implication at least, that Canvassing Boards shall only canvass returns known to be true returns, and shall reject returns known to be false and forged, but that every sense of right and justice commands them to do it. Neither have I the slightest doubt that the power is vested by the Constitution and laws of the State in the Governor to refuse to issue certificates of election to persons shown to have been elected on returns known and universally admitted to be false and forged, and not the expression of the will of the people; nor of his power to issue certificates of election to the person shown to be elected by true returns, if such true and legal returns were once made out, and their contents can be unquestionably ascertained, even if canvassing boards do, in violation of law canvass the false returns, and thus attempt to show one elected who was not. If such power does not constitutionally and legally exist in the Governor to so construe the law with reference to the duties imposed upon him in his own Executive sphere, then the wiles and arts of bad men who are the meanest conspirators against the rights of the people to govern themselves, must be permitted to triumph in silence over the power of the law, and the strong arm of execution vested in the Governor. I am glad, however, to be able to correctly say that the decision made by me as above indicated, in reference to issuing the certificate of election to the Senator in the Sixth District, has met with almost universal approval from good citizens of all parties who love right and despise wrong, who delight in the prevalence of law and have no sympathy with crime. The approval of the people has been shown in abundant private testimonials and by the reflector of the people's sentiments, the public press, with the exception of a few very unimportant and inconsequential partisan sheets. I am especially pleased that it has also been endorsed by the bench and bar generally as a strictly legal view of the case. It has been denounced as an act of usurpation only by those who were actively engaged in the fraud as conspirators or perpetrators, or who expected to enjoy the profits of such fraud by way of political preferment.

But this action only meets one of the many varieties of the outrages which may be invented by the ingenuity of dishonest men. In the secret ballot, guarded only by loose and incompetent election laws, lies the opportunity for the perpetration of an innumerable variety of election crimes.

I commend to your careful consideration a revision of election laws for the reasons and purposes above indicated. I also suggest that among other reforms which might be made with salutary effect, the law should be so amended as to prohibit the authorities vested with the power of prescribing the limits of election precincts, from making any precinct that should contain within its boundaries more than three hundred legal voters. Another great opportunity for evil practices lies in the law permitting the swearing in of unregistered votes on election day. The law should require the registry of voters in every precinct, to be completed ten days before the election. Persons who were not registered ten days before election should not be permitted to vote at all, thus requiring every voting citizen to personally see that he is registered in time, and putting an end to swearing in illegal votes by questionable affidavits on election day.

This registry list should be a public document publicly displayed for the ten days preceding election. If these remedies should not be deemed sufficient to secure purity and honesty of elections, then I commend to your careful consideration the thought that, notwithstanding all these safeguards thrown by law around elections, the opportunity for fraud, crime and deception, lies in our custom of having a secret ballot. I know of no natural or moral right in the voter to cast a secret ballot. The law gives him the legal right to it. But the question may be well asked why should that be the law? And what inherent right of the freeman is preserved by the secret ballot, and what one would be violated by requiring him to cast an open ballot, stripped of the cloak of secrecy under which is often hidden crimes, frauds and deceptions innumerable. If the voter should be allowed in each precinct abundant time and opportunity to vote, in a respectable place, be protected from intimidation and insult, why should he not vote an open ballot which should be publicly announced either by himself or one of the election officers before the same was deposited in the box? Then by allowing, under proper restrictions, a representative of different parties or candidates to be present and keep count at each poll, nearly all chance for frauds and forgeries would be gone. The result of elections would be known as soon as the polls closed. The voter would be sure that he was voting the ticket and for the candidates of his choice, and that his ticket had not by some trick known to experts in dishonesty at elections, been substituted for another in which the name of one or more candidates were inserted, whom he did not intend to vote for. Bribery and corruption at elections would soon become almost unknown, since by an open ballot the bribe-taker would in most cases, have to at once publicly advertise by his ballot strong evidence of his corruption. Voters would be compelled to be honest with each other, because the mask of hypocrisy would be torn away at the ballot box by the open ballot, and the fraud so often shrewdly practiced by an individual trading his vote with a half dozen or more other voters on a single candidate, would be impracticable. Repeating would be almost impossible, since the opportunity for detection would be many fold greater. The occupation of the ballot-ballot box stuffer, the poll-list and tally-sheet forger, and the professional election-fixer, would be gone.

Some of these suggestions may seem and are no doubt radical in their character. But the peril in which the right of suffrage and popular government by the people are involved, demands such radical changes and amendments as shall surround these sacred rights with a wall impregnable to the assaults of reckless criminals.

Gentlemen of the 34th General Assembly, my two years' administration of the executive office is about to close. These two years have been to me years and days of almost unceasing labor, surrounded with peculiarly vexatious and annoying circumstances. I have felt compelled to labor hard and endure much, that all the interests of the people of this great State and their respect for the high office which I fill, should be fully preserved. In looking back over it I can candidly say that I know I have committed some errors, but I have no public act to regret, and nothing of public interest to explain or apologize for.

When my successor shall have been legally qualified, I shall gladly shift the burden and cares of State to him and leave the office without regret.

Hoping that the session of the 34th General Assembly may be pleasant to its members, and greatly beneficial to the people, I am,

With great respect,

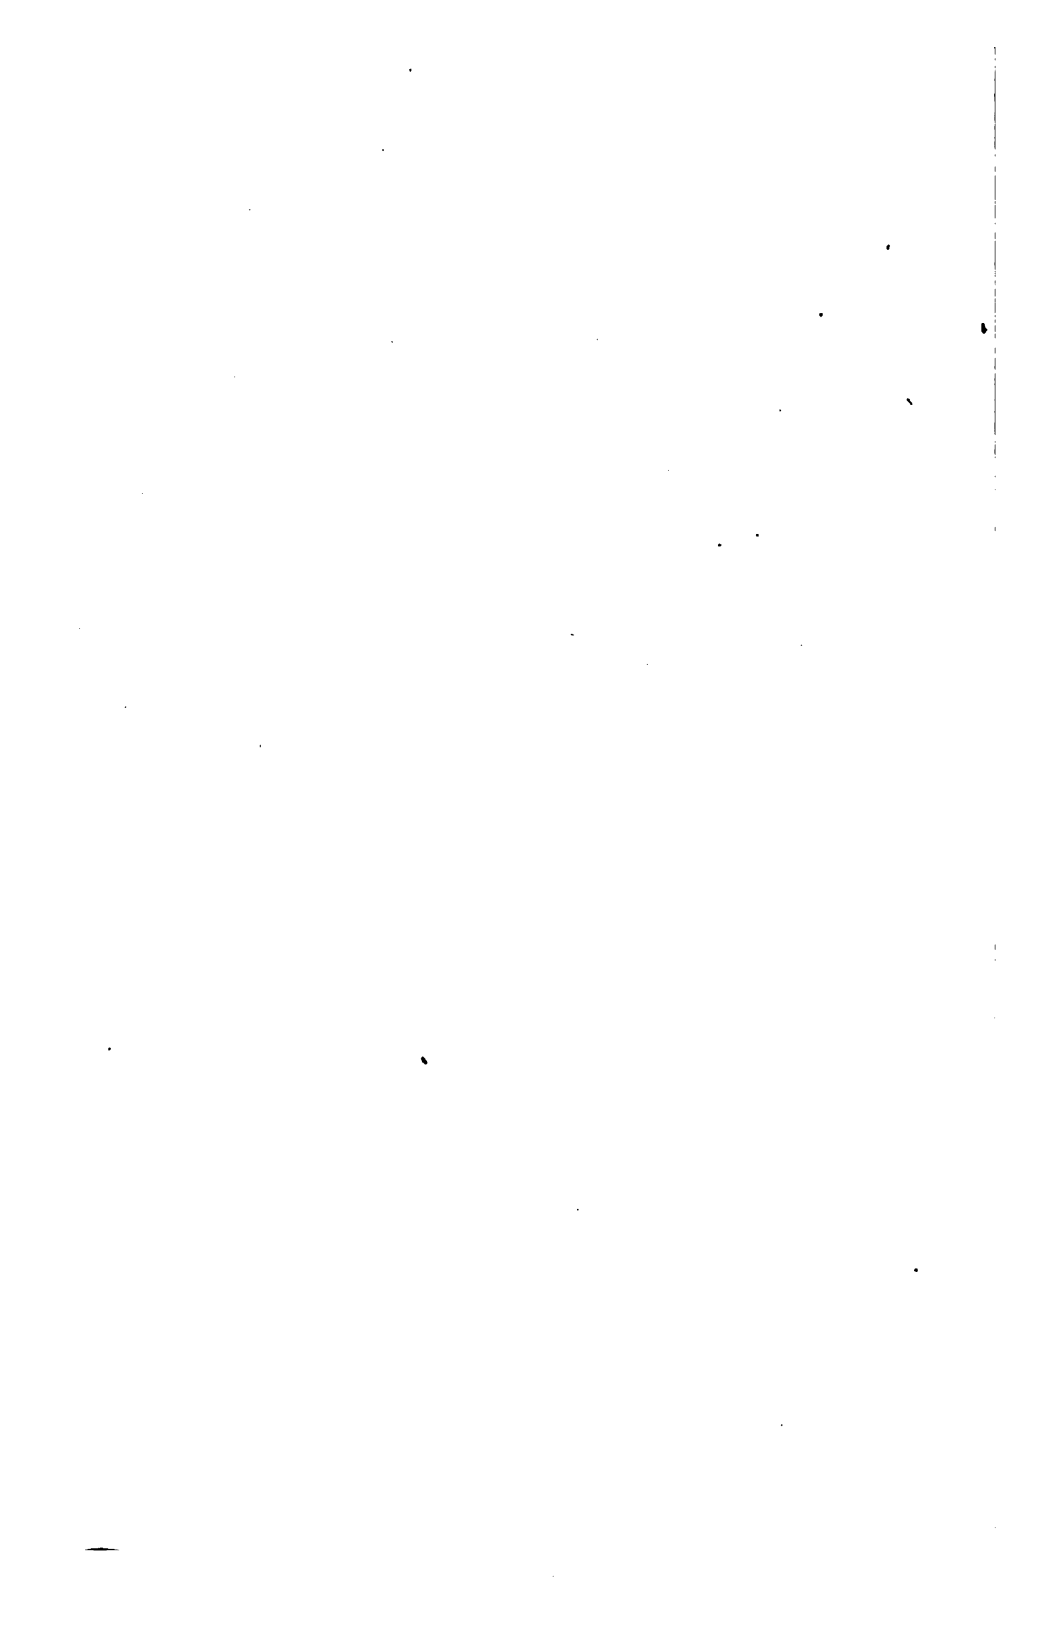

JOHN M. HAMILTON,

Governor.

BIENNIAL REPORT
OF THE
AUDITOR OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS,
TO THE
GOVERNOR OF ILLINOIS.

NOVEMBER 1, 1884.

BIENNIAL REPORT.

AUDITOR'S OFFICE, ILLINOIS, }
SPRINGFIELD, November 1, 1884. }

To HON. JOHN M. HAMILTON, Governor of Illinois :

SIR: I have the honor to submit herewith a report of the transactions of the Revenue Department of my office for the fiscal years ending September 30, 1883, and September 30, 1884.

11. Aggregate amount of State Taxes charged on tax books for the year 1883, the amount of abatements, commissions, etc., the net amount collected and the amount received at the State Treasury upon account thereof.
12. School Fund Tax charged on the tax books of 1882, showing the abatements and net amount realized to State Treasury, etc.
13. School Fund Tax charged on the tax books of 1883, showing abatements and net amount realized to State Treasury, etc.
14. Statement of sales of property forfeited to the State for State taxes, for the year 1882, under section 203, Revenue law.
15. State, County and Local Taxes charged upon the tax books of 1882.
16. State, County and Local Taxes charged upon the tax books of 1883.
17. Statement of sale of property forfeited to the State for various taxes, for the year 1882, under section 203, Revenue law.
18. Statement showing the per cent. of forfeitures and insolvencies on account of State tax, for the years 1860, 1865, 1870, 1875, 1880, 1881, 1882 and 1883, in the various counties.

19. Statement showing per cent. of total amount of State tax collected for the years 1860, 1865, 1870 to 1883, inclusive, paid by each of the various counties.
20. Statement showing the average rate of taxation in the several counties for the years 1890, 1881, 1882 and 1883.
21. Statement of property assessed in the several counties for the year 1883.
22. Rates per cent. of addition to or deduction from the assessed value of each class of property in each county of the State, as determined by the State Board of Equalization, on the assessment of 1883.
23. Railroad property in the several counties, as assessed and equalized for the year 1883.
24. Aggregate equalized assessment of Railroad Property for the year 1883.
25. "Capital Stock" assessments made by the State Board of Equalization for the year 1883.
26. Statement of the equalized assessment of all taxable property in the several counties for the year 1883.
27. Statement of property assessed in the several counties for the year 1884.
28. Rates per cent. of addition to or deduction from the assessed value of each class of property in each county in the State, as determined by the State Board of Equalization, on the assessment of 1884.
29. Statement showing the proportion of the total equalized assessments of taxable property in the various counties, for the years 1875 to 1884, inclusive, assessed on Real and Personal property, respectively.
30. Statement of the aggregate equalized assessments of taxable property in the several counties in the State for the years 1873 to 1884, inclusive.
31. Railroad Property in the several counties, as assessed and equalized for the year 1884.
32. Aggregate equalized assessment of Railroad Property for the year 1884.
33. "Capital Stock" assessments made by the State Board of Equalization for the year 1884.
34. Statement of the equalized assessment of all taxable property in the several counties for the year 1884.
35. Statement of Bonds issued by Counties, Townships, Cities and Towns, registered in Auditor's office, in pursuance of an act entitled "An act to fund and provide for paying the Railroad Debts of Counties, Townships, Cities and Towns," in force April 16, 1869.
36. Statement of Bonds registered in pursuance of the original act of February 13, 1865.
37. Statement of Bonds registered in pursuance of the act of February 13, 1865, as amended by acts of April 27, 1877, and June 4, 1879.
38. Statement of Bonds issued by Commissioners of Sny Island Levee (of Adams, Pike and Calhoun counties) in pursuance of act of April 24, 1871, and registered in the Auditor's office under act of April 9, 1872.
39. Abstract of the accounts of the State Treasurer with the several Local Registered Bond Funds of Counties, Townships, Cities and Towns.
40. Aggregate amount of taxes charged on account of Local Bond Funds, the amount of abatements, commissions, etc., and the amount paid over by Collectors for each locality, for the year 1882.
41. Statement of sale of property forfeited to the State for Bond Fund taxes, under section 203 Revenue law, for the year 1882.
42. Aggregate amount of taxes charged on account of Local Bond Funds, the amount of abatements, commissions, etc., the net amount collected, the amount paid State Treasurer, and the amount remaining unpaid for each locality, for the year 1883.
43. Table of Balances of Appropriations made by the Thirty-first General Assembly, unexpended October 1, 1882, amount of warrants since drawn thereon, and amounts which lapsed into Treasury September 30, 1883.
44. Table of Appropriations made by the Thirty-second General Assembly, showing amount of warrants drawn thereon, respectively, and balances unexpended September 30, 1884.

STATE TAXES LEVIED.

The Thirty-third General Assembly, by "An Act to provide the necessary revenue for State purposes," approved June 25, 1883, authorized taxation to raise for general State purposes one million five hundred thousand dollars on the assessment for the year 1883, and one million five hundred thousand dollars on the assessment for the year 1884; and for State school purposes nine hundred thousand dollars on the assessment for the year 1883, and one million dollars on the assessment for the year 1884.

The rates per cent. required to produce the amounts thus authorized to be raised were, in accordance with the provisions of said act, computed by the Governor and Auditor, as follows:

On each one hundred dollars of the equalized assessment for the year 1883, for general State purposes, twenty cents; for State school purposes, twelve cents; on each one hundred dollars of equalized assessment for the year 1884, for general State purposes, twenty-one cents; for State school purposes, fourteen cents,—thus making the aggregate rate of State tax for 1883 thirty-two cents, and for 1884 thirty-five cents.

REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., October 1, 1884.

To His Excellency, JOHN M. HAMILTON, Governor: .

I have the honor to present, herewith, my second biennial report as required by law to be made by the Secretary of State:

Notwithstanding the increase of business in all the departments, and the reductions made, at my request, in several of the regular appropriations, by the last General Assembly, I am pleased to state that there are no deficiencies and that there is enough left in every appropriation to meet all demands until July 1, 1885.

The exhibits of fees show that the receipts of this office for fees, since October 1, 1882, the date of my last report, have amounted to $20,819.53, or $10,409.76 per annum. It also shows by whom paid and on what account.

From this account of fees may also be learned the number and character of all corporations organized and licensed to organize during the past two years.

The account further shows that the business of this office has increased more than forty per cent. in the last four years, estimating from a comparison of the fees received by me and those received by my predecessor.

This increase is almost entirely due to the organization of corporations, great and small, in greater number.

As some uneasiness was shown by members of the 33d General Assembly at the large number of corporations being organized, and bills having been introduced to make it more difficult to form these Associations, I consider it my duty to say that all classes and conditions of citizens avail themselves of the privileges of the law to try their various enterprises. Miners organize co-operative coal and mining companies, farmers, cheese, dairy and stock raising companies, capitalists, manufacturing and mercantile establishments and palatial opera houses and music halls. Judging from the character of the men applying for license to organize, and from the objects stated in the applications, I can say that very few appear to be organized for other than worthy objects. To deprive worthy citizens of our State who are applying daily for the privileges of this law, by placing any further exactions than now exist in its provisions, appears to me to be unnecessary and detrimental to the prosperity of our State.

It is worthy of note, that of the many companies formed since my term of office began, there has not been brought to the notice of this department a single instance in which the people were deceived or defrauded by one of these organizations, except in that of life insurance companies, which the 33d General Assembly remedied by passing a separate law for their organization.

The expenditures of this department are given in the succeeding exhibits, item by item, just as they were paid, and a reference to any one of the appropriations will show how it was expended.

At the proper place is given the particulars of the bidding on State contracts, who were the bidders, etc., as required by statute; but here I desire to make some general remarks in regard to these State contracts.

COAL.

January 11, 1881, the contract price for coal was one dollar and seventy-four cents per ton; that contract expired September 30th, 1882, when a new contract was let for two years, expiring September 30th, 1884, at one dollar and forty-eight cents per ton, and for the two years from the latter date the contract is at one dollar and forty cents per ton.

The weight of the coal is taken from the scales owned and operated by the State, and the quality is and has been all that is required by the terms of the contract.

There has been no change in the appropriation for heating for the reason that the extra consumption of coal caused by running the elevator in the State House increases the expense of this department much more than can be gained by the reduction in the contract price of coal.

The elevator is run during the sessions of the General Assembly every day and part of the night, the usual length of a session being five months; also for all public gatherings and meetings at the State House and during the sessions of the State Board of Equalization, which equals in all about half the time.

If the General Assembly desires that the elevator shall be run all the time, an increase of one thousand dollars per annum in the appropriation for the heating department will be necessary.

PRINTING PAPER AND STATIONERY.

In regard to printing paper and stationery, I have to report that at my suggestion the 33d General Assembly reduced the appropriation $5,000.00, and there is now on hand $21,699.16, which will be ample for all demands to July 1st, 1885.

The Commissioners of State Contracts have contracted for goods of first class quality, and there has been very little necessity to purchase articles that came in this class, outside of the contract, and it has not been done; therefore, the State pays only $15,000.00 per annum for all the stationery and printing paper used by the several executive departments and the General Assembly. The printing paper forms much the larger part of this sum, and is the paper that is used for all the State printing. I would not recommend any further reduction of the appropriation for this purpose, as the expenditures between now and July 1st for printing paper alone will be nearly seventeen thousand dollars.

Upon my recommendation to the last General Assembly a reduction of $5,000 was made in the usual appropriation for printing paper and stationery; also a reduction of $10,000 from the appropriation for binding; also a reduction from $15,000 to $5,000 for the incidental expenses of the General Assembly; and all the appropriations have been found sufficient to meet the demands against the State on these several accounts, and there have been no deficiencies; but I would recommend to the incoming General Assembly that no further reductions are practicable.

The State has been purchasing everything let by contract at a much lower rate than individuals can obtain the same work and supplies, and a part of the work has been done for less than cost by some of the contractors. This state of affairs will not exist always. Some parties have failed financially by reason of the low price at which they have contracted to do State work, and a reduction of the appropriations might come at a time when the State would have to pay as much perhaps, or nearly so, as the general public, when the present appropriations would be insufficient. The Commissioners of State Contracts have retained a complete line of samples of every thing contracted for and have required contractors to conform to the samples in furnishing supplies.

Three car loads of printing paper have been rejected by them as not being up to contract, two of which were immediately withdrawn, the other still remaining in the State House.

PRINTING.

The contracts for printing have been well fulfilled. The appropriation made for this purpose by the last Assembly was $30,000, and it will be equal to the demand; but this item cost over $36,000 for the two years preceding.

It is difficult to estimate how much will be needed for this purpose, as no one knows in advance what demand may spring up in some of the many departments that draw from it. On a succeeding page will be found a statement prepared by the Printer Expert, showing what printing was done by the State, together with the cost of each item.

BINDING.

The binding has been very satisfactorily done, and, as the prices following will show, at a very low rate. There was left over, and not drawn from the Treasury, $11,000 of the appropriation for binding made by the 32d General Assembly, and the appropriation for this purpose by the 33d will be sufficient to meet all expenses until July 1, 1885.

There will be found in this report a statement prepared in this office, giving each item of binding done by the State and the cost of the same. A glance at the statements set forth will show what printing and binding is done by the State, and what these two very important items in State expenditures cost, and I desire, respectfully, to call attention thereto.

LIGHTING STATE HOUSE.

The appropriation for lighting the State House has been $4,000 per annum; but a sum equal to the appropriation for one year was consumed during the sitting of the 33d General Assembly, the monthly expenditures running up as high as $867.50, so that there was not sufficient to pay all bills up to July 1, 1884, and these bills were paid from the appropriation available after that date. An increase in this appropriation would have been necessary, but for the fact that the price of gas has been reduced by the gas company from $2.50 to $1.50 per 1,000 feet, the reduction taking effect January 1, 1884. I would recommend that there be no change in this appropriation.

INDICES AND ARCHIVES.

In my report of two years ago upon this subject I said: "I am not inclined to overestimate the services of this department, but two years experience in the office of Secretary of State has led me to fully appreciate its importance (to the public), the amount of work accomplished, and the dependence of this office for the prompt despatch of public business upon reliable indices to its files and records." After four years experience and the knowledge of affairs of State gained thereby, I am prepared to repeat what I said two years ago.

The Statute of 1874, in defining the duties of the Secretary of State, wisely provides that part of his duties shall be: "To make and keep proper indexes to the executive records and all public acts, resolutions, papers and documents in his office." It is well known that prior to 1874, no proper indexes to the archives in this office were made or kept. Under the provisions of the above statute the more important files, such as the original laws and corporation papers, have been indexed to date, and meet the requirement of the law and the demands of the public business with most gratifying results.

The work in this department during the two years just passed has progressed steadily and constantly. Much has been accomplished, all of which is permanent in character and value, and will become more and more valuable as the years go on. A description of the work performed will give a better insight into the character and importance of the Index department and the necessity for its existence. The law on State contracts requires that the copies of the laws, joint resolutions and journals furnished by the contractor for the copying, "shall be carefully compared with originals in his office" by the Secretary of State before being sent to the printer. The same law requires that the printed journals of the Senate and House of Representatives shall each contain an index, which shall be prepared by the Secretary of State, who shall also prepare and furnish to the contractor for this class of printing a table of the contents and index of the volume of the laws, and a table of the contents of the volumes of reports." * * * "The laws shall be arranged by the Secretary of State in alphabetical order, according to the subject matter, and be thus printed." The law further requires that: "head lines, stating the subject of each section according to its number, set in nonpareil roman, leaded, in two columns, shall, in the volume of the laws, precede each act." It must be patent to the mind of any one at all familiar with public affairs, that to properly attend to the above enumerated duties, organized system and competent ability must be employed. After the copy has been furnished to the printer for the laws, resolutions and journals of the two houses, and as the volumes go through the press, the tables of contents and indexes are prepared and the printing supervised in order that, as near as possible, correctness may be insured. The constitution requires that "all bills and amendments thereto shall be printed before the vote is taken on final passage." Bills that have passed their second reading in either house are not sent to the printer, but copies thereof made and furnished to the printer, the originals being retained in the keeping of the Secretary of State while the printing is being done. During the sessions of the legislature the duty of comparing the copy of bills for the printer, and in many cases preparing the copy as well, devolves upon the index department.

The duties I have thus enumerated and pointed out as being attended to in the Index department, occupy the time of the two clerks employed fully one-half the time—that is, one year, of the two comprising the legislative term, is taken up in attending to the wants of the legislature during its sittings, in preparing for the printing, and in making the indexes to the documents of each session. For the session of 1883, the volume of the laws was received from the printer ready for distribution in July, 1883; the House journal was received in September, 1883; the Senate journal in November, 1883; the volumes of Reports, No. 1 in March, 1883; No. 2, in October, 1883; and No. 3, and the last, in November, 1883. Upon the completion of the work incident to the session of 1883, a beginning was made upon the index to the Executive records, in accordance with the recommendations in my former report.

The records of the Territory of Illinois, embracing the period between April 25, 1809, and September 9, 1818, have been indexed complete.

For the purpose of making the index to the Executive records of the State available for reference as the work progressed, it was thought best, and so decided upon, to make divisions of time, for separate indexes, corresponding with the three constitutional periods; that is to say: from 1818 to 1843; from 1848 to 1870; from 1870 to date of the completion of the entire work. The memoranda of the first period of twenty years has been taken, the alphabetical distribution made, a large part of the copying done, and by the first of January, 1885, or earlier, the Index to this period will be ready for use. The plan of the index to the Executive records is, in brief, a subject index, a personal index, more particularly an index to names, and a county index, each separate from the other, and complete in itself. This plan has been suggested by the nature of the inquiries made to the Secretary of State for information, contained, or supposed to be contained, in the records of the State department.

The necessity for this work has been questioned by some, and the appropriation for continuing the work upon the back files and records criticized by others. I am convinced that all such objections must arise from a lack of information or a want of understanding of the merits of the subject. If practicable, it would only be necessary to publish herewith the thousand and one letters of inquiry which come to this office every year asking information upon every conceivable subject of Executive, Legislative or Judicial action. The information sought is always valuable, and sometimes indispensable to the inquirer, in establishing some historical fact, in defending some right, or in securing some just demand. As an illustration I may mention that the Executive records of the State contain thousands of entries noting the issue of patents for lands sold by the State on account of schools, canal, swamp, salines and internal improvements. The statutes make these entries a legal chain of title in the absence of the patent itself, when certified by the Secretary of State. Application for certified entries of patents to perfect chain of title are of almost daily occurrence. Much loss of time to the State, and frequently disappointment and pecuniary loss to the applicant, results from the inability of this office to furnish the information, or even to say with reasonable certainty that it is not contained in the records. The only safe guide to what the records contain is a reliable index to all entries, and then the officer serving the public and being held responsible for his acts, has some safe basis upon which to predicate replies to the numerous demands made upon him, as in the cases to which reference has been made. It is true, some inquiries are made—many in fact—out of curiosity, to settle some dispute or otherwise trivial to the general public; but for all that, answer must be made without question as to motive or purpose, all of which takes time, but without the means of making answer to the trivial questions the important ones suffer as well. The clients of a public officer are all the people, and if he be a true advocate, he will make the cause of his clients his own. The Secretary of the State of Illinois numbers among his clients a large percentage of the people of the State. His office is regarded as a sort of general intelligence office on all sorts of subjects. The people have become accustomed, by fair treatment, to appeal to this office with much trust and confidence. My own efforts have been directed toward preserving and still further to inspire this confidence. It is my pride and pleasure to have been made to feel that my efforts have been in some degree successful. I therefore appeal to the people's representatives to assist in making access to the official records as easy as possible, and I respectfully renew my recommendations of two years ago that the same annual appropriations heretofore made to the Index department be continued, in order that in addition to the performance of the work that will be thrown into it by the 34th General Assembly, the work on the back files and records may be carried on toward completion. I may add that the appropriations necessary for indexing the session aws, journals, reports and documents of all kinds, and for comparing copy, preparing headnotes, editing the laws, etc., is indispensable in some form or another, and my own experience, as well as that of my immediate predecessor, has demonstrated that, by systematic and organized work, more economy with better service can be secured. The work is in experienced hands; the letter and spirit of the law can be and are complied with; accuracy is secured; the files and records are not exposed to loss or injury in the handling by irresponsible parties. Altogether the subject of systematic arrangement, convenient indexing, safety and intelligent handling of the State archives is in my judgment of so much importance that I have dwelt upon it somewhat at length and with much sincerity of feeling.

PAVING AND SIDEWALK.

The Thirty-third General Assembly passed an act providing for the paving of the streets on the East, North and West sides of the Capitol and for the construction of a stone curbing and sidewalk of stone flagging on the East, North and West sides of the State House grounds, appropriating therefor the sum of $25,000, which act contained the following condition:

"Provided, That this act shall be of no force or effect until the city of Springfield shall have completed the construction in a like manner of the curbing and paving of the like remaining portion of the said streets hereinbefore described; and shall also provide for the curbing and paving of Capitol avenue, in a good and substantial manner, from Second street to Tenth street, and for the construction of a good and substantial sidewalk on the north side of Capitol avenue from Second street to Sixth street."

The city of Springfield having complied with the foregoing, on April 29, 1884, I advertised for proposals for paving and for the construction of said sidewalk. Upon opening the bids filed in accordance with said advertisement it was found that there was only one bid for paving, and that by the same parties who had received the contract for doing the paving for the city of Springfield. All the bidders for the paving for the city understood that whoever was the successful bidder would do the paving for the State at the same figure as for the city. The price bid was at $1.38½ per square yard for paving and seventy-nine cents per lineal foot for curbing ten per cent. off for cash. Being the same price as paid by the city of Springfield, and being regarded as a reasonable figure, the contract was therefore let to the bidder, A. J. McBean & Co., of Chicago

There were four bids filed for constructing the stone sidewalk, but upon the examination of these bids it was found that they proposed to furnish bush-hammered stone. Upon investigation I became convinced that for the amount of money that would remain after paying for the paving, a much nicer sidewalk could be constructed than that proposed in the bids; therefore, I refused to accept any of these bids, but gave the bidders notice to file bids for the construction of the sidewalk from first-class Lemont stone, machine dressed, with full end joints and side joints grooved for one and one-quarter by three-eighths inch iron bar. The contract also provided for filling and grading the sidewalk space by the using of coal cinders, finishing off on top with at least three inches of sand, in which stones were to be well and truly bedded, and to build under each joint at ends of, and between stones, a hard brick pier three feet high, twenty-four inches long, and twelve inches wide, on which the stones were to be set in a bed of mortar. The coping was to be of good white lime-stone neatly planed, fourteen inches thick and eighteen inches high. The front side of coping to have at least two inches bearing on edge of flagging, so as to make a neat joint, the body of coping to be supported on piers of brick or stone, put into the ground to a depth of three feet, a pier to be built under each joint of coping, each stone in coping to be of at least eight feet in length, and doweled together with one inch iron.

Three bids were received for doing this work, the lowest of which was that of P. H. Hunt, who proposed to do the work for the sum of $19,450, and therefore I awarded the contract to him.

The following is an itemized statement of the expenditures of the amount appropriated for paving and for the curbing and sidewalk:

BINDING.

There were seven bids received for doing the State binding, which were filed by the following named persons: Enoch Paine, Frank Hudson, Jr., Richard Roderick, H. W. Rokker, Ed. P. Russell, Springfield Journal Co. and P. H. Day.

The contract was awarded to H. W. Rokker, he being the lowest bidder, at the following prices:

First Class.—12 cents per volume irrespective of the number of pages.

Second Class.—15 cents per volume irrespective of the number of pages.

Third Class.—10 cents per volume irrespective of the number of pages.

Fourth Class.—1 cent per 100 pages aggregate count.

Fifth Class.—1 cent per 100 pages aggregate count.

MISCELLANEOUS.

This work consists of the making of pads, ruling of blank books, blank books and binding of blank books.

There were six bids received from the following named persons: Enoch Paine, Frank Hudson, Jr., Richard Roderick, H. W. Rokker, Springfield Journal Co. and Edward P. Russell.

The contract for this class was awarded to H. W. Rokker, he being the lowest bidder, at following prices: For making pads, 3 cents each; ruling per 100 impressions, 10 cents; binding, Russia ends and bands, $6.00 each; binding, Russia back and corners, cloth sides, $2.00 each.

PAPER AND STATIONERY. (FOUR CLASSES.)

Class 1. PRINTING AND COVER PAPER.

For the furnishing of this paper seven bids were received, from the following named persons: Bradner, Smith & Co., F. O. Sawyer & Co., Edwin T. Gillette, P. W. Harts, J. W. Butler Paper Co., Charles Edwards and Harvey M. Harper.

This contract was awarded to Edwin T. Gillette, (at $4.24 per ream for 60 lb. book paper and $2.74 per ream for cover paper,) he being the lowest bidder.

Class 2.—PAPER FOR BLANKS, BLANK BOOKS, ETC.

For the furnishing of the paper called for in this class six bids were received, from the following: Bradner, Smith & Co., Jno. Morris Company, P. W. Harts, J. W. Butler Paper Co., Harvey M. Harper and Edward P. Russell.

The contract for this class was awarded to the J. W. Butler Paper Company, it being the lowest bidder in the aggregate.

Class 3.—STATIONERY AND OTHER PAPER.

For the furnishing of the articles called for in this class bids were received from J. M. W. Jones, Jno. Morris Company and P. W. Harts.

The contract for this class was awarded to Jno. Morris Company, it being the lowest bidder in the aggregate.

Class 4.—OFFICIAL LETTER PAPER AND ENVELOPES.

For the furnishing of the letter paper and envelopes called for in this class bids were received from Aug. Gast & Co., P. W. Harts and Western Bank Note and Engraving Co.

The contract for this class was awarded to Aug. Gast & Co., they being the lowest bidder in the aggregate.

COPYING LAWS, JOURNALS, ETC.

For the copying of the laws, journals, etc., only one bid was received, that being from A. H. Magie, who proposed to do the work at 1½ cents per 100 words.

The contract was awarded to Mr. Magie, as the price asked was considered a reasonable one.

DISTRIBUTION OF LAWS, JOURNALS, Etc.

For the preparing for distribution of the laws, journals, etc., bids were received from James Curtis, P. W. Harts, Adam Doenges and A. H. Magie.

This contract was awarded to James Curtis, he being the lowest bidder, at the rate of $182 per annum.

FUEL.

Bids for furnishing bituminous coal for fuel were received from Capital Coal Co., Springfield Co-operative Coal Co., West End Coal Co., Jno. F. Bretz, Wilmington and Springfield Coal Co., and Speed Butler.

This contract was awarded to Speed Butler at $1.40 per ton, his being the lowest bid.

As was the course followed two years ago, as soon as the advertisement was published calling for "Proposals for State Contracts," samples were procured, as the law directs, of each kind of paper and of each article of stationery required, for the inspection of bidders. The samples of each kind of paper were bound in book form and properly labelled, and each article of stationery also labelled to correspond with the list as published, in order that bidders should have all the facilities and information necessary in making their bids, and to secure exact justice between the State and successful bidders, in accepting or rejecting goods offered for delivery on contract. The samples are on file in this office, and goods furnished on contract must conform thereto.

BIENNIAL REPORT
OF THE
ATTORNEY - GENERAL:
TO THE
GOVERNOR OF ILLINOIS.

DECEMBER, 1884.

REPORT OF THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
SPRINGFIELD, Illinois, December 31, 1884. }

To His Excellency, JOHN M. HAMILTON, Governor of Illinois:

In compliance with the Constitution and laws of the State, I have the honor to submit the following report of the business transacted in and by this office since December 20, 1882, the date of my last report:

At the date of the last report there was pending in the United States Supreme Court two suits involving the constitutionality of the State laws prohibiting extortion and unjust discrimination in the carriage of passengers and freights by railroads. They were entitled Neal Ruggles v. The People of the State of Illinois, and The Illinois Central Railroad Company v. The People of the State of Illinois. Both cases were decided in favor of the State, and sustaining the constitutionality of the law.

A case involving similar questions, but denying that these laws could be applied to railroad companies carrying freight or passengers across State lines, was pending in the courts of the State at the date of my last report. This was the case of The People of the State of Illinois v. The Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific Railroad Company. This case has been decided finally in the Supreme Court of the State, and the doctrine there established, that railroad companies can not unjustly discriminate between individuals or places in the carriage of freight, even though the freight is to be carried to places outside of the State. The case has, however, been taken by the railroad company to the Supreme Court of the United States, on writ of error to the Supreme Court of this State, where it is now pending. If the Federal Congress should fail to pass a law regulating inter-State commerce, this case involves one of the most important questions of the age.

A case involving the constitutionality of the Militia law of the State is also now pending in the Supreme Court of the United States, and will probably be reached for trial at the present term. It is the case of Herman Presser v. The People of the State of Illinois, taken on error from the Supreme Court of this State.

There are also some important cases pending in the Supreme Court of the United States, involving the right of the State to charge or collect tolls for the use of the dams, locks and other improvements made by the State upon and along the Illinois river.

An adverse decision in these cases would forever deprive the State of any means of reimbursement for the large expenditures made by it upon this river. They are the cases of Huse, Loomis & Co., and The St. Louis and Illinois Packet Co. v. The Canal Commissioners. In the United States Circuit Court, the Court,—Mr. Justice Harlan presiding,—decided both cases in favor of the State.

In every case tried in the courts during the last two years, involving a principle of any importance, the State has been uniformly successful.

In all the cases now pending in the United States Supreme Court, however, very important State questions are involved, and an adverse decision in any of them would be very injurious to the State. The State, however, in each case, has the advantage of going into that court on the defensive, and, if its rights are properly asserted, there is no reason why it should not there also be successful.

The laws of the State, both civil and criminal, seem now to be working beneficially. They are becoming well settled by the courts, and better understood by the people. If the criminal laws are not vigorously enforced in any portion of the State, it is believed, the fault lies more with the juries or officers of the law, than with the laws themselves.

The election laws, perhaps, should be thoroughly revised and amended, to better protect the sanctity of the elective franchise, but, aside from this, I know of no changes in the laws that would probably be for the better.

Eighty-seven official opinions have been rendered by this office during the two years last passed, and over two thousand official and semi-official letters written.

In conclusion, I congratulate your excellency upon the peaceful and prosperous administration of the affairs of the State for the two past years. Not a dollar has been lost to the State treasury by the delinquency of any officer or otherwise; and, what may well be said to be an extraordinary matter of congratulation is the fact that, not in a single instance has a suit been necessary against any person doing business with or for the State, to compel a full and complete settlement of all accounts.

Respectfully submitted,

JAMES McCARTNEY,
Attorney-General.

Digest of the More Important Official Opinions Given by the Attorney-General, From December 20, 1882, to Date.

TO THE GOVERNOR.

COSTS—WHEN PAYABLE OUT OF STATE TREASURY.

Expenses incurred in returning a fugitive from justice charged with mayhem, where the accused was acquitted on trial, the offense being punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, or by fine and imprisonment in the county jail, and the law providing that in returning fugitives from justice "when the punishment of the crime shall be confinement of the criminal in the penitentiary, the expenses shall be paid out of the State treasury; in all other cases they shall be paid out of the county treasury,"—in such case the expense should be paid out of the county treasury. This case comes within the class of "all other cases," and the Governor should not certify an account for such expenses to be paid out of the State treasury.

COSTS—RETURNING FUGITIVE FROM FOREIGN NATION.

Upon requisition of U. S. Government.—When the United States Government issues its requisition for return of a fugitive to answer an indictment in a State court, it simply acts as the agent of the State and for the sole benefit of the State. Section 5,278, U. S. Revised Statutes, provides that "all costs or expenses incurred in the * * * securing and transmitting a fugitive to the State or territory making such demand, shall be paid by such State or territory." The act appropriating money for expenses of return of fugitives from justice, is for the apprehension and delivery of fugitives from justice generally.

RETURNING FUGITIVE FROM ANOTHER STATE.

Where a messenger is sent to the State of New York to arrest and return a fugitive from justice, and such fugitive, receiving notice of the requisition, voluntarily returns to this State and surrenders himself, the Governor of this State is not authorized to order a warrant on the State treasury for mileage and expenses of such messenger. This can only be done where there is a certificate from the county judge of the county in which the crime for which the fugitive is returned is alleged to have been committed, that the fugitive has been returned by the person named—the messenger. But under sec. 14, of chap. 60, Rev. Stat., the county board may pay so much of such expenses; etc., as they deem just.

CONDITIONAL PARDON.

The Governor of this State has power to grant pardons after conviction, upon any condition he sees fit to impose, not immoral, illegal or impossible of performance. But a conditional pardon is void and ineffectual unless the conditions are accepted by the person pardoned. In the case of two criminals, confined in the Southern Illinois Penitentiary for burglary; a State paper authorizing their removal to Minnesota to be tried on charge of murder, upon conditions of pardon of the offense for which they were imprisoned in this State if they be convicted of murder in Minnesota, is no pardon at all, and a paper not authorized by our laws, and if they should be removed under it, this State would lose its jurisdiction over them as soon as they crossed its border.

MILITIA.

The surplus of funds belonging to a military company, after paying for armory rent, fuel, lights, insurance, janitor, etc., may be used to pay for uniforms for the use of the company; uniforms coming under the head of "like necessary expenses."

CONTINGENT MILITARY FUND.

The words "unexpended balance of the above appropriation," as used in Sec. 3, of Article 4, of the Military Code of this State, mean any unexpended balance of the whole amount appropriated for military purposes; and under this section such unexpended balance is to be used as a contingent military fund, in emergencies, on order of the Commander-in-Chief.

TO SECRETARY OF STATE.

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

It is the duty of the Secretary of State, under the law, to issue a license, when properly applied for, to organize a corporation under the name of "Western Union Telegraph Company," when his records show that there is no other company incorporated in the State having the same name, notwithstanding it is well known that there is a company of that name doing business in many parts of the country, and all over this State. The Secretary of State is not a judicial officer to hear evidence as to whether a company is or is not properly organized under the laws of a foreign State or country. The laws of Illinois are his guide.

CORPORATIONS—ORGANIZATION.

A corporation can not be organized in this State with less than three members, as the law provides that the corporate powers shall be exercised by a "board of directors," and it can not well be seen how a "board" of directors can be constituted containing less than three.

 TO THE AUDITOR.

WESTERN FIRE, MARINE AND PLATE-GLASS INSURANCE COMPANY.

Upon examination of charter, books and evidence submitted, said company is found to have been sufficiently organized in May, 1869, to give it a legal existence; that it has not ceased for more than one year since organized to transact the business for which it was incorporated, and that it still has a legal existence under its special charter and laws passed since.

NATIONAL BENEFIT ASSOCIATION OF INDIANAPOLIS.

The character of the company must be determined from the business it does or claims to do. A company which does an insurance business, although in connection with other business, is an insurance company, within the meaning of the statute, and must comply with the Illinois insurance laws before doing business in this State. The principal part of the business of this company being accident insurance, the company must comply with our law governing insurance companies.

HOWARD AID AND ENDOWMENT ASSOCIATION.

■ The Howard Aid and Endowment Association, of Indiana, organized on the assessment plan, having in its certificates of membership a provision by which it proposes to pay a sum of money to the beneficiaries of members after the lapse of a period of years, if the member be then living, does not come within the provisions of the benevolent clause of the law in relation to Benevolent Organizations, which does not authorize such disposition of funds raised by assessment of members living, and it must comply with the insurance laws of the State.

LIFE POLICIES—TO WHOM PAYABLE, ETC.

Under the act of 1883, "Benevolent Associations" can not legally issue policies of insurance payable to creditors of member insured; but only to the "widow, orphans, heirs, relatives by consanguinity or affinity, devisees or legatees." The "insurable interest" named in the act has reference to the interest of any of the above named classes of persons, and not that of a creditor.

Policies made payable to persons belonging to either of the classes enumerated in section 1 of said act, can not be legally assigned under the statute. They are not absolute promises to pay, but only conditional promises.

WHAT SOCIETIES PERMITTED TO DO BUSINESS.

The words "permitted to do business," as used in section 9, of the act of 1883, concerning Benevolent Associations upon the assessment plan, which provides that "nothing herein contained shall be held to apply to * * * * * secret organizations having subordinate lodges or councils, which have been organized under the laws of this or any other State, and which are now permitted to do business in this State," mean, permitted in fact, etc., actually having done business in the State, with the express or implied consent of its legal officers. And this law did not contemplate the future creation of corporations to carry out its provisions. Such would be indirectly permitting insurance companies to avoid the obligations of our Insurance laws. The object of this law was to provide for the organization and control of such societies only, as are intended to furnish life indemnity, to be paid by assessment upon the surviving members.

FOREIGN CORPORATIONS—REAL ESTATE.

Section 26, of chapter 92, Rev. Stat., does not prevent a foreign corporation from purchasing and holding such real estate as is actually necessary for the transaction of its business. And if, in order to hold real estate actually necessary to the transaction of its business in Chicago, it must erect or purchase a building containing rooms not suitably located or necessary for the business of the company, it may rent the same to be used in other lawful business, so far as our statute is concerned. The object of the law restricting corporations as to the real estate they may purchase or hold, is to prevent perpetuities and monopolies in restraint of trade.

BENEVOLENT ASSOCIATIONS.

Where the by-laws of a benevolent association provide that upon the death of a member, an assessment shall be levied upon surviving members for a sum not exceeding one dollar each, to be distributed—sixty per cent. of the amount thus raised to the widow, orphan, or other dependent, as directed in deceased member's certificate, and forty per cent. to be divided equally between the two members holding valid certificates next in number, above and below that of deceased member, this feature of the organization is illegal, and obnoxious to the objects of the law giving such liberal powers to benevolent organizations.

Also, the power to pay money collected by assessment by such societies to any "dependent" of deceased member, is not given by the law; nor is power given to such societies to pay money so collected to "any member" of deceased member's "family."

INSURANCE COMPANIES—PARTLY MUTUAL AND PARTLY STOCK.

Our laws admit into this State to do business both stock and mutual insurance companies, chartered by other States, under certain conditions and restrictions; but there is nothing therein to permit a company to do business in this State, that combines some of both these qualities, but neither fully.

LIVE-STOCK INSURANCE COMPANIES.

A company chartered as a company for the insurance of live stock only, does not come under the terms of the law of 1869, which was made to govern fire, marine and inland navigation insurance companies doing business in this State.

REVENUE.

TAXING SLEEPING-CARS.

Where sleeping-cars are run by railroad companies as a part of their equipments, or for their own profit, they should be listed and assessed with the other rolling stock of the company. But to the cars owned and operated by the sleeping-car company, and for their profit, and merely hauled by the railroad company under a contract for hauling alone, a different rule applies. From the opinion in the case of "Irwin v. N. O., St. L. and C. R. R. Co.," 94 Ill. 105, I conclude, that the local assessors should assess all sleeping-cars at the place where the company's office is, when such cars are not in use. A sleeping-car merely running through this State is not assessable in this State. But if its permanent stopping-place is in this State on the first day of May, it should be assessed there. Section 17 of the Revenue Law covers the sleeping-car companies owning and operating their own cars. They are transportation companies, and under that section their cars should pay a tax where they are usually kept.

TO SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.

The "special census" referred to in section 80, of the School Law of Illinois, does not mean a census taken by the school authorities, but a census taken by the State or Federal Government.

FINES AND FORFEITURES—WHEN PAID OVER.

The statute makes it the duty of the State's Attorney "To pay all moneys received by him, without delay, to the officer who by law is entitled to the custody thereof." State's Attorneys are required to report and settle with the County Superintendent on March 1st, annually, as to fines, etc., then in his hands, and pay over same, less fees and commissions then due. He can not hold any such moneys from year to year, in anticipation that the fines, etc., collected by him any succeeding year will not be sufficient to pay his fees and commissions for such succeeding year. Upon his failure to comply with the law, as above specified, he is liable to the penalty prescribed in last clause of section 82, School Law.

If it should appear, on such settlement, that there is due the State's Attorney, for fees and commissions uncollected, any sum of money, it should be allowed him by the County Superintendent out of fines and forfeitures collected by such Superintendent from justices of the peace, which were procured by such State's Attorney. The State's Attorney has a lien on such fines and forfeitures until he is fully paid.

TO WHOM FINES, ETC., PAID.

Clerks of courts of record should pay over all fines and forfeitures paid to them, to the State's Attorney, so that he may comply with the law, which requires him to "enforce the collection of all fines, etc., imposed on or incurred in courts of record, * * * and pay the same over to the school superintendent."

Funds arising from sale of 16th section school lands under the decision in the case of "City of Chicago v. The People," 80 Ill. 394, may be resumed by the State and used for the purposes designated by the act of Congress, "the State being the real owner of the fund to be held in trust for the purposes of the grant;" and in case of a foreclosure of a mortgage to collect a part of such fund the State's Attorney should prosecute as a part of his duty. It is also his duty to prosecute a suit for foreclosure of a mortgage to secure money belonging to the general township school fund, as the action would be to recover money accruing to the board of trustees for the use of the People, or to the school districts of the township in question.

TO RAILROAD AND WAREHOUSE COMMISSION.

A bill of lading from a railroad company, giving the weight of the grain shipped, and then adding the words "more or less" or "subject to correction," would not be a compliance with the law requiring railroads to issue to the shipper, at the time of receiving grain for transportation, "a bill of lading * * in which shall be stated the true and correct weight"; and no shipper could be required to receive a bill of lading containing such reservations. If such bill should be accepted by the shipper, however, it might operate as a waiver of the statute and prohibit a recovery by the shipper for loss in weight. But the shipper could not thus waive the penalty for violation of the law by a railroad company refusing to give a "clear" bill of lading. Such a bill of lading would not constitute a prima facie case against the company giving it, but it should be shown in addition that a clear bill was refused. Commissioners can not compel restitution where a person has voluntarily accepted a bill of lading containing the words above described, as, where a private contract is entered into by a party so accepting the bill above described, the Commissioners are powerless to enforce restitution against it. It is within the power of the Commissioners to compel all railroad companies, whose lines of freight road enter this State, to give clear bills of lading to all shippers.

STATE WEIGHMASTER.

The appointment of a member of the State Senate as State Weighmaster by the Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners, is not in contravention of that provision of the Constitution which provides that: "No person elected to the General Assembly shall receive any civil appointment within this State from the Governor, the Governor and Senate, or from the General Assembly, during his term of office." The law provides for his appointment by the Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners.

SCHEDULES OF RATES.

It is a compliance with the law for the Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners to make or revise schedules for groups or classes of roads, and when a schedule is made or revised for a certain class of roads, it is a schedule for each road within that class: Provided, that the railroads within the State can be so classed that the schedule for the class will be a reasonable maximum rate for each road within the class.

REPORTS OF COMPANIES.

Railroad companies running cars into this State, carrying freight and passengers into and from this State, by using a leased right to pass on the track of another road, may be compelled by the Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners to make the annual reports required by law.

OFFICE FOR TRANSFER OF STOCK.

Railroads using leased lines within the State, as well as those owning lines therein, are required to "have and maintain a public office or place in this State for the transaction of their business, where transfers of shares of their stock shall be made by such railroad corporations upon the request of the owner of shares thereof presenting the certificate therefor," and also to keep books containing the names of stockholders in which the transfers of shares shall be registered."

OVER-CHARGES.

Where a party contracts with a railroad company to deliver freight to him, and the company contracting is compelled to ship a part of the distance over another line of road, and in dividing the money paid for such shipping between the two roads, the second road is allowed a sum which exceeds the maximum rates fixed, and the contracting road a sum much less than the maximum rate, but in the aggregate the price paid by the shipper and thus divided between the two roads, is really less than the maximum rate fixed by the Commissioners for that distance on the class of freight shipped, in such case the shipper has no cause of complaint against the second road over which it was necessary for the contracting company to ship. He had no contract with said second company, and hence it could not overcharge him. The division of the money was no concern of his, so that for the whole distance carried he is not overcharged by the company with which he contracted to do the shipping

UNJUST DISCRIMINATION.

The charging by a railroad company, of a higher rate for a certain distance for shipping a certain quantity of a certain class of freight than is at the same time charged, by the same road, for shipping a greater quantity of the same class of freight a greater distance in the same direction, is a plain violation of the statute against unjust discrimination, and it is the duty of the Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners to prosecute in such case, providing the facts show such discrimination to have been unjust. To be unjust, it must work some injury to some person or locality in the State.

NO DISCRIMINATION FAVORING LARGE SHIPPERS.

While, in England, the courts have held it proper to permit a discrimination by railroad companies in favor of heavy shippers, upon the ground that the interests of the railroad company are to be taken into consideration by the court, it is not so in this country. In Illinois, at least, it is the interests of the people that are to be considered in determining whether discriminations should be allowed in charges for carriage, or not. Railroad corporations, in this country, are presumed to be able to take care of themselves. It is the people that need the protection of the courts. Charging the same or a lesser rate for carrying a larger quantity the same or a greater distance in the same direction, must inevitably injure the smaller shipper or producer, by enabling the wealthy manufacturer, producer, etc., to put his products into market cheaper than can his poorer neighbor; and under such circumstances the wealthier man or corporation must always make the larger profit, and thereby the wares of the heavy shipper or manufacturer can be sold at a less price than those of the small manufacturer or shipper, and hence the discrimination would be unjust to the poorer shipper, manufacturer, or producer. The plain principle to be observed in administering this law (against unjust discrimination) is that raised by the question: Does, or does not, such discrimination injure any person or any place within the State? If so, then it is unjust; if not, then it is not unjust.

TO CANAL COMMISSIONERS.

Unless otherwise limited in the deed, the owners of lands fronting on banks of such a stream as the Illinois river, own to the thread of the stream, subject to the rights of the public to use, unobstructed, the navigable waters flowing over the land. Owners of such frontage have no right to make additional land by filling in upon waters unnavigable, if such filling in any way affects the navigability of the stream. An action of trespass might be sustained against such owner. The United States Government has supervisory control of the navigable waters of the Illinois river, but the Canal Commissioners have the right to erect any improvements which may facilitate commerce, until restrained by the Federal Government. But in all cases where the State, by the Commissioners or others, makes improvements or otherwise interferes with navigable waters or the bed of the river under them, it is with either the actual or implied consent of the National Government. The Illinois river belongs to the State, but is under control of the United States for purposes of commerce alone. It is not the duty of the State to dredge or keep clear of obstructions the channels of navigable rivers or lakes; especially is this true, when the Federal Government has assumed control.

STATE'S TITLE TO LAND CEASED TO BE USED.

The State has no right to the land occupied by the abandoned feeder of the Illinois and Michigan Canal, or to the ninety feet occupied on either side of said feeder, granted by release-deeds, nor to that granted by act of Congress of March 30, 1822. In all these cases, only the use was granted so long as used for the purpose of a feeder.

The Canal Commissioners have no power to lease any portion of the ninety-foot strip on either side of the canal for any purpose.

TO STATE BOARD OF PHARMACY.

ANALYST OR CHEMIST EXPERT.

The Board are not authorized to employ an expert or analyst until complaint is made and a case of adulteration thus called to the attention of the Board. A quorum of the Board should unite in the appointment of an expert. The Board may determine for itself whether or not a complaint shall be in writing; but if made orally it should be reduced to writing and signed by the complaining witness as a matter of precaution.

If the Board publish in any way the result of an analysis, they, in a measure, warrant it to be correct, and are liable in damages if it is incorrect. Whether willful or not, or whether a competent or incompetent analyst was employed, will only affect the measure of damages.

PROPER REMEDY.

For a violation of section 12, of the Pharmacy Act, an action of debt is the proper remedy. Suit should run in the name of "The People of the State of Illinois," and it is the duty of the State's Attorney to prosecute. If conviction is had and penalty imposed, defendant may be imprisoned on ca. sa., until judgment and costs are paid. The complaint required by section 15 of the act is one in writing, signed by some responsible person, and presented to the State's Attorney. A person convicted and imprisoned, as above stated, may schedule his property and be discharged from imprisonment.

JURISDICTION OF JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Justices of the Peace have jurisdiction in suits to recover penalties provided for in section 12 of the Pharmacy Act, where the amount sought to be recovered does not exceed two hundred dollars. Debt is the proper action to recover such penalty. An account should be first filed, and summons may issue on simple request of a member of the Board, their attorney, or the State's Attorney of the county.

TO STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.

When it has been proven that a person has been practicing medicine, it devolves upon him to show that he had a right to practice under one of the conditions specified in the Medical-Practice Act. The Legislature has the right and power to require that a license shall be obtained to practice any profession or follow any pursuit in which dealings are had with the general public, and upon any conditions the Legislature may see fit to impose.

INSTITUTIONS "IN GOOD STANDING."

The State Board of Health have the power and right, under the law, to determine what is a "legally chartered medical institution in good standing."

DENTISTRY.

The State Dental Board have the right to determine who shall be considered as dental students, and employes, who claim to be students practicing under regular dentists, but who, in fact, are practicing dentistry, must have a license. But the person against whom such determination is made may appeal to the courts and show that he is in fact only practicing as a student, and the courts may review and set aside the finding and declaration of the Board.

TO STATE BOARD OF AGRICULTURE.

Under the law of 1883, it is provided that no agricultural society is entitled to the State appropriation until its president and treasurer have filed an affidavit with the State Board of Agriculture that no wheel of fortune or any other gambling device was licensed or allowed upon their grounds. A "gambling device" prohibited by this law is any machine, instrument, article or thing, upon which money, or other valuable article, may be risked upon mere fortunate chance, such as cards, dice, wheels, checks, etc. The prohibition does not include those games which depend upon skill in the player. In addition to this the general law prohibits all kinds of gambling at fairs, and makes the officers liable to a penalty for permitting same, and officers and fair grounds are liable for losses incurred in such gambling.

TO LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEES.

The provisions of the law of 1874, as amended by the act of 1879, are ample to cover all cases where cities desire to abolish city courts established under special charters granted prior to the Constitution of 1870. This law also defines how this may be done.

House bill No. 160, (83d General Assembly) if passed, would be unconstitutional, as it would contravene the provision of the Constitution prohibiting special legislation,—the act being made specially applicable to the city courts of two certain cities only, viz: Aurora and Elgin, in the county of Kane.

TO BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS.

MINES AND MINING.

The act to provide for the weighing of coal at the mines is "a mining law" within the meaning of the law requiring inspectors to "enforce mining laws," and it is his duty to enforce it. He has no discretion to overlook offenses under this act. A violation of the act providing for the weighing of coal at the mines is a misdemeanor, and punishable "by fine not exceeding $100, or imprisonment," etc., as provided in the Criminal Code, Sec. 278.

ESCAPEMENT SHAFTS.

Under the law of 1883, in all mines going into operation after January 1, 1880, the owners, lessees or occupants should commence making escapement shafts and should prosecute the work by constructing at least two hundred (200) feet of such shaft each year until completed, counting from July 1, 1883. If a mine going into operation after the law of 1883 went into effect, was 450 feet deep, the utmost limit of time for construction of an escapement shaft shall be two years and three months, for this is "at the rate of two hundred feet per annum," as the law requires; and the law will not permit owners of mines over two hundred feet in depth to wait until the last year to put down the whole depth of shaft, but two hundred feet must be constructed the first year, two hundred feet the second year, and so on until the whole depth is reached.

TO STATE'S ATTORNEYS.

REVENUE.

St. Mary's Orphan Asylum, of the Catholic Diocese of Peoria, being an "institution of purely public charity," it, and the property connected therewith used exclusively for these purposes, and "not leased or otherwise used with a view to profit," are exempt from both local and general taxation.

CORONERS.

The Coroner of the county in which dead bodies are found lying, or some one acting for him, has jurisdiction to hold an inquest upon cause of death. Corpses which were known to be lying in a mine below the surface of the earth in a certain county, in order to be brought out of the mine, had to be brought through an opening of the mine in an adjoining county. This fact does not give the Coroner of the county in which the opening of the mine exists jurisdiction to hold an inquest upon the bodies. A Coroner's jurisdiction in a county extends to all points within the boundary of his county, and no less to subterranean regions and to points indefinitely above the surface, than to points upon the surface.

FEEES AND SALARIES.

County Judge.—When salary is fixed by the county board with direction when to be paid, it is not necessary to present an account nor that an order be made for a warrant to be drawn. But if anything is left uncertain as to amount or date, an account should be presented, and an order for payment made. Salary of County Judges must be paid out of the general expense fund of the county, and of course out of funds unappropriated. But under act of May 31, 1879, if there is no money in the treasury to meet the ordinary and necessary expenses of the county, the proper authorities shall provide that the warrants shall be drawn in anticipation of collection of taxes already levied to the extent of 75 per cent. of the total amount levied for county purposes. Such warrants should be on order of the county board. A warrant can not be issued unless there is money in the treasury to pay it, except that it specifies that it is drawn on taxes levied and to be collected.

Ex-Sheriff.—It is not the duty of the clerk of a court to collect Sheriff's fees. Neither clerks of courts nor sheriffs have power to pay over fees due an ex-Sheriff. No one but the County Board has power to settle with the ex-Sheriff and to determine and pay him what is due. Any back fees due former sheriffs should be paid to the present Sheriff and by him reported to the County Board.

STATE'S ATTORNEYS FEES.

Change of Venue Cases.—Under law prior to act of 1883, amendment of the act regulating State's Attorneys where change of venue was taken from Adams county to McDonough county, and State's Attorney of McDonough county prosecuted and the defendants were fined and the State's Attorney of McDonough county collected the fine, he would be entitled to retain, out of the amount collected, his conviction fee of five dollars in each case, and ten per cent. of the amount collected, and if fees were due for services in other cases in which fees failed to be collected and for payment of which there was not in his hands money enough from fines and forfeited recognizances then collected, the remainder may be applied to payment of such fees; and any balance after such payment, should be paid to the County Superintendent of Adams county. Such moneys could not be held for and applied to payment of fees subsequently earned.

PRIVATE CASES BEFORE JUSTICES.

A State's Attorney has the right to charge and receive a fee the same as any other lawyer in cases where employed by a prosecuting witness to prosecute a party arrested on a peace warrant.

ALLEGED INSANITY BEFORE COUNTY COURT.

A State's Attorney can not lawfully charge or receive a fee in cases of proceedings to inquire into the question of insanity of a person before the County Court, it being a "prosecution" in which "the People of the State or county may be concerned," and to prosecute such cases is one of his duties under the law.

FORFEITED RECOGNIZANCES COLLECTED.

State's Attorneys are entitled to ten per cent. on all forfeited recognizances collected by them, as a part of "all moneys collected by them," and are not entitled to any fee, as such, on default taken, unless the forfeiture in such case is set aside at the instance of the defendants, in which case the State's Attorney is entitled to five dollars for each person against whom default is so set aside.

FINES BEFORE JUSTICES OF PEACE.

Fines procured by prosecutions by State's Attorneys before Justices of the Peace should be paid by the Justice to the County Superintendent. The lien created by the statute upon such fines in favor of State's Attorneys for their fees, may be kept in force by the State's Attorney stating in his report to the Superintendent how much is due him for fines and commissions uncollected, and by the Justice in his report to the Superintendent stating in each case whether the fine was procured by the State's Attorney or some one for him, or not. In this way the Superintendent may be able to settle with the State's Attorneys, thereby making the lien in favor of the State's Attorneys still effective. In cases before Justices of the Peace where it is the duty of the State's Attorney to appear, if he can not so appear he may appoint another competent attorney to act in his place, in which case the attorney so appointed has the same duties, rights and powers as the State's Attorney would have had, and the Justice should tax the same fee in the costs as State's Attorney's fee.

SEVERAL COUNTS IN INDICTMENT.

State's Attorneys are entitled to a fee for conviction on each count in an indictment containing several counts, provided, that "no fee shall be charged on the excess of counts above twenty in any one indictment.

COMMISSION FOR COLLECTION.

Two things must concur before the ten per cent. commission is due State's Attorneys under the Fees and Salaries Act, to-wit: The money must have been collected by the State's Attorney, and it must have been paid over to the proper authority to receive it.

FROM WHAT FUND COMMISSION IS PAYABLE.

Under Sec. 8, of the Fees and Salaries Act, the commission of State's Attorneys on collection of a sum of money from the bondsmen of a defaulting treasurer can be retained only from the special fund designated by said section, to-wit: from "any fines and forfeited recognizances collected by them."

COMMISSIONS—ON WHAT.

Under the amendment to Sec. 8, Fees and Salaries Act, the State's Attorney has a commission on the fines, but not on costs or fees collected.

CRIMINALS TAKEN FROM PENITENTIARY TO BE TRIED FOR OFFENSES COMMITTED THEREIN.

The law provides that the courts of Will county have jurisdiction over crimes committed in the Joliet penitentiary, and when criminals are taken from the penitentiary under this law to be tried for crime, the defendant is in the custody of the county until his case is finally disposed of, when he should be returned to the penitentiary if his term there had not expired. When a criminal is taken out of the penitentiary to be tried, as aforesaid, the Warden can not receive him again until a final disposition is made of the case under which he was taken out.

ELECTIONS.

When a city council finds in the election returns a sealed envelope bearing a superscription stating that said envelope contains both the ballots and the tally-sheet of such election, and no tally-sheet can be found accompanying such returns outside of said envelope, an emergency exists which justifies the council in breaking the seal of the said envelope; and should they find therein the ballots, unsealed, in any other envelope, they should immediately seal the same in a separate envelope, reserving the tally-list aforesaid, and using it as provided in Sections 62 and 71, Chap. 46, Rev. Statutes.

ISSUING COUNTY BONDS.

The question of issuing county bonds to build a new court house should be submitted at a "general election." The election holden in April to elect township officers in the county, is not such "general election," and the question can not lawfully there be submitted to vote.

SALARIES OF COUNTY OFFICERS.

It is the duty of the County Board, under the Constitution, to fix the amount of compensation of county officers in dollars, and their necessary clerk hire not fixed by statute, and where fees are provided for, such salaries shall be paid out of and shall in no case exceed the fees collected. When the salaries are so fixed by the board, it constitutes a binding contract to pay the same if that amount is collected. The board should fix the salaries of officers whose salaries are fixed by the board at the meeting next before the regular election of officers whose compensation is to be fixed. But in case such salaries are not then fixed, the board shall proceed at the next regular or special meeting to fix same.

COUNTIES—CLASSIFICATION.

Population must be the basis for classification of counties under the Constitution, and the fact of a county being named in the law as being of a certain class does not place it there, unless its population, upon the basis fixed, also places it there. But the Constitution does not require the Legislature to change the classification of counties as the population changes, and if the Legislature does not see fit to change them, they remain in those classes in which they were originally placed.

ESCHEAT OF LAND TO COUNTY.

A county can take possession instantly of any lands of which the owner dies seized without heirs; but no proceedings can be had under the statute resulting in a judicial investiture of the title, until five years have elapsed from the death of the last owner.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES IN PENITENTIARY.

The Penitentiary Commissioners have the power and it is their duty to have such religious services, not sectarian, held in their institutions as they may deem best for the moral improvement of the convicts under their charge, and to compel them to attend such services that they may listen to the doctrines of morality taught by all Christian churches.

INTOXICATING LIQUORS.

The object of the Harper High License law is to prohibit the authorities of cities, towns, villages and counties from issuing licenses, after it took effect, for less than the rate named in the law, and did not attempt to affect licenses already granted. But no license is valid beyond the municipal year in which it was granted.

POLICE POWER.

The Legislature can not so far divest itself of the police power as not to be able to resume it, whether delegated to individuals or to corporations. Hence the Legislature has the right to control and govern the liquor traffic in cities, towns and villages in this State, no matter what provisions and privileges may have been placed in the original charters thereof. A town or city can obtain no vested right in any provision of its charter.

HIGH LICENSE LAW.

All the provisions of the "Dram-Shop Act," including the "High License" provision, apply to every city, town, village, county and township in the State, regardless how incorporated, or, if specially incorporated, what the special provisions of the charter may be.

FINES UNDER DRAM-SHOP ACT.

The Dram-Shop Act specially gives Justices of the Peace jurisdiction to try the cause and enter judgment for the fines only where the total amount claimed does not exceed $200, and to commit the offender to the county jail until the fine and costs are fully paid. This jurisdiction can be exercised in no other way than as described in the act. Therefore the commitment can not be for a specified time regardless of payment of fine and costs.

DISCHARGE OF PAUPER—JURISDICTION FOR.

Where a prisoner has been committed in default of payment of fine or costs, or costs only, by a justice of the peace or any other court, the evidence of estate to pay said fine and costs, or costs only, should come before the court which tried the case originally. The county court has no jurisdiction to hear the evidence and make such discharge in cases originally tried before justices of the peace.

COSTS—IN CHANGE OF VENUE.

Where a change of venue is taken, the county in which the indictment was found is chargeable with the costs to the county in which the trial was had, also sheriff's fees for serving subpoenas after change taken.

COUNTY OFFICERS—PUBLISHING REPORTS.

There is nothing in the statute authorizing any one to interfere with the publication of annual statements of county officers, except the officers themselves, and they may publish such statements in any newspaper published in the county, paying not to exceed the price limited in the law. The County Board can not control such publication.

OBSCENE PUBLICATIONS.

The sensational illustrated papers containing pictures exposing to the gaze of youth of both sexes the limbs and busts of females, in such manner as to excite in said youth immoral thoughts and desires; and which contain advertisements of cards painted with nude pictures, nude photographs of celebrated beauties, obscene stereoscopic pictures, marked playing cards, marriage guides, secret cures for private diseases, sure means of preventing conception, etc., etc., come directly under the prohibition of sections 223 and 224 of the Criminal Code of Illinois, and all persons exposing for sale, or selling, giving away, or having in possession any such newspaper, is liable to a fine of not less than $100, nor more than $1,000, or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding six months.

COUNTY BOARDS—POWER TO REMIT FINES, ETC.

Where the law provides that fines and penalties in criminal cases shall be paid into the county treasury as a part of the general revenue of the county, the County Board may remit or compromise them. But where such fines and forfeitures go to the school fund, the County Board has no control over them. The money obtained by a Board of Supervisors on a compromise of a fine or forfeiture payable to the school fund, is held by the county as money had and received for the use of the person paying it, and belongs to no fund whatever.

INSANE CONVICTS.

The superintendent of insane asylums may exercise the same powers with reference to admission of insane convicts to asylums as in the admission of insane persons not convicts. Section 42, chap. 103, Rev. Stat., is not superior to other provisions, but all must be construed together. Insane convicts have no rights superior to those of law abiding citizens. When they become insane their rights are the same.

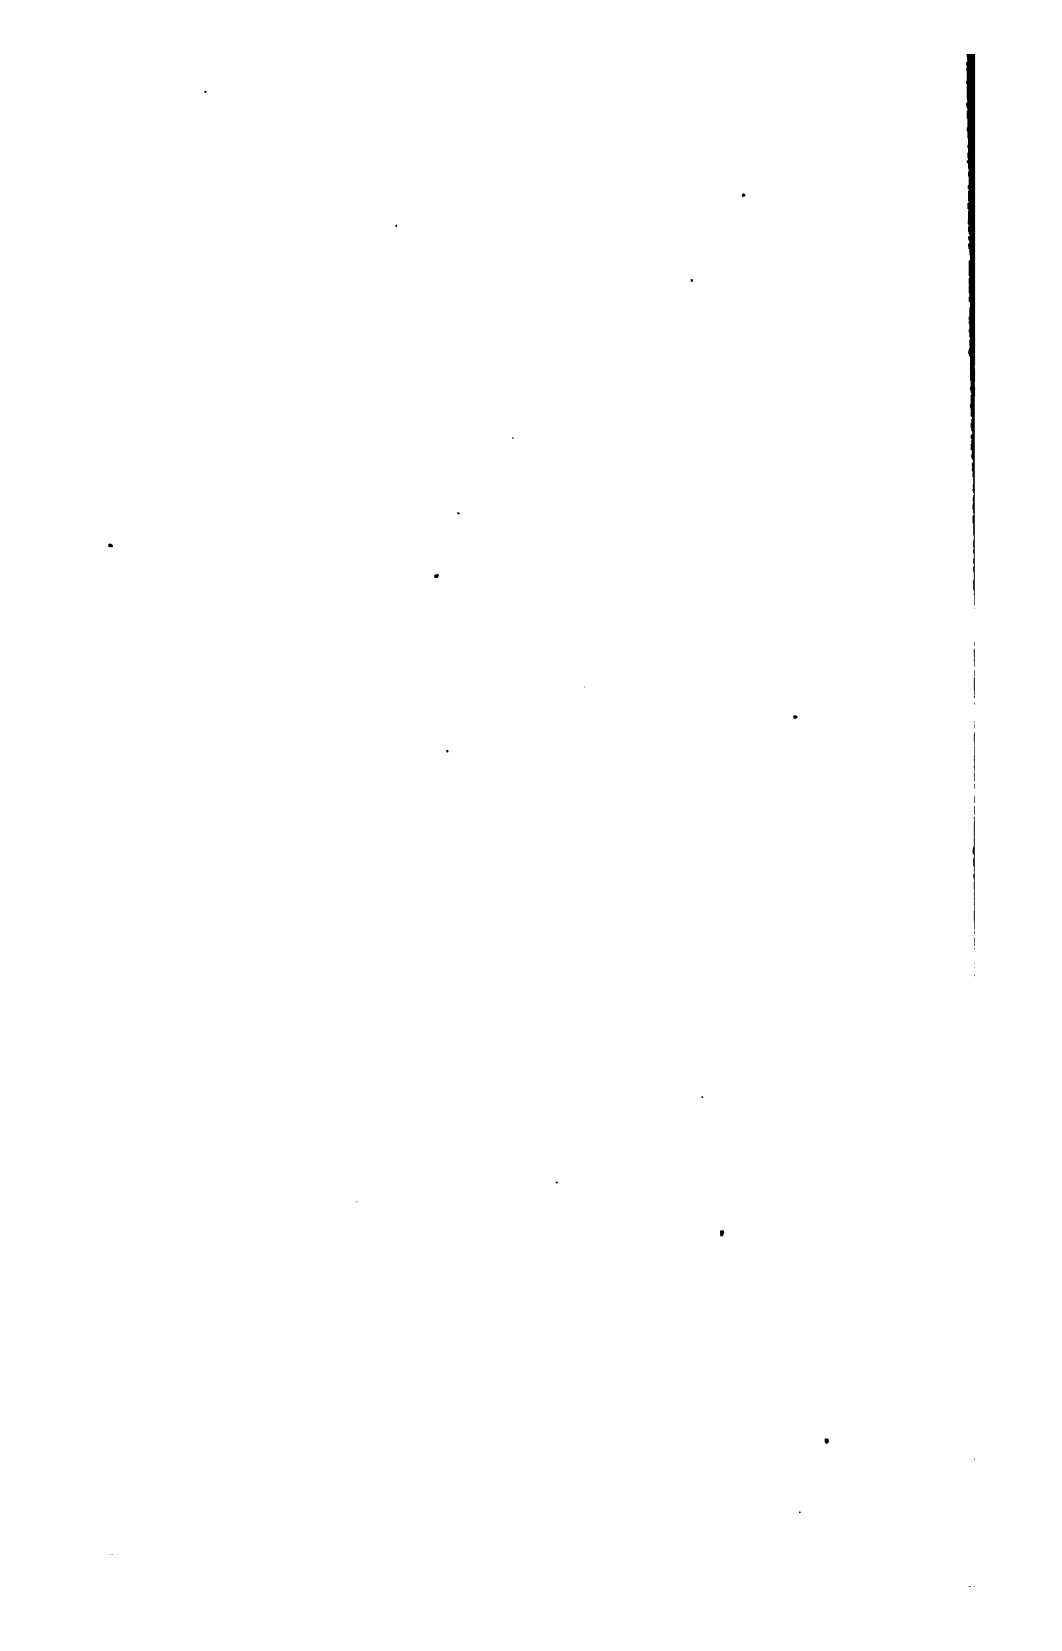

INSANE PERSONS.

Where a person has been "discharged from the Insane Asylum," "recovered," and again becomes insane, a second judicial finding of such insanity, by the county court, is necessary to admit such person again to the insane asylum, although no certificate of former recovery has ever been entered of record in the county clerk's office after the first finding.

BIENNIAL REPORT
TO THE
GOVERNOR AND COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.

REPORT.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF ILLINOIS,
ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE.
SPRINGFIELD, October 1, 1884.

His Excellency, GOVERNOR JOHN M. HAMILTON, Commander in Chief:

SIR: I have the honor to submit the biennial report of the Military Department of the commonwealth, for the years 1883 and 1884.

By authority of your appointment and order of assignment to duty, I assumed the duties of Adjutant-General May 15th, of this year, hence this report covers a period of about eighteen months of the administration of my predecessor, General Isaac H. Elliott.

The organization of the clerical force of this office, the annual inspection of the troops, the collection into the arsenal of the outstanding camp and garrison equipage, ordnance and ordnance stores, the selection of time, place and suitable grounds for the encampment of the troops at an early date, the necessary arrangements for transportation, subsistence and quartermaster supplies for the two Brigades of which the National Guard of this State is composed, the apportionment of the military fund, the examination and approval of the vouchers of a hundred different organizations and headquarters, the examination, approval and payment of the troops in camp upon a like number of pay-rolls, gave me an early and instructive experience in matters of administration, and a powerful incentive to prompt action and energetic execution in accomplishing the task before me.

The necessity of speedily systematizing, folding, briefing and arranging in proper files by brigade, regiment, troop or battery the various reports, returns, bonds, requisitions, vouchers, letters and miscellaneous correspondence, each under its proper heading or subject matter, in yearly or quarterly files, that had accumulated through a series of years, and had been "pigeon-holed" without regard to system or regularity, was forcibly impressed upon me as the only method to secure the prompt and intelligent transaction of business.

The necessity for a system of record books, blanks and returns, adapted to the needs of the service, the promulgation of orders for the instruction, drill, discipline, regulation and government of the troops, made an increased demand for many hours of active and energetic labor upon the part of the already overworked office force.

The department as now organized comprises the Bureaus of Militia, War-Records, Battle-Flags and Trophies.

MILITIA.

The necessity of an efficient military organization in every commonwealth, as an auxiliary in affording protection to the lives and property of its citizens, in preserving peace, order and good government, in enforcing its laws, and in holding in check the violent and turbulent element with which even communities that have attained the highest state of civilization are at times afflicted, is no longer a subject of speculation or doubt in the minds of the citizens of Illinois.

It is true the sheriffs of counties are the conservators of the peace, and may call to their aid in suppressing riots, breaches of the peace, and destruction of property, any person or the power of the county, and yet who is more powerless in the face of an armed mob at its inception than the sheriff, though his posse numbers thousands of unorganized men destitute of arms or ammunition, without training, or the skill to maneuver as a body. When outbreaks of mob violence occur this condition is the invariable rule, not the exception, and is immediately followed by a requisition upon the Governor for the aid of the military. As our community grows older, and our State becomes more populous, there is a corresponding growth of manufactures and other great industrial and commercial interests in our midst, which necessarily call together vast armies of men, with at least the nucleus of organization and some show of discipline.

The suspension of the two great industries of inland transportation and coal mining alone, with many others dependent upon them, may at any moment create an element of great disturbance, if not danger, to society and property, which, if properly organized, might become an ample protection. But in supplying our wants and necessities, each member of society does not undertake to produce his food, clothing, houses and the luxuries of life, but devotes his time and labor to his own specialty and delegates to others to furnish him from theirs.

So while all citizens according to age are liable to serve on the sheriff's posse, or in the militia, all do not desire so to do, and the great majority have an absolute distaste for such service, and do not desire to be called from their farms, banks, stores, shops, factories and various pursuits to perform such duty, but prefer to delegate this important and imperative duty, in their stead, to the organized militia or National Guard of the State, and are willing, from the surplus revenue derived from the additional time thus secured to them in their various industries, to be taxed that the State may organize, arm, equip, uniform and pay for the maintenance of a small but efficient, well equipped and well disciplined National Guard, and declare that it is the duty of the State to prepare its citizens to promptly and effectively meet any and every emergency that may arise.

The experience of the past has taught all military minds the full value of the lesson, "In time of peace prepare for war," and has demonstrated the fact that the most effective step in quelling a disturbance is to be at all times prepared for it. When the black flag is borne through the streets of our cities it will be found to be too late to organize, equip, instruct and discipline protectors of law and order.

ORGANIZATION.

On the 30th of September, 1884, the National Guard comprised (4,939) four thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine officers and enlisted men, organized into two brigades.

The First Brigade comprises the First, Second, Third and Fourth regiments of Infantry, 1st Cavalry, Batteries "C" and "D."

The Second Brigade comprises the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth and Ninth regiments of Infantry, and Battery "A."

There is also one separate company of colored troops: "The Chicago Light Infantry."

This gives a total of nine (9) regiments of Infantry, one (1) regiment of Cavalry, three (3) batteries of Artillery, and one (1) separate company.

The following companies have been disbanded since the last biennial report:

- Company "E," 4th Infantry, S. O. No. 653, Oct. 17, 1882.
- Company "I," 7th Infantry, S. O. No. 677, Nov. 17, 1882.
- Company "B," 9th Infantry, S. O. No. 726, Dec. 18, 1882.
- Company "D," 7th Infantry, S. O. No. 83, May 8, 1883.
- Company "B," 7th Infantry, S. O. No. 108, May 26, 1883.
- Company "B," 6th Infantry, S. O. No. 108, May 26, 1883.
- Company "A," 7th Infantry, S. O. No. 251, Aug. 20, 1883.
- Company "K," 5th Infantry, S. O. No. 334, Oct. 30, 1883.
- Company "D," 3d Infantry, S. O. No. 382, Dec. 21, 1883.
- Company "A," 3d Infantry, S. O. No. 40, Feb. 22, 1884.
- Company "A," 9th Infantry, S. O. No. 60, March 3, 1884.
- Company "G," 9th Infantry, S. O. No. 60, March 3, 1884.
- Company "G," 6th Infantry, S. O. No. 62, March 6, 1884.
- Company "K," 1st Infantry, S. O. No. 136, July 18, 1884.
- Company "G," 8th Infantry, S. O. No. 142, Aug. 1, 1884.

The following organizations have, since last report, been mustered into the service:

- Company "G," 2d Infantry, Chicago, Nov. 11, 1882.
- Company "F," 2d Infantry, Chicago, Nov. 23, 1882.
- Company "H," 2d Infantry, Chicago, Nov. 22, 1884.
- Company "K," 2d, Infantry, Chicago, April 7, 1883.
- Company "I," 2d Infantry, Chicago, June 10, 1884.
- Company "H," 3d Infantry, Rockford, Dec. 28, 1882.
- Company "A," 7th Infantry, Farmington, Aug. 24, 1883.
- Company "G," 6th Infantry, Lacon, May 26, 1884.
- Company "I," 8th Infantry, Vandalia, June 25, 1884.
- Company "A," 9th Infantry, Metropolis, July 15, 1884.
- Company "G," 9th Infantry, Harrisburg, July 15, 1884.
- Company "D," 3d Infantry, Aurora, July 29, 1884.

The number of troops allowed by law is (8,000) eight thousand. The appropriation by the State being insufficient to maintain that number, my predecessor found it necessary to reduce the force to about five thousand officers and men, and this reduction, without an increase of appropriation, has not proved to be sufficient to pay the ordinary expenses of armory rent, fuel, lights, ammunition, transportation, subsistence, the pay of the troops for a four days annual tour of camp duty, and the current expenses of the headquarters of brigades and regiments.

During the past four months numerous applications for the organization of companies and batteries have been received, but except to replace disbanded companies in preserving the regimental organizations, these applications were not favorably considered, for the reason above stated, that the appropriation being insufficient to cover the expenses of the troops as organized, any increase would only impose additional burden upon the officers of regiments and the public-spirited citizens who already contribute so liberally to make up this deficiency.

ARMS AND EQUIPMENTS.

It affords me great pleasure to be able to report that the entire National Guard is now supplied with the United States (Springfield) breech-loading rifle, calibre 45, the steel bayonet scabbard, and the McKeever cartridge box, the same rifle carried and equipments worn by the United States regular army. The troops are yet without canteens, haversacks, knapsacks, or the more modern "clothing bag." The great necessity for speedily supplying these equipments was never more seriously impressed upon me, their long felt want more thoroughly appreciated by the troops, or more perfectly demonstrated by the exigency of this service, than during the disturbances in Madison and St. Clair counties in May and June, 1883. (See report of operations in Madison and St. Clair counties, hereto appended.)

SALES OF STATE ARMS AND ACCOUTREMENTS.

Resolved by the House of Representatives, the Senate concurring herein. That the Adjutant-General be and is hereby authorized to dispose of by sale, in such manner as may be deemed best for the interest of the State, all unserviceable cannon, small arms, accoutrements, and other property now stored in the State arsenal and belonging to the State of Illinois. He is also required to make report in detail of the sale or sales of such property to the Auditor of Public Accounts, which report shall be filed in said office, and all moneys accruing from the sale of such State property shall be covered into the State treasury, and credited to the Military fund.

In pursuance of the foregoing joint resolution, my predecessor, General I. H. Elliott, on the 14th day of May, 1884, reported to the Auditor of Public Accounts, from the net proceeds of said sale, ($2,051.75) two thousand and fifty-one dollars and seventy-five cents. Subsequent sales made by me of remnants amount to ($73.00) seventy-three dollars, to which there will probably be added, from the sale of all remaining remnants about ($30.00) thirty dollars, making the grand total derived from this source about ($2,154.75) two thousand one hundred and fifty-four dollars and seventy-five cents. It was the evident intention of the 33d General Assembly to give the Military department, to which it properly belonged, the benefit of the revenue derived from said sales, from the fact that it directed the proceeds to be credited to the Military fund, and from the further fact that these arms, accoutrements and munitions were not purchased by the State of Illinois, and did not cost the State one cent, but were donated by the General Government for the use of its militia, and this department has accounted for them, in annual reports, to the Chief of Ordnance, from year to year.

I respectfully submit that these arms and equipments, having been replaced by the latest improved arms and equipments from the Government arsenal, several hundred of which have been disabled by fair wear and tear, and breakage in service, and rendered useless for want of a fund from which to purchase spare parts to make repairs, and replace those lost or destroyed, or needed to fully equip the troops, it would be but just for the 34th General Assembly to appropriate this revenue, early in its session, to the credit of this department.

UNIFORMS.

The uniforms of the troops have so far been provided as follows: A few from the savings from the apportionment fund prior to July 1, 1883, and the remainder either at the expense of their own private purses, or from the generosity and public spirit of the citizens where they are stationed. In this connection I can not forego the pleasure it gives me to mention the important assistance given the troops stationed in the city of Chicago by the Citizens' Association, not only in furnishing uniforms and equipments, but in coming to their relief in making up deficits for armory rent, assisting in building permanent armories, and in many other matters of which I am uninformed. I recently heard a prominent officer of one of the Chicago regiments say that the Citizens' Association had given them many dollars to every dollar they had received from the State. No uniform having been prescribed or furnished by the State, each company has generally indulged its own fancy, and the result is that the components of but few regiments are uniformed alike. As much as this is to be regretted, it was not foreseen and has not been remedied.

Believing that a uniform once adopted, and promulgated in orders by the Commander-in-Chief recommending the troops to conform thereto in the purchase of new uniforms until such time as the State will clothe its troops, I obtained your permission to convene a board of officers to select a substantial service uniform. The result is not the recommendation of a fancy or "showy" uniform, but the world-renowned, modest and extremely serviceable uniform of the United States regular army, consisting of dress-coat, a neat-fitting, lined blouse, trousers, fatigue cap, and summer helmet.

It is submitted that those patriotic citizens who, during business hours, perform the duties of citizens in their various trades and avocations, and, after having performed their day's labor, repair to the armories and there devote one or two additional hours of labor to gain instruction in the duties of a soldier, and to prepare themselves to render important service to the State, deserve better treatment from the State than to be compelled to assume the additional burden of providing themselves with uniforms. It is believed that the representatives of the people have not in the past known or sought the sentiments of their constituents in this respect, or they would have long since provided for the National Guard a good, serviceable uniform.

ARSENAL.

The unfavorable consideration of the biennial recommendations of my predecessors, that this building and site be sold, and another erected that would more fully meet the needs of the service, deters me from making a renewal of their suggestions. The expenditure of about three thousand dollars will, in my judgment, pay for renewing the roof on the main building, pointing up the brick-work, painting the walls for preservation, such remodeling as may be deemed necessary, and put the building in such condition that it will answer the purpose of a military store-house for many years.

ENCAMPMENTS.

There can be no question of the great benefit the troops derive from the annual encampments provided by law, or that their continuance from year to year is absolutely essential, if a high state of efficiency is to be maintained. This fact is fully attested by the regular army officers detailed by the War Department to visit and inspect the encampments ordered during the past two years.

It has been my fortune to have been present, either as visitor or participant, at every encampment of the First and Second Brigades since those first held in 1879, when the railroad companies generously donated the transportation and the troops the pay to which they were entitled under the Code, up to and including those of the past summer, when the troops were provided transportation, subsistence and pay for a four days' tour of duty. In that time I have watched with great interest the gradual improvement in discipline, drill, guard duty, military courtesy and ceremonies; and while perfection has been attained in none and guard duty yet but indifferently performed, great improvement has been made, and you have just cause for a pardonable pride in the troops you command.

A comparison between the First Brigade encampment in 1879 and that of 1884 under its veteran commander, Brigadier-General Charles Fitz Simons, demonstrates conspicuously what it is possible to accomplish in five years. The Second Brigade, Brigadier-General J. N. Reece commanding, is composed of regiments made up entirely of separate companies. This brigade was encamped, in 1879, near this city; at Bloomington in 1881, and again at Springfield in 1883 and 1884. Army officers have expressed great surprise that companies formed into battalions but four days each year should maneuver with such regularity and display such proficiency in battalion drill.

I desire to call especial attention to the report of Brevet-Major J. A. P. Hampsen, U. S. army, on the Second Brigade encampment of 1883, and to that of Brevet-Major-General N. B. Sweitzer, U. S. army, on the First Brigade encampment at Rockford, in July, and that of the Second Brigade at Springfield, in August, 1884. If permanent camp grounds could be established for the two brigades, with good water facilities for bathing, rifle ranges for all distances up to one thousand yards, ample grounds for field maneuvers and permanent buildings erected for store-houses and stables, it would prove to be an advance step taken in the interest of economy, saving thousands of dollars annually expended on temporary grounds, rifle ranges, sinks, transportation of equipage, etc., and fully justified by the experience of many of the Eastern States with older National Guard organizations.

COMPETITIVE DRILL.

Colonel James H. Barkley, of the 5th Infantry, aided by other gentlemen, organized a competitive prize drill, to be held in this city, on the 3d and 4th days of July, 1884. Three prizes were distributed to competing companies of the Illinois National Guard. Lieutenants Charles G. Starr, J. B. Goe and Charles McClure, of the U. S. regular army, acted as judges. There were six entries, and the prizes were awarded as follows:

First prize ($500), to Co. "C," 5th Infantry, Capt. Brinkerhoff.

Second prize ($300), Co. "H," 8th Infantry, Capt. Jaquith.

Third prize ($200), Co. "B," 1st Infantry, Capt. Ellis.

TARGET-RANGES AND RIFLE PRACTICE.

In the National Guard of Illinois rifle-practice is as yet in its infancy. The law directs that proper ranges be provided and maintained, but for want of a fund from which to establish ranges and purchase sufficient ammunition, but little has been accomplished.

The most important step, after placing the rifle in the hands of the soldier, is to teach him how to effectively use it. In the regular army this subject is receiving paramount attention.

Perhaps more has been accomplished at the encampments this year than formerly, from the fact that greater facilities were furnished.

Your presence on the range of the Second Brigade, and your qualification as a marksman, doubtless added increased interest on that occasion.

Your attention is respectfully invited to the report of the General Inspector of Rifle Practice, (and, especially, to the extracts from the one of Lieut.-Colonel James M. Rice, Inspector of Rifle Practice of the Second Brigade,) submitted herewith.

INSPECTIONS AND MUSTER.

The annual inspection and muster of the troops was made by Colonel E. B. Hamilton, Inspector-General, in person, whose able and interesting report is submitted.

The reports of the Surgeon-General, Judge-Advocate General, and Brigade commanders are appended hereto, and a careful perusal of the same is respectfully requested.

For convenient reference, I have the honor to append your orders for the instruction, discipline and government of the troops, as these were issued, from time to time, through this office.

APPROPRIATIONS.

Of the seventy-five thousand dollars ($75,000) appropriated for the National Guard for the year ending June 30, 1885, three-fourths is apportioned to the troops for the payment of armory rent, lights, fuel, subsistence and per diem for camp duty; the remaining one-fourth, amounting to eighteen thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars, is all that is set apart for expenses of headquarters of brigades and regiments, equipments, clothing, camp equipage, quartermaster's supplies, transportation and all miscellaneous expenses.

The result of having encamped all the troops this year, for the first time in the history of the National Guard, strictly under the provisions of the Code, has required an expenditure from this fund for extra tentage and blankets alone of the sum of $2,000, which added to the extra transportation incurred, has exhausted this fund, leaving the expenses of headquarters of brigades and regiments, the inspection of the troops in the spring of 1885, and a few miscellaneous matters, unprovided for.

If an appropriation of the revenue derived from the sale of old arms, etc., with an addition of three thousand dollars (\$3,000) could be had and credited to the one-quarter ($\frac{1}{4}$) fund for expenses during the remainder of the fiscal year, the provisions of the law could be fully carried out.

During the month of June, 1884, I had the pleasure of visiting the Adjutant-General's office, State of New York, also the State Camp at Peekskill, which I found to be admirable in all its appointments.

In this connection I desire to express my sincere thanks to Colonel John S. McEwen and Colonel Frederick Phisterer, for courtesies shown me on those occasions.

BUREAU OF WAR RECORDS.

The work in this Bureau is varied, complicated and interesting. During the past two years, to which this report relates, about six thousand letters of inquiry have been received. The character of the information desired, and the purposes for which it is required, are many.

Certificates of service are wanted in lieu of lost discharges, warrants and commissions; dates of commissions and muster, in order to secure additional pay under the late law of Congress; dates, places and circumstances of capture and imprisonment; records relating to disability contracted in the service; addresses of officers and men; copies of orders assigning to extra or special duty; etc., etc., etc. These records are desired to assist in the prosecution of claims for pensions, increase of pensions, back pay, bounties, extra services, lost horses, pay of service as officers between date of commission and date of muster, to secure claims for homesteads, admission to the soldiers' homes, to gratify a pardonable pride in handing down to posterity a record of service in the cause of freedom, and to secure admission to societies organized for patriotic and benevolent purposes. Many of the requests, by reason of insufficient or incorrect information as to company or regiment of the soldier of whose service the applicant requires proof, are difficult to answer, and necessitate the exercise of great patience and labor. Frequently no further information can be given than that the soldier belonged to an Illinois regiment or to a certain branch of the service. Again, all has been forgotten except the name of an officer, or that he died in some prison. Even when the company and regiment have been correctly given it is frequently difficult to complete the record. This work by its nature requires the most careful attention. Upon information from this office depends, perhaps, the relief of a soldier who, too early robbed of strength by exposure and wounds received in the service, will become an object of charity unless he receives from the government the aid to which he is so justly entitled.

Applications for records of this character can not be dismissed until every proof attainable has been found. Considerable information is required to be furnished the War Department at Washington by this office, in regard to commissions, and the letters requesting such information are numerous and constantly increasing.

The commission records of the office in many instances do not show the officer ever to have held a commission, even when he has been mustered and paid, as of that grade, by the government. In such cases we are frequently asked if the State of Illinois does or does not recognize the service of the officer as of that particular grade.

During the last session of the Legislature an appropriation of fifteen hundred dollars ($1,500) was made for additional clerk hire in indexing the records of the war of 1861-1866. Some progress has been made in that direction; the work is still going on and yet is far from being complete. This work is necessarily slow of progress. The printed index, though compact and ready for reference, can not, on account of errors, omissions of names or misprints, be absolutely relied upon, and should not be in giving information for legal purposes, and recourse must be had to original rolls and bulky records; consequently the work of indexing and correcting can best be accomplished by the actual experience gained in giving the current information sought from the office, and with less expense to the State.

To continue this work from the 1st day of July, 1885, to the 30th of June, 1887, an appropriation of two thousand dollars ($2,000) is recommended.

BUREAU OF BATTLE FLAGS AND TROPHIES.

The Thirty-third General Assembly appropriated the sum of ten thousand dollars ($10,000) for the purpose of restoring, repairing, and of procuring cases in which to place for preservation the colors, guidons and trophies belonging to the State. This work has been well done.

The wishes of the Legislature have been faithfully executed and carried out, under the direction and personal supervision of my predecessor, General Isaac H. Elliott, for whom this has been a labor of love, and to whom too much praise can not be accredited for the taste displayed in the artistic grouping of the flags, trophies and relics collected therein. He had shared the danger and the glory of many battle-fields, and felt the priceless worth of these emblems of the Nation's unity as only one can feel who followed them in battle.

I have caused the windows to be appropriately draped with national flags, made right and left, so as to throw together the starry fields, thus softening and subduing the light.

I have also furnished the room with a suitable desk, on which will be found a "Visitors' Register," with columns ruled for name, residence and war service, with pen, ink and blotter at hand, and an invitation to register prominently in view. The room on the Senate and House floor, formerly known as the Art Gallery, has been beautifully decorated and set apart for the use of this Bureau, and is now known as Memorial Hall.

Among the many thousands of visitors registering will be found names representing not only all the Illinois regiments, but those of almost every other State in the Union, and the opinion almost universally expressed is that Memorial Hall is a monument to the patriotism of him who planned and executed, to the Thirty-third General Assembly, and to the people they represented.

In conclusion, I beg leave to submit the following recommendations:

Some legislation is needed to correct the defects of the present Code, the full force of which has long been felt; but for fear of throwing impediments in the way of securing the biennial appropriations, or through a hesitancy as to the advisability of frankly approaching the law makers and stating fully the wants of the National Guard, this subject has been handled in the "kid-glove" style.

The legislation needed is of two kinds, one of which will cost no additional money except that of printing the law.

First: To give the Commander-in-Chief one Assistant Adjutant General with the rank of Colonel.

Second: To give to each Brigade one Assistant Inspector General with the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel; one Inspector of Rifle Practice with the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, and one Signal Officer with the rank of Captain.

Third: To change the term of enlistment from five years to three years, the same recommendation having been made by the Adjutant-General, U. S. Army, to Congress.

Fourth: That each battery and troop be allowed one blacksmith.

Fifth: That Section 1, Article 4, may read: "The commanding officer of each regiment, battalion, company, troop and battery may order weekly evening drills."

Sixth: That Section 2, Article 4, may read: "That the Commander-in-Chief shall order a tour of camp duty of not less than four nor more than eight days annually."

Seventh: That in lieu of Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 6 and 8, of Article 7, the following be enacted: Courts martial for the trial of officers and enlisted men, for offenses against the Military Code, breaches of discipline, or any infringements of the rules or customs of the service, will be ordered by the Commander-in-Chief whenever, and in such manner and form as may be deemed expedient or necessary, and all proceedings of courts martial must be forwarded to and receive his approval before the sentences can go into effect.

Eighth: That Section 1, Article 8, shall read: "All officers and enlisted men of the Illinois National Guard shall receive, when in actual service for the suppression of riot and the enforcement of the laws, and when on duty under orders from the Commander-in-Chief, when it is so specified in said orders, the same pay provided by law for officers and enlisted men of the United States army of like grade, for each day's service actually so performed; said payments to be made on rolls prescribed by the Adjutant-General.

"Section 2. The officers and enlisted men of the Illinois National Guard shall receive one dollar ($1) for each day's service, with transportation and necessary subsistence, at any encampment authorized by law, and in going to and returning from the same, and while under any orders of the Commander-in-Chief, or other proper authority, for the purposes and in the manner herein provided: Provided, nothing in this act shall be construed as to allow pay to officers or men for more than seven days during any one year, except during a time of riot, insurrection or invasion, or while on duty under orders from the Commander-in-Chief."

Ninth: That Section 2, and all that portion of Section 1, Article 10, not heretofore repealed, be repealed.

That there be and is hereby appropriated, to pay the expenses of the Illinois National Guard for the years ending July 1, 1886, and July 1, 1887, the sum of ($150,000) one hundred and fifty thousand dollars per annum. The Auditor of Public Accounts is hereby authorized and directed to draw his warrant on the State Treasurer for the amount above set forth, upon the presentation of proper vouchers, certified to by the Adjutant General and approved by the Governor.

The division of the appropriation into one-quarter and three-quarter funds, and apportioning the latter, has not proven to be in the interest of economy, as it gives an excess over expenses to some companies, and not enough to others.

The State of New York, in addition to providing armories and uniforms, appropriates for the maintenance of twelve thousand troops, annually $300,000; this ratio for five thousand troops would give Illinois $175,000 annually.

Pennsylvania appropriates $220,000 annually for maintaining eight thousand troops; this ratio would annually give Illinois for five thousand troops $145,000.

Massachusetts, for the maintenance of less than five thousand troops, gives annually $150,000. Connecticut, for the maintenance of twenty-six hundred troops, gives $102,000.

After having once uniformed and equipped the troops, the lowest estimate, based on actual experience, in any State for maintenance, is about $21 per man.

Thus it will be seen that if Illinois would give her five thousand troops the amount asked for ($150,000 a year) for two years, it would be sufficient to fully uniform, equip and maintain them, after which the amount might be reduced to one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) annually. If this amount can not be secured, the Guard should be reduced in point of numbers, so that it can be properly provided for under the appropriation.

I can not close this report without expressing my sincere thanks to Captain Theodore Ewert, Acting Assistant Adjutant-General, for his intelligent assistance and faithful services; to Captain John C. Bell, for his industry and care of the arsenal, and to Mr. Charles L. Mooney, in charge of the Bureau of War Records.

I desire to express to you, sir, my high appreciation of the trust and confidence you have reposed in me, to say that the great interest you have taken in all matters relating to the office and the National Guard has served to lighten my official duties, and to assure you that I have endeavored to discharge my duties faithfully, both to you and the State.

Respectfully submitted,

J. W. VANCE,

Adjutant General.

REPORT OF THE INSPECTOR GENERAL.

STATE OF ILLINOIS,
GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, INSPECTOR GENERAL'S OFFICE,
QUINCY, Sept. 30, 1884.

GENERAL J. W. VANCE, Adjutant-General, Springfield, Ill.:

SIR—In pursuance of the requirements of the Military Code, I have the honor to submit this, my report, for the period from the date of my former report of December 1, 1882, to this date.

In obedience to orders, Major Elliot Durand, Inspector of the First Brigade, and Major J. W. Vance, Inspector of the Second Brigade, proceeded and inspected their respective brigades during the months of May and June. They forwarded to me the company muster rolls and inspection reports of the several companies, which, with consolidated tabular statements and reports of the several regiments and brigades, have been forwarded to your office. I assisted Major Durand in the inspection of the troops located in Chicago, and Major Vance as to a few companies, which for want of time he could not reach.

The following tabulated statements show the numbers, composition, present and absent, and totals, also gains and losses of the several regiments, the two brigades and the entire Illinois National Guard, on July 1, 1883:

The following letter of transmittal accompanied the reports of Major Vance:

OFFICE INSPECTOR SECOND BRIGADE,
PARIS, June 28, 1883.

COL. E. B. HAMILTON, Inspector General I. N. G., Quincy, Illinois:

SIR—Herewith I have the honor to transmit the muster rolls, inspection reports and consolidated report showing the strength, equipment and figure of merit of the several commands comprising the Second Brigade.

I am gratified to be able to report a general improvement in the drill and discipline of this command, as compared with that of last year.

A few disbandments have been recommended in special instances where no improvement has been made, and where there was no apparent effort or desire to become better soldiers. Many criticisms might be made and some suggestions could be made for the general improvement of this command. But, as they would be measurably a mere repetition of criticisms and recommendations contained in former reports, I deem it unnecessary to repeat them.

I am, sir, very respectfully,

J. W. VANCE,

Major and Assistant Inspector General, Second Brigade, I. N. G.

As indicated by that letter, a very marked and gratifying improvement has been made by the troops generally since the inspection of 1882. Although a few commands may have deteriorated and been disbanded, or recommended to be disbanded, yet in the main the advance was considerable.

At the request of the Governor, I visited the encampment of the First Infantry at Geneva Lake, Wisconsin, July 18 and 19, 1883. The regiment under command of Col. E. B. Knox had a pleasant camp on the south shore of the lake, and remained there one week. From my observations, I was not favorably impressed with the success and utility of regimental encampments, as compared with brigade encampments.

The Second Brigade, under command of Brig.-Gen'l J. N. Reece, went into camp at Springfield August 13, 1883, and remained for six days. I also attended this encampment, and was in the main well pleased with the location and general appointments of the camp, and the manifest improvements, both as to the camp generally and the various commands, over preceding years. A large percentage of the members of the several commands were in attendance, and, as a rule, manifested very considerable earnestness in the performance of their respective duties. In company with Capt. J. A. P. Hampson, of the Tenth Infantry, U. S. Army, on September 2, I made a careful inspection of the command and camp. Very naturally there was room for criticisms and fault-finding in many minor respects. A sham battle was participated in by the entire brigade creditably, and aroused many old time memories, but I regret to say was accompanied by the usual accidents.

In obedience to Special Order No. 353, dated December 5, 1883, from General Headquarters, and the instructions of Adjutant-General Elliott, upon due notice both by telegraph and mail, I proceeded to Aurora, and on Dec. 8, 1883, made a special inspection of Co. D, 3rd infantry, commanded by Captain M. G. Stolp, and the condition in which I found the company, in every respect, was such, under the order given me, as to require my taking possession of the arms and State property, and recommending the disbandment of the company. I made a special report of the matter to General Elliott.

In view of the labor and expense of making a second regular inspection of the whole force a second time in the year, upon a consultation with Adjutant-General Elliott, and for the purpose of a more recent basis for the semi-annual distribution of the military fund than the inspection report of July 1, 1883, it was deemed advisable to require a muster and inspection of each regiment, battery and company by the respective commanders thereof, and to require proper reports upon blanks furnished, to be made through me, such reports to be used in connection and comparison with the rolls furnished by me last July, in making the distribution.

By the personal direction of General Elliott, I proceeded to Chicago and superintended the inspection of the various commands located there. Special reports of that inspection as to the several commands were duly made to the Adjutant-General's office. The following tables show the strength, present and absent, and losses of the regiments and batteries, the two brigades and the whole force, as of December 15, 1883:

Having had but little opportunity to see and observe the several commands personally heretofore, and for the purpose of becoming more intimately acquainted with them, seeing them at their own homes, and taking notes of their wants, as well as their proficiencies and deficiencies, I determined to make the inspection myself. After making up my routes and giving the various commands notice of the time their inspection would take place, early in May I started upon the very arduous task, and spent the most of the months of May and June in making the round. A detailed account of my tour of inspection, with observations, commendations and criticisms upon the respective commands, would doubtless interest you, but would extend this report beyond the limit I desire. Suffice to say my reception by the military generally was most cordial; that I received a better idea of the militia of the State and the merit or demerit of the commands respectively, than I had ever before had. Finding that my time was too limited to complete the entire inspection before July 1, at my request Major E. Durand, Inspector of the First Brigade, assisted me, by inspecting seven companies of the 3d regiment and two of the 2d Infantry. Muster rolls, special inspection reports with criticisms and recommendations, have already been forwarded to you. There are some points which I shall notice later.

Following I give a series of tables showing the companies, their locations, and commanders composing each regiment, battery and independent company, the present, absent and totals, losses and gains, and per cent. present at the inspection prior to July 1, 1884; also like tables showing the strength, composition, etc., of the brigade and of the entire Illinois National Guard, as of July 1, 1884. As will be observed by my General Order No. 2, appearing herein, the comparison in this inspection as to losses and gains was made with the inspection of July 1, 1883, the aggregates of that inspection and muster being taken as a basis, as the muster of December 15, 1883, was deemed informal.

On the 4th of last July I attended a competitive drill which took place at Springfield between Co. "C," 6th Infantry, Capt. Reed; Co. "C," 5th Infantry, Capt. Brinkerhoff; Co. "H," 8th Infantry, Capt. Jaquith; Co. "B," 5th Infantry, Capt. Crooker, and Co. "B," 1st Infantry, Capt. Ellis. The programme for drill was a severe one, and well calculated to test the readiness of the officers, as well as the merits of their commands; and I am sure that those who witnessed the contest were more than pleased at the perfection evinced by those companies. They were honorable representatives of the Illinois militia. Co. "C" (Governor's Guard), Capt. Brinkerhoff, was the merited captor of the first prize.

The First Brigade went into camp for one week in July last, at Rockford, and, at your request, I visited the same. The location was about a mile and a half from the city, on the west bank of Rock river, and in many respects a beautiful one, but not entirely suitable to the purpose, the parade ground being separated from the camp by road and fences, and neither camp ground nor parade ground being of sufficient extent for the number of troops. The troops in camp were the 1st Cavalry, 1st, 2d, 3d and 4th Infantry, and Batteries "C" and "D," all under command of Brig.-Gen. Charles Fitz Simons. This was the first real encampment of this brigade, as a brigade; but its completeness, the earnestness, enthusiasm, attention to duties, excellence manifested, and success attained, are highly creditable to Gen. Fitz Simons and the officers and men of his command.

No opportunity was afforded me for a minute inspection of the command; but as I saw the various commands upon battallion drill, dress parade and in the grand review, I was pleased with their soldierly bearing and perfection.

The 1st Cavalry, under command of Lieut.-Col. D. Welter, in new uniforms, by the well-filled ranks, the perfection in drill and thoroughness in duties, attracted attention, and deservedly received high commendation from all who witnessed the regiment in camp or on duty. Without unjust comparison, I think I may safely say that this regiment has battled with more adverse circumstances and achieved greater success than any other command of its numbers in the service. The officers and men have displayed indomitable energy and perseverance, and deserve especial consideration.

Battery "D," under command of Major E. P. Tobey, well manned and mounted, evinced its usual perfection.

Those regiments which appeared in fatigue uniforms presented a much more solid and soldierly appearance than those where each company had a different dress.

The Second Brigade, under command of Brig.-Gen. J. N. Reece, was encamped at Springfield from August 6th to the 11th, and by your direction I also visited the same. The troops in camp were the 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th and 9th Infantry, Battery "A," and the Chicago Light Infantry (colored). The camp was in a level field, affording room for a systematic arrangement of the tents of the command, and an excellent parade ground, with a 500-yard rifle range near by. I had ample opportunities and facilities afforded me during this encampment to observe and inquire into the entire workings of the camp, and have to say that the camp was admirably planned and laid out; that the brigade drills and guard mounting, dress parades, regimental parades, battalion drills, and guard mounting, company and squad drills, the camp guard, policing of camp, and, in fine, all the routine of camp duties were conducted and performed in such quiet, systematic and regular manner as would have done credit to an army in active service. The discipline of this camp was so remarkable that there were no infractions of it worthy the notice of a court martial. The grand review by Governor Hamilton of the brigade, and the street parade, were, I think, without question, the finest military displays seen in the State since 1865, and I doubt if they were ever excelled in the State.

The rifle practice was conducted in the most systematic and efficient manner, under the supervision and direction of Col. J. A. Shaffer, of the Governor's staff, and Lieut.-Col. J. M. Rice, of Gen. Reece's staff.

On Sunday morning, August 10, in company with Lieut.-Col. N. B. Sweitzer, 8th Cavalry, U. S. Army, I made a thorough inspection of the entire brigade, and of the camp, quarters, quartermaster and commissary departments. The sanitary condition of the camp and quarters was excellent, and the troops were bountifully provided for by the quartermaster and commissary. The healthfulness of the camp, as well as the quality and cooking of the food, was evidenced fully by the few very trifling cases of illness reported. Of course, on the inspection of the troops, their uniforms, guns, equipments, etc., there were many errors and mistakes on the part of field, staff, company and non-commissioned officers, as well as privates, and many opportunities for criticism; had it been otherwise, it would not have been the inspection of a brigade of militia. In inspecting such a force, much allowance must be made for the newness of many officers, who have not learned their duties, (as well as the oldness of others, who have forgotten or never knew theirs), and that large numbers of the men are recruits, never having engaged in, or witnessed, such a performance before. But many companies acquitted themselves in a highly creditable manner. The arms were generally in good condition, and the uniforms neat, and general appearance of men and companies excellent. Taken as a whole, the inspection, under all the circumstances, was very creditable, surpassing that of any former encampment of the Illinois National Guard.

The one serious drawback in the appearance and effectiveness of this brigade is the great variety of variagated uniforms. It is almost impossible to equalize companies for battalion drills, from the fact that there are so many different uniforms in a regiment; and a regiment, or the brigade, when out in line, presents a very motley appearance, detracting very much from its other excellent qualities. The commanders of the 5th and 6th regiments have endeavored to have the companies of their respective regiments uniformed alike, and this gives those regiments a much better and more effective appearance when on duty; and they may be safely said to be the better regiments of the brigade.

Battery "A," of Danville, Capt. E. Winter, is one among the best organizations in the State.

The Chicago Light Infantry (colored), Capt. Alex. Brown, which was temporarily assigned to this brigade for the encampment, by the soldierly bearing, perfection and general appearance of its officers and men, and as a company, is worthy of mention; and there are several companies in the service which might with profit emulate this command.

The perfection of the arrangements of this camp, the thorough discipline, and the performance in detail of all the duties of the camp, speak in the highest commendation of the commanding and executive ability of General Reece, and his efficient staff. The office of his Adjutant General, Lt. Col. Chas. F. Mills, was conducted very quietly, but effectively. Captain W. F. Smith, Brigade Commissary, provided for the men in a prompt and bountiful manner, while Captain J. C. Bell, Quartermaster, was untiring in his zeal and devotion to the wants and comfort of officers and men. Major W. S. Brackett, Brigade Inspector, and Lt. Col. J. M. Rice, Brigade Inspector of Rifle Practice, were constant in their endeavors and duties. In mentioning these officers, I do not desire to slight the other members of the staff, for all seemed to vie with each other in their efforts to make the encampment a success. But in behalf of Major Hughes, Surgeon, and Lt. Col. W. J. Fort, Judge Advocate, I must say, that the health and discipline of the camp were so perfect, that there was no fair test of their respective skill and ability. I received especial facilities, services, and attentions from General Reece and the members of his staff during this encampment.

There are many suggestions and criticisms, as to improvements and imperfections, which I might make "for the good of the service," but to point all such, would exceed the bounds as well as the objects of this report. But a few suggestions may not be out of place.

I would suggest the careful perusal of "Upton's Tactics" and the "Army Regulations," as a matter of benefit to many of the officers and their commands, as they may therein find something new to them, and much good reading.

In my tour of inspection much complaint was made by the company officers and men, that the regimental officers never visited the companies, or paid any attention to them, which complaint was very properly made and deserved. All through the service I find promotions frequently spoil good under-officers and men. A good private soldier is promoted to a non-commissioned office, and at once conceives he has nothing more to learn, and becomes worthless; a first class non-commissioned officer receives a commission, and the height of ambition and elysium of happiness are reached,—he wants nothing more here below but a bright sword, new uniform, plenty of buttons and braid,—his mission is fulfilled, and he becomes a failure as an officer. And also, many excellent company officers are promoted to be regimental and staff officers, and they at once forget by what process, whence and from whom they received their elevation, and thereafter ignore the companies. Regimental commanders and field and staff officers should visit the companies of their regiment regularly and often, become acquainted with company officers and men, and in this way they would encourage companies and officers, show that they had an interest beyond getting a higher rank, instruct them, work up enthusiasm and better feeling, and do a great deal of good, not only to the companies, but to the service generally.

In my inspection of the Eighth Infantry, I was accompanied by Col. R. M. Smith to a number of his companies, and the effect of his presence upon, and his assistance and instructions to, those companies was very marked. Commanders of regiments or some of their field officers should make a point to attend the inspection of every company in their respective regiments.

The most serious drawback to the efficiency of many companies is the constant changes which take place by the removal or discharge of men. In many companies a large proportion of the men inspected one year, by the next inspection will be "removed from the State," "dropped," or "discharged," and new recruits in their stead. And while this seriously militates against the proficiency of the companies so suffering, it cannot well be avoided, except somewhat by the exercise of greater care in taking in recruits. But I do not count this a loss to the State, for, in time of actual need of the militia, large numbers of these same men would rush to their old commands, and be efficient from their former schooling.

A great source of annoyance and difficulty which I experienced in making the "inspection and muster," was the want of care of many officers in "attention to orders," in keeping proper books, and in enforcing promptness and discipline on the part of their men, and in seeing that their muster-rolls and accounts are properly made out, and men and property accurately accounted for. Many company commanders make out a skeleton muster-roll and then expect the inspecting officer to complete it, or to make it to suit himself. Many officers keep no account of men recruited and lost, or dates, or how lost or gained, but depend upon their very defective memories. So when the inspecting officer, in the goodness of his heart, tries to complete the thing presented to him as, and called, a muster-roll, and says to the captain, "When did this man join your company, or when did you lose that one?" the captain says to Bill, or Tom, or sergeant, or corporal, "When did Jones join, or when did I discharge Smith?" and so on, and they all scratch their heads and guess, and the inspector says dismal things, and gets along the best he can;—and having thus got along this time, the captain breathes easy and thinks no more of the matter until it is repeated the next year. Every company commander should be furnished with proper descriptive and account books, and be required to keep them properly, so that at any time he could account for men or property.

Many company commanders carry on their rolls from time to time men whose time has expired, who have left the district, or ceased to be members. This should not be done. It is bad for two reasons: it swells their numbers beyond their real strength, and cuts down their percentages in attendance, etc. The rolls should be kept clear of the names of all but the real, active and efficient members of the command, and should be made to balance the same as a ledger account. The officer who has not the care or capacity to make out his muster-rolls properly gives little promise as an efficient company commander.

Another trouble which I met, and which should be covered by rigid orders, is that of commanding officers failing or neglecting, during their absence from home, to leave any one in their stead in immediate command, or with proper notice to postmasters to whom official mail shall be delivered in case of their absence. I experienced serious difficulty from this source.

Many company commanders seem to think that they are only figure-heads to wear a nice uniform, and fail to appreciate the necessity for their troubling themselves about the enforcement or observance of discipline, and seem to have no care for the personal appearance of the men of their command. Men who have no pride in their personal appearance, as a rule, are not good soldiers; and if the men have not the pride and the care, the thought for themselves, the commander should surely cultivate and enforce it in them. It is the small things which go to make up the good appearance of a company; and officers should see that, when the men fall into ranks, their personal appearance is correct, and not wait for the inspector to scold the men; the company officers should be the disciplinarians, and not the inspector. The wearing and display of huge and gaudy neckties, immense watch-chains, colored shirts and variegated collars, and other unmilitary ornaments, should be rigidly abated by company commanders. And one of the most abominable habits, not only tolerated, but unnoticed, if not participated in, by some company officers, is the chewing of tobacco and spitting by the men while in ranks. While inspecting Company C, 9th Infantry, I was compelled to send from the ranks one insolent man for his perverse filthiness in this regard: and with Company G, 8th Infantry, so many of the company persisted in deluging the floor of the armory with tobacco juice, that I was obliged to threaten to cease the inspection if they did not stop. The captain then "braced up," and said to his company: "Men, please stop chewing tobacco." (The company and officer are not now in the service.) The motley appearance of the many colored, and cuts of, collars should be obviated by each company adopting a neat, uniform, standing collar.

To my mind the most serious drawback to the general appearance, as well as efficiency, of our militia is the want of uniformity in the uniforms. Every company exercises its own good, or bad, taste in the selection and procurement of its uniform; so that when a regiment or brigade assembles, we have such a multiplicity and variety of un-uniform uniformity as is truly astounding. The elegant cadet-grey, or the better regulation blue uniform, costing perhaps $:0 to the man, is thrown in line beside the blue shirts with broad, yellow collars, or with butternut knit jackets, worth $8.50 or less, and the tout-ensemble is ridiculous. The only way to obviate this, is for the State to adopt a neat and serviceable uniform and furnish it to the commands. This should be done at once. Men who stand ready at all times to take their guns and their lives in their hands, and go forth to defend the State, its property, the property and lives of the people, and to enforce the laws, should not be expected, much less required, to pay for their own uniforms to be worn out while in the State's service, or while preparing themselves to be capable and efficient when wanted. And I can not urge too strongly the necessity of the State furnishing to the Illinois National Guard uniforms, and all equipments, including overcoats, pouches, knapsacks, haversacks, canteens and blankets.

In my opinion the Illinois National Guard is in the best and most efficient condition it has ever been. With but little trouble we could have on the cars and ready for transporting to any point, upon ten hours' notice, from 3,000 to 3,500 well armed, uniformed and disciplined men, in case the State demanded their services; and they could be relied upon. If the State would do a little more, and only what it ought to do, we would soon have as effective and well organized militia as any State in the Union.

During my tour of inspection over the State I received marked attentions and courtesies, and desire to acknowledge the same, from many of the officers and commands, and among them are: Col. C. M. Brazee, 3d Regiment, Major Starr, Capt. Ryan, Capt. F. C. Pierce, Co. "H," Capt. F. G. Lawler, Co. "B," Capt. Lohr and his officers, Co. "C," Capt. Smailes and his officers, Co. "E." Col. Fred Bennitt, 4th Regiment, Major J. T. Heffernan, Capt. Smith and his Company "G," Capt. Ingles, Co. "F." Capt. S. W. Denny, Co. "D," 5th Regiment, Capt. Fruitt and his officers and men, Co. "F," and Capt. Ellwood, Co. "G." Col. Wm. Clendenin, 6th Regiment, Major DePue, Capt. Stire, Co. "G," Lieut. McFadden, Co. "D," Capt. Henry Abeil, Co. "A." Col. C. A. W. Fash and Lieut.-Col. Elder, 7th Regiment. Col. R. M. Smith, 8th Regiment, Capt. Goudy, Co. "A," Capt. Haines and officers, Co. "D," Capt. C. V. Jaquith, Co. "H." Col. L. Krughoff, 9th Regiment, Lieut.-Col. R. B. Stinson, Capt. English and his Company "H," Capt. Akins, Co. "K." Major E. P. Tobey and officers, Battery "D," Capt. Brown and company, Lieut.-Col. Fort, Lieut.-Col. Rice and Major W. S. Brackett, of Gen. Reece's staff, and Col. J. A. Shaffer, Gen. L. Schaffner, of the Governor's staff, and General I. H. Elliott, late Adjutant-General.

I am under especial obligations to you, sir, for the kindly assistance and courtesies extended to me by you, both as Brigade Inspector and as Adjutant-General.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

E. B. HAMILTON,

Inspector General.

REPORT OF THE SURGEON GENERAL.

HEADQUARTERS, ILLINOIS NATIONAL GUARD.
SURGEON GENERAL'S OFFICE,
SPRINGFIELD, October 20, 1884.

J. W. VANCE, Adjutant-General of Illinois:

GENERAL: I have the honor to submit to you this, my biennial report of the Medical department of the Illinois National Guard, for the years 1883 and 1884. In my last report I mentioned the great difficulty I experienced in obtaining semi-annual reports as required by military code, and expressed the hope that I would have no trouble in the future in this direction. But I regret to say that I was disappointed; that the trouble still exists, almost if not as bad as in the past.

It seems to me that there is an entire lack of appreciation among many of the medical officers, of the necessity of making semi-annual reports. There can be no excuse, except that of indifference, neglect and lack of interest.

Brigade surgeons write, "I am unable to procure reports from regimental surgeons and consequently can not make my reports to you. Inquiry among regimental surgeons reveals the general excuse for their delinquency in making their reports, to be, that they can not obtain the necessary information in regard to deaths, casualties and discharges (for disability) occurring in their respective regiments, and consequently can not make their reports."

I can see only one remedy for this condition of affairs. Regimental surgeons should keep themselves well informed, through regimental headquarters, of all the information necessary for the making of their reports.

If there are any surgeons unwilling to do this, they should resign, as their connection with the department is no benefit, but an injury.

ENCAMPMENTS.

The encampment grounds of the First Brigade, at Rockford, and of the Second Brigade, at Springfield, were well selected, high, dry and well drained, with surroundings in good sanitary condition.

The medical department of the First Brigade was under the supervision of Brigade Surgeon John W. Streeter, and that of the Second Brigade, under the supervision of Brigade Surgeon I. S. Hughes. I take pleasure in testifying to the efficiency of these officers. Under their constant and watchful care, ably supported by their subordinates, the sanitary condition of the camps was simply unsurpassed in the history of encampments of the Illinois National Guard. That this is true is shown by the fact that of the 4,000 men in camp, no serious sickness occurred during or as a result of the encampment.

The prevailing diseases during encampments were malaria and gastro-intestinal disturbances, a natural result of exposure to rain, dew, hot weather, change of food, water, etc.

More than usual care was exhibited by the medical officers in looking to the welfare of the men, and in keeping the camps in good sanitary condition.

The sinks were located far to the rear, and were covered with fresh earth, daily.

The food was inspected daily, to ascertain if it was good, and properly cooked, which I am pleased to say was found to be good, both in quality and cooking. Drinking water was in abundance, and of good quality.

No debris was permitted to remain scattered about the grounds or quarters, but was collected in piles and promptly removed. Cleanliness was noticeable throughout both camps, and to this fact can be attributed in a great measure the general good health of the men.

The medical officers are entitled to much credit for their untiring efforts in looking after the welfare of the men, and keeping the camps in good sanitary condition.

BRIGADE SURGEONS' CONSOLIDATED REPORTS.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST BRIGADE, I. N. G.
CHICAGO, ILL., July 20, 1884.

To Col. J. N. Dizon, Surgeon General:

SIR—I have the honor to submit to you a consolidated report of the sickness, casualties and deaths which occurred during the encampment of the First Brigade, Camp Fuller, Rockford, Illinois, July 14 to 18, 1884.

Total number sick, 185. Total number casualties, 5. No deaths. The casualties were of a mild character,—incised and contused wounds. There were two cases of pneumonia, and three cases of sunstroke. The remainder were malaria, and gastro-intestinal troubles, diarrhoea and dysentery. The camp was well located, high, and well drained, the water good, from "drive wells," the food all that could be desired, excepting the first issue of coffee, which I condemned. The weather was delightful, but the nights were cold and very damp. The remarkably heavy dews caused most of the sickness. The Third Regiment reported the greatest number sick. Four surgeons and four assistant surgeons reported for duty. I take pleasure in reporting that these officers performed their duties cheerfully and thoroughly, both in a professional and soldierly manner, with credit to themselves, and to the entire satisfaction of the commands to which they belonged.

I am, very respectfully, yours,

JOHN W. STREETER,
Major and Surgeon First Brigade, I. N. G.

HEADQUARTERS SECOND BRIGADE, I. N. G.
 SPRINGFIELD, ILL., August 15, 1884.

To Col. J. N. Dixon, Surgeon General:

SIR—I have the honor to submit to you a consolidated report of the sickness, casualties and deaths which occurred during the encampment of the Second Brigade, Camp Logan, Springfield, Illinois, August 6 to 11, 1884.

Total number sick, 441. No casualties. No deaths. The prevailing sickness was malaria, diarrhoea and dysentery. The majority was of malaria, which was very prevalent. The gastro-intestinal disturbances were caused by change of food, water, and hot weather. Although a large number reported at morning sick-call, but few were confined to their quarters, and none to the hospital. The camp was elegantly located, high and dry, with an abundance of good water. The food issued was of good quality, and well cooked. The sanitary condition of the camp was excellent, and much care was exercised in keeping the camp clean—free from all debris. Two surgeons and five assistant surgeons reported for duty. It affords me pleasure in testifying to the efficiency of these officers, and the manner in which they performed their duties, giving entire satisfaction to all. Much credit is due them for their efforts in keeping the camp grounds in good sanitary condition.

Respectfully yours,

I. S. HUGHES,

Major and Surgeon Second Brigade, I. N. G.

Owing to the non-appointment of surgeon for First Brigade, and the absence of surgeon of Second Brigade, no reports were made of encampments of 1883.

In my last report, I called attention to the fact that the medical department was entirely destitute of necessary supplies, such as medicine chests, surgical instruments and fracture splints, and asked that the department be furnished with these supplies, setting forth the necessity of the same. I am pleased to report that, through your kindness and efforts, the department is now well equipped with all necessary supplies. Upon your order, I had made five medicine chests, sufficient in size to contain a small stock of medicines and miscellaneous, one case of general operating surgical instruments, and one set of fracture splints. The cost of these articles are as follows:

Five medicine chests, $7.00 each.....	$35 00
One case of surgical instruments.....	85 00
One set of fracture splints.....	18 00

The medicine chests, when filled, contain a small, but well selected stock of medicines, empty vials, corks, surgeon's lint, muslin, shears, spatulae, graduate glasses, pins, rubber and isinglass, adhesive plaster, towels, empty pill boxes, teaspoons, sponges and powder papers, at the cost of $18 each.

MANNER OF DISBURSING SUPPLIES.

Twenty days prior to an encampment, the Brigade Surgeon makes requisition upon the Surgeon General for one (1) medicine chest (filled complete) for each regiment in the brigade; one (1) case of surgical instruments and one (1) set of fracture splints, giving his receipt for the same. The instruments and splints are kept at Brigade headquarters. Each regimental surgeon is furnished with a medicine chest and from this he dispenses the medicine. At the close of the encampment the chests and contents remaining unused are turned over to the Brigade Surgeon, who in turn delivers all supplies to the Surgeon General. The Surgeon General turns over the same to the Adjutant General for storage in the arsenal, until again needed, when the chests will be resupplied with those medicines which were partially or entirely consumed when last used. In recommending that the medical department should be furnished with those supplies, one of the inducements offered was that it would be less expensive than the old way of purchasing a stock of medicines for each encampment.

The bill for medicines used during the encampment of Second Brigade, 1883, when the medicines were purchased as above stated, amounted to $77. During the encampment of the same brigade this year, 1884, medicine chests were furnished costing $93. At close of encampment, invoice of medicines in chests, remaining unused and in good condition, amounted to $53; a balance of $40 in favor of the chests, a saving of over one-half, and the sick reports show a greater amount of sickness during the encampment of 1884 than of 1883.

These supplies were not ready in time for encampment of First Brigade, but as before stated, were used during encampment of Second Brigade, and it affords me pleasure in reporting that every surgeon expressed himself pleased and satisfied with the medicine chests, which contained all that was needed, with one or two exceptions, which will hereafter be added.

In conclusion, I will state that the medical department of the Illinois National Guard is now in good condition, and well equipped with all necessary supplies, and I think will compare favorably, in all respects, with any like organization.

Thanking you for the many favors I have received at your hands, for your repeated and kindly assistance in many directions, I have the honor to be, General,

Yours, very truly,

J. N. DIXON, Surgeon General.

REPORT OF THE JUDGE ADVOCATE GENERAL.

OFFICE OF JUDGE ADVOCATE GENERAL, I. N. G. }
 CLINTON, ILL., NOV. 24, 1884. }

BRIGADIER-GENERAL J. W. VANCE, Adjutant-General I. N. G., Springfield, Ill. :

SIR—I have the honor to report that the only matter referred to me in my official capacity, since my appointment, was the record of the proceedings and finding of a general court-martial in the matter of the trial of Holman G. Purinton, First Infantry, I. N. G.

On examination of the record I was of opinion that there was no error in the proceedings, and that the finding was sustained by the evidence, and forwarded your predecessor the record with my written opinion to that effect.

On that record my attention was called to the fact that there was a difference of opinion, or uncertainty, as to what pay, other than the necessary expenses of the Judge Advocate and Court, the members of a general court-martial are entitled under the statute, and after giving the question consideration I am of opinion that they are entitled to the same pay, and no more, that is allowed them for camp duty. I do not believe that court-martial duty is, within the meaning of the statute, "actual service for the suppression of riot and enforcement of the laws," but am of opinion that such duty is within section 49, chapter 129, R. S.

My attention has also been called to the fact that, in consequence of the statute requiring that a regimental court-martial shall not consist of more than five, nor less than three, commissioned officers, one of whom shall be a field officer, and the companies of the Illinois National Guard, in the great majority of cases, being isolated and widely separated, regimental courts-martial are unnecessarily, in many cases, inconvenient and expensive, and to avoid this a very objectionable practice has grown up of dishonorably discharging enlisted men, without trial, on the recommendation of the commanding officer of the company to which the enlisted men belong.

That this practice is unjust and injurious to the service, can not be questioned.

It is unjust to impose upon the soldier the disgrace of a dishonorable discharge without a fair and impartial trial having been allowed him, and it is injurious to the service in that men who would make the best soldiers will not knowingly voluntarily expose themselves to the hazard of such an indignity.

I would, therefore, recommend the abolition of this practice, and suggest that the statute be amended so as to authorize the commanding officers of regiments, where the charges are not preferred by a commissioned officer of the company to which the enlisted man belongs, to convene a company court-martial composed of the commissioned officers of the company, one of whom to act as Judge Advocate.

It may be suggested that in such case there might be an evenly divided court in the vote on the finding. If such should be the case the man against whom the proceeding is should be found not guilty, or the proceedings certified to the regimental commander, or some other superior officer, for him, after examination of the evidence, etc., to cast a deciding vote.

As I have not received any reports from the Judge Advocates of the brigades I have nothing further, at present, to report.

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

VESPASIAN WARNER,

Colonel and Judge Advocate General, I. N. G.

REPORT OF GENERAL INSPECTOR OF RIFLE PRACTICE.

HEADQUARTERS GENERAL INSPECTOR RIFLE PRACTICE,
CHICAGO, Nov. 20, 1884.

GENERAL J. W. VANCE, Adjutant General, Springfield, Ill.:

GENERAL—I have the honor to submit herewith report of rifle practice for the years 1883 and 1884. It is necessarily limited on account of the State not having erected rifle ranges at central points where rifle practice and competitive shooting could be held. The following suggestions, though old, will bear repeating: Each brigade should have a permanent camp and complete rifle range, a reasonable amount of ammunition issued to each man for practice, and prizes given for encouragement with conditions governing the competitions for same that would induce every company in the State to practice at the short and longer ranges. A sufficient tax should be levied and collected for the purpose of supporting the Illinois National Guard.

The State that is most liberal will never regret such liberality, as it will place its militia above want and thorough discipline will follow. Mob violence, and all that term implies, will be less liable to occur and a greater feeling of security will prevail among all classes of law abiding citizens.

Let our young men, before serving their term of enlistment, be thoroughly taught in the practical use of the rifle, as it is recognized by military men as the most important branch of military training.

In my opinion, the civil authority in the execution of its laws, where its power fails, runs great risk in calling upon its militia; there is danger of grave mistakes being made if they are uneducated in the practical use of the State arms.

I respectfully call your attention to the suggestions of Lieut.-Col. Clarke, of the First Brigade, and Lieut.-Col. Rice, of the Second Brigade:

Lieut.-Col. Clarke says allowance for cavalry per year per man should be 400 rounds carbine and 200 rounds pistol ammunition, he also thinks a reasonable amount of blank cartridges for volley firing would be advisable, and urges the necessity of having accessible rifle ranges, where the men can get the necessary practice with their rifles; and the suggestion that an armorer be appointed, who should be responsible for the perfect condition of all arms belonging to his regiment, is worthy of consideration, as it is impossible for men who are not accustomed to handling arms, to keep them in proper condition. Good men should fill such important positions and be paid a reasonable salary.

Lieut.-Col. Jas. M. Rice, Inspector R. P. Second Brigade, in giving a résumé of the work accomplished by his brigade, makes some valuable suggestions which should have been printed in full, but as your space is limited and you have found it necessary to condense reports, I embody the following extracts from his report, which show that he has the good of the National Guard at heart, and has spared neither time nor expense to advance his department to the extreme limit of allowance. In 1883 very good work was performed before the targets at the ranges of 200, 500 and 600 yards. In 1884 a decided advance was made. Some practice was had the first day of camp at 200 yards, but after that the practice was all at 500 yards. Telephonic communication was established between the firing points and targets, adding materially to the value of the range and work accomplished. During this encampment forty-four qualified as marksmen, one of whom was the Adjutant-General of the State. The practice at this camp was for the purpose of instructing the Regimental I. R. P., and a few men from each company in the brigade, in the principles of firing at mid-range, few of whom had ever fired at the 500 yard target. These men are now qualified to instruct and give assistance to their comrades at home.

Owing to the limited amount of funds at the disposal of the Adjutant-General, it was found after General Order No. 1 was issued that its provisions for competitive shooting for places on the Regimental, Brigade and State teams could not be complied with. The following Brigade team, however, has been selected for this brigade:

Rifle Team, Second Brigade, Illinois National Guard.

I hereby certify upon honor that I have carefully compared the above Consolidated Return of Rifle Practice, with the properly authenticated regimental reports and score-sheets of General and Staff, in my office, and that no credit is given that is not properly vouched for by said regimental reports or score-sheets of General and Staff. I have also compared the list of marksmen, attached, with the score-sheets for marksmen and prize-shooting in my office, and find the marksmen's scores given below are all vouched for by score-sheets made and certified as required by regulations; and I have reason to believe, and do believe, that the practice in all cases was fairly conducted according to the regulations, and that the credits given in this return were fairly earned.

JAMES M. RICE,

Lieutenant-Colonel and Brigade Inspector of Rifle Practice.

A very common, usual and proper method of encouraging, recognizing and rewarding excellence in rifle practice is by offering prizes to be competed for, and by conferring upon all who win the rank of marksmen a medal, badge or decoration, to be worn at all times upon the uniform, as chevrons, re-enlistment or battle stripes are worn.

In the regular army of the United States, every soldier, officer or enlisted man who wins the rank of marksman is furnished with an ornamental metallic button, to be worn upon the coat collar, and numerous valuable gold medals are offered and competed for, rifle teams being transported at the public expense, for the purpose of competition, from California to New York.

Prizes and badges are offered to the Volunteer Militia or National Guard of most of the States.

Little badges of red, white and blue ribbon, of insignificant cost, were furnished to all who won the rank of marksman in this brigade, and were worn at the last brigade encampment with great pride and satisfaction, as indicating the proficiency of the wearer in the most important and effective part of their military education.

The United States Cartridge Company, three or four years ago, offered a handsome gold medal, to be competed for by teams of twenty men from a company, to be won twice before becoming the property of the winning team. This prize, the only one ever offered in this brigade, was finally won, last spring, by Company "B," Fifth Regiment, stationed at Taylorville, by the following score:

Regimental and brigade teams should be brought together once a year for competition, transported and subsisted. By so doing, the members of the teams will learn a great deal, and will become leaders and examples in rifle firing, and also, the positions on the teams will become prizes for which to strive.

I forward herewith a consolidated return of rifle practice, showing, in tabulated form, the number of marksmen, and the number remaining in the first, second, third and fourth classes in each regiment, and in the general staff, and the figures of merit of each organization. This return shows the result of all that has come to my knowledge. Some of the reports have been very informal and unsatisfactory, but none have been thrown out, not being willing that any officers or men should lose credit for what they have done, through the carelessness or neglect, or inefficiency, of others. Especial attention is called to the figures of merit as being the best evidence of the real efficiency of any organization.

It is almost impossible to accomplish much in rifle practice with the present allowance of ammunition. Before any considerable improvement in the individual firing can be perceived, the ammunition is expended, and the practice must cease for another year,—a time amply sufficient to cool off any enthusiasm that may have been awakened.

A great many companies have not been able to undergo the expense of the construction of targets.

In the regular army of the United States, every man is allowed 240 rounds of service ammunition, or 500 rounds of reloaded ammunition, per annum, and there are good ranges and targets at every station, and the men are required to expend their entire allowance each year.

In fact, more attention is given to, and more time and money expended upon, rifle practice, by all the armies of civilized nations, now, than is given to the manoeuvre tactics,—i. e., the marching, alignments, step-wheelings, manual of arms, etc.

It is known by all the best military minds that the art of war has changed with the advent of the long-range rifles, and is becoming more and more a science, and the result depends, in a corresponding degree, more and more upon the skill and attainment of the individual soldier. The cadence step came in with the iron ramrod, and, for fighting purposes, must go out with it.

Except our late civil war,—which was, during the first few years, governed more by political than military principles,—it is the custom to make modern wars short, sharp and decisive. Within a few weeks of the time they are begun, one power is at the mercy of the victor, and is compelled to pay the expenses of the war. No time is allowed for extemporizing armies, or learning the use of arms.

Like a storm out of a clear sky our sea coast may be attacked almost without warning, cities captured and armies marched inland, and it is important that we have a small army ready to respond instantly to the sound of the bugle and one that knows how to use, from the start, that terrible modern weapon, the long range rifle.

It is believed also that in cases of riot and disorder a few well directed shots by skilled marksmen, picking off the most guilty and sparing, in a corresponding degree, the least guilty, would have a better effect in restoring order and the reign of law than a whole broadside fired indiscriminately into a mass of excited humanity, dealing death to comparatively innocent and guilty alike. For almost any kind of military service the knowledge of how to use his rifle is the most important part of a soldier's military training, and it is almost sure to be too late to acquire that knowledge after the necessity for its use has become apparent.

Reloading tools have been manufactured by the United States Government adapted to reloading the discharged shells of our service ammunition with either the service charge or with the reduced charge for gallery practice, and I would recommend that every company in the Illinois National Guard be furnished with a set of these reloading tools, and that they be required to carry them on their returns and keep them in good order and use them, and that they be required to preserve the discharged shells, and that company commanders be authorized to purchase from the funds furnished by the State as much powder, lead and lubricant, and as many primers as the men are willing to expend under proper rules and instruction. The cost of ammunition of this kind will be comparatively small.

The celebrated Seventh New York regiment reloads all its shells, the janitor or armorer doing the work.

The Brigade Inspector of Rifle Practice should be authorized to have the necessary number of second-class targets manufactured at some point where they will be properly constructed, and that they be painted to preserve them from the weather and be furnished from time to time to such companies as will secure proper ranges and put them up, and that the targets be borne upon the returns from year to year.

A new work on rifle practice is being issued by the War Department for use in the regular army; it will also be adapted for use in the National Guard or active militia. A sufficient number could be procured at a trifling cost by the State, and one copy should be issued to each company and regimental commander, and officers should be required to familiarize themselves with its contents.

Inspectors of rifle practice should be men of considerable scientific and military attainment; men who understand, or will take the trouble to learn what pertains to the science of rifle-firing and its kindred sciences, and much that pertains to the duties of an engineer and ordnance officer. In fact they should be the engineer and ordnance officer of their command, men who know how to hastily construct temporary fire fortifications, abatis, bridges, etc., and how to take advantage of and destroy them.

Field and line officers are elected on account of their popularity and their social and political influence, but inspectors of rifle practice are appointed by the regimental commanders, and it is suggested that the regimental commander who fails to select his inspector of rifle practice with reference to the above requirements loses a golden opportunity to add to the efficiency of the command, and himself loses a valuable adviser and assistant in case of active service.

It would be well if the rifle practice in the field should be confined by company commanders to a short season in each year, so that officers and men might make a careful study of the subject preparatory to the beginning of the practice, and that the interest might be sustained throughout the practicing season. Regimental inspectors of rifle practice should be permitted to visit each company in their regiment at least once each year during its practicing season, and should have their reasonable traveling expenses borne while doing so.

Every man should be furnished with a score book in which to record the result of each shot he fires, and all the varying circumstances which affected it, as the force and direction of the wind, the light, moisture, temperature, and elevation of sight, the part of the target aimed at and the part struck.

By keeping such a book the shooter would be able to make intelligent and rapid progress with a smaller expenditure of ammunition.

Judging distance is a very important part of rifle practice, as also skirmish firing. It is a pleasure to note that Captain Theodore Ewert, Adjutant of the Eighth Regiment, is now, at his own suggestion, endeavoring to introduce the judging of distance drill in that regiment.

The recommendations herein made will cost something in their execution, as all valuable things do, but these expenditures are absolutely necessary to anything like success in the department of rifle practice, and the added efficiency of the National Guard will more than compensate.

The money expended to carry out the above recommendations would add more to the efficiency of the State force than the same amount expended in any other way.

Acknowledging the valuable assistance rendered by you to this department, and thanking you for same,

I remain your obedient servant,

J. A. SHAFFER,
General Inspector Rifle Practice.

REPORT OF BRIGADIER-GENERAL J. N. REECE,
COMMANDING SECOND BRIGADE.

HEADQUARTERS SECOND BRIGADE, I. N. G.,
SPRINGFIELD, NOV. 3, 1834.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL J. W. VANCE,
Adjutant-General I. N. G., Springfield Ill.:

GENERAL: I have the honor to make the following report of the Fifth Annual Encampment of the Second Brigade, Illinois National Guard:

In compliance with Special Order No. 131, dated General Headquarters I. N. G., July 8, 1834 (marked "A"), General Order No. 2 (marked "B"), from these headquarters, was published, directing the Second Brigade I. N. G. to assemble for instruction at Camp Logan, near Springfield.

The ground was well adapted for the purpose, and was admirably arranged by the Quartermaster of this brigade. The diagram of the camp, the distribution of the troops thereon, and other details of interest in connection therewith, are given in the appended report of the Brigade Quartermaster, marked "H."

The several commands reported promptly for duty on the 6th day of August, 1834, and the routine of camp duties were entered upon with nearly the same alacrity and thoroughness as on the last day of the preceding encampment. The earnestness of officers and enlisted men to improve upon previous record was apparent from the arrival of the several commands in camp until the striking of tents preparatory to departure for their respective stations.

The following table gives the aggregate strength of the command, which, considering the number present at the late regular inspection, shows that only a very small per cent. of the force was prevented from attending camp by reason of sickness or other unavoidable causes:

Command.	Commanding Officer.	Officers.	Men.	Total.
Second Brigade	Brigadier-General J. N. Reece.....	10		10
Fifth Infantry	Colonel J. H. Barkley	27	265	292
Sixth	Colonel Wm. Clendenin	26	273	299
Seventh	Colonel C. A. W. Fash	21	292	313
Eighth	Colonel R. M. Smith	33	344	377
Ninth	Colonel Louis Krughoff	26	336	362
Battery "A"	Captain E. Winter	4	58	62
Chicago Light Infantry.	Captain Alex. Brown	3	59	62
Totals		153	1,618	1,771

The Chicago Light Infantry, an independent colored company, was temporarily assigned to this command during the late encampment. The company, in drill and discipline, compared favorably with the majority of the companies in the brigade.

The routine of duties during each day of the encampment is given in the following order:

HEADQUARTERS SECOND BRIGADE, ILLINOIS NATIONAL GUARD,

By order of Brigadier-General Reece.

CHARLES F. MILLS,
Assistant Adjutant-General.

The proficiency heretofore attained by the several commands in the foot movements and manual of arms was such as to make it more important to give especial attention to guard duty, rifle practice, and such duties as were not common to the weekly drill in the armory.

The especial attention of the command prior to the encampment was directed in general orders (marked "C,") to the importance of giving more thorough instruction in and devoting sufficient time to rifle practice to ensure a high degree of efficiency in this very essential qualification of a soldier.

The results attained at the late encampment in this important matter are worthy of especial mention, and the Brigade Inspector of Rifle Practice is commended for the proficiency attained in his department by the several rifle teams. The comprehensive and interesting report of the Brigade Inspector of Rifle Practice is appended hereto.

GUARD DUTY.

There was a marked improvement in guard duty as compared with previous encampments. General orders (see "E,") were issued prior to the encampment, impressing upon officers and men the importance and necessity of becoming proficient in the entire routine of guard duty. The details for Officer of the Day and Officer of the Guard (see "F,") were made in advance, in order that all needed preparation might be made for the intelligent and thorough discharge of these duties.

A manual of guard duty (see "G,") was prepared for this encampment by the Inspector of this Brigade and forwarded to the companies before their arrival in camp. The Inspector of the Brigade had especial charge of Brigade guard mount as well as the instruction of the sentinels, and the marked improvement in guard duty is largely the result of his ceaseless efforts in directing the several details in the discharge of the duty. Attention is invited to the appended report of the Inspector of this Brigade (marked "D.")

The degree of proficiency attained by the several commands in the routine of guard duty is indicated in the following table. The averages are based upon military appearance, knowledge of guard duty by officers and men, soldierly bearing and deportment, the standard of perfection being 100:

SANITARY.

The health of the troops was good, owing to the favorable weather, the excellent sanitary condition of the camp, and the regulations of the medical staff. Attention is invited to the appended report of the Brigade Surgeon.

The subsistence provided by the Adjutant-General was of good quality and there was no complaint concerning the quantity, which in some cases exceeded the ration specified in the United States army regulation. The Brigade Commissary sustained his well-earned reputation and merited the high commendation of the command for the excellent management of his department. The detailed report of the Brigade Commissary is appended herewith, and marked "K."

The fourth annual encampment of this Brigade was held on the same camp ground as this season from August 31 to September 5, 1893. The routine of duties was practically the same as at the recent encampment and the same efficient and creditable discharge of duties of the several commands noticeable.

Since the last annual encampment the Second Brigade has lost by promotion a very worthy officer, who has done much to advance the efficiency of the command. It is gratifying to note the fact that the Inspector of this Brigade, Major J. W. Vance, was selected by the Commander-in-Chief for the important office of Adjutant-General of the Illinois National Guard.

The staff has lost by resignation, during the past year, the services of Major T. G. Black, a most efficient and creditable officer, who has rendered most acceptable service as Brigade-Surgeon during the past eight years.

The staff of this Brigade at the late encampment consisted of the following officers, who discharged their several duties in a most creditable manner, and to the entire satisfaction of the commanding officer:

Lieutenant-Colonel Charles F. Mills, Assistant Adjutant General.

Lieutenant-Colonel W. J. Ford, Judge Advocate.

Lieutenant-Colonel J. M. Rice, Inspector of Rifle Practice.

Major Wm. S. Brackett, Assistant Inspector General.

Major I. Simpson Hughes, Brigade Surgeon.

Captain W. F. Smith, Assistant Commissary of Subsistence.

Captain J. C. Bell, Assistant Quartermaster.

First Lieutenant Daniel Stevens, Aide-de-Camp.

First Lieutenant M. H. Patton, Aide-de-Camp.

In closing this report I take pleasure in repeating that the entire command sustained its well merited reputation of being one of the most efficient Brigades of the National Guard. The discipline of the several commands leaves but little room for improvement, and the proficiency in all matters essential to an efficient citizen soldierly relegates but little to the domain of criticism.

The commandant desires to compliment officers and men for the commendable spirit manifested to excel in all that goes to make good soldiers, and to express his thanks for the hearty co-operation by the officers of the several commands in making the Fifth Annual Encampment an improvement in every particular over the preceding encampments.

Attention is invited to the appended reports of the different commanders in reference to the duties of their respective commands during the encampment.

The duties of the Fifth Annual Encampment were formally brought to a close August 11, 1884. (See appended order marked "L.")

Your obedient servant,

JASPER N. REECE,

Brigadier-General Commanding.

APPENDICES TO REPORT OF SECOND BRIGADE.

"A."

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF ILLINOIS,
ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
SPRINGFIELD, July 8, 1884.

Special Orders—No. 131.

I. The General commanding the Second Brigade will order the troops of his command into camp near this city for four days, commencing on the sixth day of August next.

II. The officers and enlisted men of the Second Brigade are commanded to perform this tour of duty. The troops will be paid as provided in Sec. 2, Art. 8, Military Code, and will obey all orders and regulations made in pursuance of this order.

III. The camp will be laid out and tents pitched as prescribed by the tactics, or as nearly so as the contour of the grounds will permit. The commanding General will issue the necessary orders for the rendezvous of the troops by the nearest practicable route, and will prescribe such restrictive regulations as he may deem proper.

IV. Requisition will be made for transportation, camp equipage, subsistence, ordnance, medical and Quartermaster's stores at least fifteen days prior to the encampment.

V. The requisition for transportation must name the troops, station, the miles of travel, and the roads over which it will be required.

VI. Provision should be made by the Assistant Commissary of Subsistence for the subsistence of the troops in transit to camp.

VII. The sanitary condition of the camp, the construction of sinks for both officers and enlisted men, pits for the refuse of camp, pits (filled with stones) for waste water, and the police of the camp, should receive careful supervision by the proper staff officers.

VIII. Commandants of regiments and batteries are reminded of the importance of exercising a proper care for the comfort as well as for the instruction of their commands. The Assistant Quartermaster and the Assistant Commissary of Subsistence should carefully and minutely instruct their subordinates in their duties.

IX. At the close of this tour of duty the General commanding will make full report to these headquarters.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

J. W. VANCE,
Adjutant-General.

HEADQUARTERS SECOND BRIGADE,
ILLINOIS NATIONAL GUARD,
SPRINGFIELD, July 10, 1884.

General Orders—No. 2.

In conformity with Special Orders Number 131, dated General Headquarters I. N. G., July 8, 1881, the Second Brigade Illinois National Guard will go into camp for six days, near Springfield, Illinois, the sixth day of August, 1884, and continue in camp for six days.

The camp will be designated and known as "Camp Logan." Commanders of regiments and Battery "A" will report with their commands upon arrival on the 5th day of August, 1884, to the Assistant Adjutant General, at headquarters at Camp Logan.

Adjutants, immediately upon their arrival in camp, will present to the Assistant Adjutant General reports in form of the aggregate strength of the commands to which they are attached. Surgeons and Assistant Surgeons will report immediately upon their arrival in camp to the Surgeon of this Brigade. Regimental Quartermasters will report immediately upon their arrival in camp to the Quartermaster of this Brigade. Regimental Inspectors of Rifle Practice will report upon their arrival in camp to the Brigade Inspector of Rifle Practice.

Officers and men will provide themselves with regulation uniforms and blankets. Mounted officers will be provided with horses by the Quartermaster of the Brigade.

Officers and enlisted men at this encampment will be transported, subsisted and paid as contemplated by Article VIII of the Military Code.

Camp and garrison equipage will be issued to Regimental Quartermasters prior to August 5, 1884, by the Quartermaster of this Brigade.

Commanders of regiments and Battery "A" will approve and forward in duplicate to these headquarters, on or before July 21, 1884, in due form, requisitions of their respective Quartermasters for transportation, fuel and forage.

Commanders of regiments and Battery "A" will issue no permits or leave of absence, excusing officers or enlisted men from attendance at the encampment, except in case of sickness, when Surgeon's certificate of disability must be forwarded to these headquarters on the first day of the encampment, with a duly certified list of all absentees.

The various duties performed by troops in the field, as prescribed in the regulations of the U. S. Army, will be strictly carried out, and the duties for each day's service during this encampment will be promulgated in future orders.

It is unnecessary to call attention to the importance of a camp of instruction of this character, or to state that officers and enlisted men will be expected in the most thorough manner to discharge the duties of troops in the field.

The prime object of the encampment is to promote the efficiency of the Illinois National Guard, and good discipline will be enforced and the limited time fully occupied in the discharge of the important duties incident to a camp of instruction.

By order of Brigadier-General Reece.

CHARLES F. MILLS,
Assistant Adjutant General.

HEADQUARTERS SECOND BRIGADE, ILLINOIS NATIONAL GUARD,
SPRINGFIELD, July 7, 1884.

General Orders, No. 1.

1. Company commanders will order out their companies for rifle practice at the earliest possible day, not later than August 5 at furthest.

2. They will forward a copy of the score sheets made at the firing to the Regimental Inspector of Rifle Practice, and duplicate copies of them direct to the Brigade Inspector of Rifle Practice, immediately after the firing.

3. On or before the 5th of August, company commanders will select a rifle team of four from among the officers and enlisted men of the company, and will appoint a captain of the team. The company commander is eligible for membership in the team and for the captaincy of it.

4. Immediately on going into brigade camp, company commanders will fill any vacancies in the team from men present in camp, and will report the names of the captains and members of the company teams as filled to the Regimental Inspector of Rifle Practice and he to the Brigade Inspector of Rifle Practice.

5. Each company team will be ordered out one day, during the encampment, for rifle practice, and assigned to a target, and will practice under the management of their team captain and the instruction of the Regimental Inspector of Rifle Practice, with the assistance of the Brigade Inspector of Rifle Practice and the General Inspector of Rifle Practice.

6. At the close of the encampment, each Regimental Inspector of Rifle Practice will select from each company team in his regiment not less than two nor more than four officers and enlisted men to remain over one day and compete for places on the regimental and brigade teams; and after this competition, he will select from the competitors a regimental team of sixteen officers and enlisted men.

7. The Regimental Inspector of Rifle Practice, in selecting his men, will consider the individual scores previously made in the field, as well as those made from the present time up to the time for selecting the team.

8. The selection of a man for a higher team will not take him out of his company or regimental team. A man may be a member of all the teams at the same time.

9. The practice during camp will be at 200 and 500 yards range, two scores of five rounds each at each distance.

10. Regimental Inspectors of Rifle Practice will report the names of the members and teams and the captains of their respective regimental teams to the Brigade Inspectors of Rifle Practice, on or before August 25.

11. The Brigade Inspector of Rifle Practice will then select a brigade team of twenty officers and enlisted men from among those whose score sheets he may have received up to that time.

12. The two brigade teams will meet as soon as convenient thereafter to compete for the championship and for places on a State team.

13. The State will furnish ammunition for the above competitions and transportation to and from the place of meeting.

14. Inspectors not able to be personally present on any occasion of duty will so report to his commanding officer, who will then detail a competent officer to act in his stead.

15. It is suggested to company commanders that besides the company practice, that they encourage as much squad and individual practice as practicable between this and the time of going into camp, especially among their best shots, and they will not fail to select and report their rifle teams as above provided, whether or not they have had the required company practice.

16. Properly certified score sheets will be forwarded immediately after the firing by the officer in charge of every firing party, one copy to the Regimental Inspector of Rifle Practice and one copy direct to the Brigade Inspector of Rifle Practice, whether it be company or team, or merely squad firing, whether in competition or merely for practice; and all scores so made and certified will be taken into account in making up the company, regimental and brigade figure of merit for publication in the Adjutant-General's Biennial Report, and the ammunition so reported expended will be replaced by the Adjutant-General.

17. The names of all persons qualifying as marksmen in any firing of any kind, and having his score sheet properly certified, will be published in the Adjutant-General's Biennial Report, with his score, and he will be sent a certificate of his marksmanship and his score, over the signature of the Brigade Inspector of Rifle Practice, as soon as the score sheets are received.

18. The General commanding is very much gratified by the zeal and intelligence which has been manifested in the matter of rifle practice by very many of the company and regimental commanders, and by the results that have been attained through their efforts. Where it appears that the men composing the different commands are all of average intelligence, the different results obtained in different organizations must be due in a great degree to the efficiency of the officers who command them.

19. Regimental and company commanders are reminded that they are themselves responsible for the instruction of their respective commands in rifle firing, and that this responsibility can not be shifted, as some seem to have supposed, either to their superior, subaltern or staff officers, whether they be inspectors of rifle practice or otherwise. Commanders will also remember that in their hands the lives of the men are placed, and they will carefully instruct them in the only practicable means of usefulness in the service, and of defense in danger, known in modern warfare: the skillful use of their long-range, breech-loading rifles. Where officers carry out in good faith the orders which prescribe the course of rifle practice; where they are intelligent and zealous; where they seek to awaken an interest in this the most important part of their instruction, and especially where they endeavor to excite emulation by practicing with their men and by becoming good shots themselves, excellent results will surely follow; but when the instruction, which it is their duty to give, if given at all, is given in a mechanical and perfunctory manner, without warmth or interest, their men will assuredly fail to learn the use of their arms, and under existing conditions of warfare they will be nearly worthless as soldiers.

20. The next Biennial Report of the Adjutant-General will contain the name and score of each member of each regimental, brigade and State team, also the name of every marksman in the State, and his score. It will also contain the figure of merit of every company, regiment and brigade. And in order that every organization may know the light in which it appears to the other organizations and to the military world, every organization will be supplied with a copy of the Adjutant-General's Report as soon as printed, showing the facts above stated, which will be carried on company returns as State property.

21. Each man is entitled to twenty rounds for field practice this year.

22. The time for making the annual report of rifle practice this year has been extended to include the summer practice, and the Regimental Inspectors of Rifle Practice will send in their complete returns, which go towards making up the Adjutant-General's Report, not later than November 1, 1884.

23. Companies that fail to parade at least fifty per cent. of their aggregate for rifle practice before the first of November, will be published in orders as delinquents.

By order of Brigadier-General Reece.

CHARLES F. MILLS,
Assistant Adjutant General.

"D."

INSPECTOR GENERAL'S OFFICE, SECOND BRIGADE, I. N. G.,
PEORIA, November 1, 1884.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL CHARLES F. MILLS,
Assistant Adjutant General Second Brigade, I. N. G.

SIR: In accordance with a special order from Headquarters Second Brigade, I. N. G. I acted as general instructor in guard duty at the encampment near Springfield of the Second Brigade in August last, to the exclusion of most every other duty. It was my duty also, under orders, to form the Brigade Guard every morning at said encampment.

Under direction of Brigadier-General Keese, I prepared and distributed some weeks before the encampment a manual of guard duty for the use of officers and men, which, in connection with a general order (No. 3, c. s.) from Headquarters Second Brigade, on "Guard Duty," was, in my judgment, of considerable benefit in initiating many officers and men into the practical details of a vitally important branch of the military service.

I would earnestly recommend the publication of a similar manual and general order a month or two prior to the next annual encampment.

There was some improvement in the performance of guard duty over the encampment of a year previous, but there is wide room in almost every particular for further improvement on the part of both officers and men.

The sentinels should be constantly instructed in their duties by the officers of the guard, but in many instances these officers had taken little or no pains to post themselves, and were consequently incapable of imparting much information.

There is some excuse for the ignorance of the men; there is none, that I am aware of, for the man who holds a commission and wears the uniform of an officer.

If some sense of responsibility could be impressed on officers in this and other particulars it would benefit the service very much.

The General commanding the Second Brigade has requested me to make such recommendations in the matter of guard duty and in other matters, as I saw fit (in this report, and I therefore take the liberty of departing from ordinary usage to give my observations for what they may be worth.

I believe it to be for the best interests of the service, in view of the tents being set so closely together at our brigade encampments, to adhere to the system now in use of forming and mounting a Brigade Guard rather than to have separate police guards in each regiment. Our present system is warranted by like usage, under like circumstances in the army, and there is no apparent benefit or use in having videttes and outposts in our National Guard service. I would recommend drawing in the cordon of sentinels around the actual camp of the troops, rather than try to guard such a large expanse of ground as was attempted at the last encampment.

This, with a line of sentries across the public entrance, and a few sentries at Brigade Headquarters, would be better than the old plan.

In detailing officers there should be three (3) officers of the guard in our large Brigade Guard. This allows a commissioned officer for each relief and arouses emulation. It also permits us to have a commissioned officer for each platoon at the ceremony of guard mount, as we are obliged to break such a large guard into three platoons to pass in review.

Guard duty is the most irksome of all duties to our militiamen, and it is difficult to impress upon them its supreme importance.

I desire to call the attention of the Brigadier-General commanding to the pains taken and the intelligence displayed by the following officers detailed as officers of the guard: First Lieutenant T. C. Kimber, Fifth Infantry; Second Lieutenant Stuart Brown, Fifth Infantry; First Lieutenant R. H. Scott, Sixth Infantry; First Lieutenant Chas. C. Carter, Sixth Infantry; Second Lieutenant Wm. A. Marshall, Seventh Infantry.

Colonel R. M. Smith, of the Eighth Infantry, was most zealous in the matter of instructing his officers and men in the matter of guard duty during the encampment, and also in impressing upon them its great importance.

The Ninth Infantry distinguished itself by turning out the exact number of men detailed for guard duty every day, and even upon the last day of the camp.

The ceremony of regimental guard mount was especially well carried out in the Sixth Infantry, the Adjutant of that regiment, Captain Porter, being very well posted in the details of guard duty and very successful in instructing officers and men.

The best and smartest appearing sentinels at the encampment were, in my judgment, the men detailed from the "Paris Light Infantry," a company of the Eighth Regiment. These men had evidently been carefully instructed by their officers; and in bearing, deportment, and vigilance proved themselves model camp guards.

I would suggest that hereafter the prisoners in the guard tents should be compelled to police under a guard the parade ground or area in front of headquarters, or wherever such work is necessary in the camp.

I have the honor to submit the following recommendations and changes which, in my judgment, should be carried out at the next encampment, as the practices mentioned are conspicuous departures from present usages in the United States Army.

At dress parade the band commencing on the right should play a march, or selection, in quick time to the left of the line, counter-march without halting, and march back to its post playing the same air continuously. (See Upton's Tactics, par. 810). Just before playing the march, or selection, and just after, it is the invariable usage for bands in the army to sound the "three cheers" on their instruments. The practice of playing one air down the line, halting, and playing another air back, is obsolete, and should be discontinued by our bands.

Also the custom of sounding the "three cheers" on drums instead of instruments, just before the "sound-off," is obsolete and should be abandoned.

Sounding "Retreat" is a part of the ceremony of dress parade, and should be played by trumpeters, or by the band itself, just after the strains of the "sound-off" are finished. (See Upton's Tactics, par. 810). At the last note of "Retreat" the flag should drop and evening gun be fired, no matter whether the sun is just sinking below horizon or not, although it is intended to be just at sun-set.

In successive dress parades by regiments at brigade encampment, the gun ought to be fired at retreat when sounded by the band or trumpeters of the battalion on the right, the other regimental bands sounding retreat also in their own dress parade after the first battalion.

The horrible and promiscuous drumming, flogging, tooting, etc., at Reveille and at other important calls in the camps of the regiments after calls sounded at Brigade Headquarters, should be forbidden.

Reveille ought to be sounded by from six to twelve trumpeters in concert, or by a band, if trumpeters can not be had. It should be sounded at some point (not necessarily in front of Brigade Headquarters) where it can be heard in every regiment.

Upon this sounding of Reveille by trumpeters or a band, the drum corps of each regiment should play marches through the streets of each regiment respectively, and immediately after this, beat reveille in concert. There should be no other drumming than this. (See par. 835, Upton's Tactics).

In this way the men will get to know and be familiar with the principal calls on both trumpets and drums.

I would also urge that Reveille, Retreat, Tattoo, and Adjutant's call for assembly of regimental details for guard mount, be sounded by a body of trumpeters in concert, or by a full band in default of trumpeters, at some point,—as for example on the parade ground,—where the whole camp can hear the calls and learn to know them. This is according to usage in the United States Army, and according to par. 835, Upton's Tactics. The minor calls may, and should be, sounded by an orderly trumpeter detailed for that duty, and repeated by a single trumpeter in each regiment.

Owing to my duties as instructor in guard duty, which took all my time and attention, and also because of the presence in our encampment of Colonel E. B. Hamilton, Inspector General of the Illinois National Guard, I deemed it proper to request the latter officer to conduct the usual Sunday inspection of the Second Brigade.

Colonel Hamilton, accordingly, made a thorough inspection, accompanied by Brevet Brigadier-General Nelson B. Switzer, U. S. Army. The inspection, in spite of the various and variegated uniforms of our troops, was extremely satisfactory to the inspecting officers and creditable to the brigade.

It now goes without saying that our brigade should have a "uniform" uniform, the present motley array of obsolete military costumes worn by most of our companies having met with universal condemnation. No matter how well the troops drill, march or maneuver, the startling contrasts of uniform give the appearance of disorder where there is in reality excellent order and uniform movement. I refrain from further enlarging upon this very fruitful topic. The brigade ought to have uniform belts and McKeever cartridge boxes.

At the Sunday morning inspection at our late encampment the cleanest arms were those of the Chicago Light Infantry, an independent colored company, whose neat military appearance and soldierly bearing generally, won praise from everybody.

Considering the fact that Battery "A," of Danville, had undrilled horses, their evolutions and light battery drill were marvellous. Their drill was equal, if not superior, to that of some batteries in the regular army, and reflects great credit on officers and men.

In conclusion, I have the honor to say that the Second Brigade and its commander are to be congratulated upon a steady and marked improvement in our organization in nearly every detail of military duty; an improvement which is rapidly making our brigade a powerful and efficient military instrument in case of necessity for its use,

I have the honor to be,

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

WILLIAM S. BRACKETT,

Major and Inspector-General Second Brigade, I. N. G.

"E."

GUARD DUTY.

General Orders No. 3.

HEADQUARTERS SECOND BRIGADE, I. N. G.
SPRINGFIELD, July 17, 1854.

The General commanding desires to impress upon all officers and men of this Brigade the extreme importance and necessity of becoming proficient in the entire routine of guard duty. Every officer should take the greatest interest in bringing his men to the highest standard of excellence in this respect, because the discipline and efficiency of a body of troops is measured by the manner in which its guard duty is performed.

In connection with the authorized Tactics and Regulations, the following instructions will be observed for Brigade Guard Mount at the Fifth Annual Encampment of this Brigade:

1. The company details of each regiment, after inspection, will be marched to their regimental parade grounds by the First Sergeants, and there be turned over to their Sergeant-Major, as in regimental Guard Mount.

2. These regimental details, after regimental guard mount, will be promptly marched to the parade in front of General Headquarters, each detail to be under command of the senior officer (or non-commissioned officer) of the detail.

3. The details will march on to the parade grounds with arms at right shoulder, and as they arrive, will take position on the line established by the Staff Officer in charge of the ceremony. Each officer, or non-commissioned officer, in command of a detail, forms his detachment in open order, and places himself, if an officer, two yards in front of its centre; if a non-commissioned officer, on the right of the front rank. The guides take their places in the line of file closers as their detachment comes to a halt. Field music of each detachment takes post in rear of the band detailed for the ceremony. Commanders of detachments do not salute nor report to the Staff Officer, as in regimental guard mount.

4. Guard details will always be formed in two ranks for Brigade Guard Mount, and never in single rank.

5. At the command from the Staff Officer in charge: "Officers and non-commissioned officers, to the front and centre, March!" the officers of the guard close toward each other, and form in order of rank, from right to left, halting three yards from the Staff Officer. The non-commissioned officers pass by the shortest route, either around the flanks or through the intervals, and place themselves (senior on the right) three yards in rear of the officers. The Staff Officer then assigns the positions to be held by these officers and non-commissioned officers in the guard.

6. At the command, "Officers and non-commissioned officers, to your posts, March!" the senior officer of the guard stands fast. The other officers and non-commissioned officers face about and take the posts assigned them, by the shortest route. Platoon-commanders post themselves three yards in front of their platoons.

7. At the command, "Inspect your guard, Sir," the Commander of the Guard faces about, and commands: "Order Arms; Inspection Arms." He then returns his sword, and inspects the First Platoon. At the command, "Arms," the other chiefs of platoons return swords, and inspect their platoons. The band will play during inspection. When the inspection is ended, each officer draws his sword and takes post three yards in front of his platoon.

8. The band detailed for the ceremony of Brigade Guard Mount will report promptly to the Staff Officer in charge, on the parade ground, ten minutes before the time fixed for Brigade Guard Mount. The band, just before playing the main air of the "Sound off," will sound the customary three (3) flourishes or "cheers." At the end of the "Sound off," bands will also again execute three (3) flourishes or "cheers." The custom of playing one air down the line, and another air coming back, will be discontinued.

9. At the command, "Close order, March," officers will face about, and place themselves two yards in front of their respective platoons.

10. When the band (after passing the Officer of the Day in the review) wheels to the left and out of the column, the field music of the guard will detach itself from the band, and continue marching at the head of the guard.

13. The commander of the guard, placing himself on the left of the right guide, is now in command of the guard, and conducts it to its post.

AT THE GUARD CAMP.

14. As the new guard approaches the guard tent, the old guard is formed in line in double rank, with its field music two yards to its right, allowing ground enough on its right for the new guard to form there. The new guard conducts its march so as to pass directly along the front of the old guard, from left to right. As the head of the column of the new guard covers the left of the old guard in its march past, the commander of the old guard commands, "Present Arms," and the new guard having passed, he commands, "Carry Arms." The new guard marches past in quick time, arms at a carry, officers saluting. The field music of the new guard having marched three yards beyond the field music of the old guard, change direction to the right, and followed by the guard, change direction to the left when on a line with the file closers of the old guard. These changes of direction are without command. The commander of the new guard halts on the line of the front rank of the old guard, allows the new guard to march past him, and when its rear approaches, wheels it by fours to the left, halts it, establishes the left guide three yards to the right of the field music of the old guard, and on a line with its front rank, and then dresses the new guard to the left. The field music of the new guard is two yards to the right of its front rank.

15. The new guard being dressed, the commander of each guard in front of, and facing its centre, commands: "Present Arms" resumes his front and salutes with his sword. The officers having saluted, face their guards, and command: "Carry Arms; Order Arms!"

16. The ceremonies and movements in Brigade Guard Mount will otherwise conform as near as may be to Guard Mounting as laid down in the Tactics for Regimental Guard Mount.

17. The new guard will be divided into three reliefs, and sentinels will be posted and relieved, and guard duty performed generally, as laid down in the Tactics and the Manual of Guard Duty prepared for this Encampment; and failure to properly discharge the duties of a sentinel will be noted, and the record of delinquents, with name and company, published in orders.

OFFICER OF THE DAY.

18. The Officer of the Day will, after the ceremony of Guard Mount, repair at once to the guard tent and superintend the division of the new guard into three reliefs, and the turning over of prisoners and property to the commander of the new guard, seeing that all is properly done. He will inspect the guard tent and verify the number of prisoners, also in company with the old Officer of the Day.

19. After the ceremonies of turning over prisoners and property are completed, the old and new Officers of the Day will proceed together to Brigade Headquarters and report, the one as being relieved, and the other for orders.

20. The Officer of the Day has general charge of the camp. The guards and sentinels of the camp are under his general direction. He has charge of the order and discipline of the camp for twenty-four hours, and will visit all guards during the day and night, to instruct them and see that they perform their duty. He will make his rounds at least once between midnight and reveille. He will see that the officers and non-commissioned officers of the guard perform their duties properly, and that the guard is turned out promptly and properly, and that the accustomed salutes are paid to all distinguished officers entitled to the compliment. The Officer of the Day will communicate the Countersign and Parole to the Officer of the Guard before retreat, who will (with the Corporal of the Guard) transmit the Countersign to sentinels before twilight (or before the hour appointed for challenging). The Officer of the Day may direct patrols and special visits of Officer of the Guard to particular places to preserve order and vigilance throughout the camp. The Officer of the Day will enforce rigidly the police duties of the camp, seeing that refuse, straw and litter is buried or disposed of; streets, tents and spaces between them swept and kept clean. He is responsible for the cleanliness and general good order of the camp during his tour. He will be constantly on duty in full dress for the whole time of his tour of duty. He will see that every company polices in and around its quarters, and will have general police duty performed by prisoners and details from the old guard after police call. He will report all important matters to Brigade Headquarters, and there receive special orders and instructions. He will see that the Guard Report is properly made out, and compare it with that of the preceding day to see that requisite changes have been made, whether any prisoners are to be released by expiration of sentence, etc. On receiving the Guard Report from the Commander of the Guard, the Officer of the Day will make such remarks in the report as he thinks proper, and present the report at Headquarters on being relieved.

21. Before and after the Encampment there will be repeated drills in the armory of every Company in guard mounting and posting and instructing sentinels. Guard Mount in Companies and Regiments to be strictly Upton's Tactics. Officers and non-commissioned officers will also study Articles XXXIII, XL, and XLVI, U. S. Army Regulations (1881), and be guided by the Manual prepared for this Encampment.

By command of Brigadier-General Reece,

CHARLES F. MILLS,

Assistant Adjutant General.

DUTIES OF GUARDS AND SENTINELS.

Compiled by Brig.-Gen. Reece for use of Fourth Brigade.

PREFACE.

The efficiency and discipline of a body of troops are measured by the manner in which its Guard Duty is performed.

The attention of officers and men is called to the following criticism made by Brevet-Major H. C. Cushing, U. S. Army, in his report to the Adjutant General (July, 1883) on the encampment of the National Guard of Rhode Island:

"Too much time is devoted to the National Guard to the acquisition of a perfect manual of arms and in acquiring a painful precision in marching. The real effort should be expended in preparation for the emergencies for which the militia is primarily organized; and neither in riot, nor in actual war, is there ever any pressing need for an ideal alignment, or that every musket should move as one. But there is almost decided necessity that the soldier should thoroughly understand the duties of a sentinel, and comprehend the extreme honor and importance of his position as such."

It is recommended that practice in guard mounting and posting and instructing sentinels be held in the armory of every company during the winter. Officers and non-commissioned officers will carefully study Article XXXIII, U. S. Army Regulations (1881) in connection with "Guard Mounting" as laid down in the Tactics. "Regan's Manual of Guard Duty," (published by Harper & Brps., New York.) is also recommended for study.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR SENTINELS.

A Sentinel is a private soldier posted at a point of trust, to guard the camp, prevent surprise, and stop those who would pass without orders.

All persons, whatever their rank, are required to observe the greatest respect towards sentinels.

1. March the prescribed post to and fro in a soldierly and alert manner, carrying the piece at a "support," or "right shoulder," or a corresponding position on left shoulder. In rainy weather carry the piece at a "secure arms."
2. Upon being spoken to, or in speaking to any one, (except in challenging at night) take the position of "arms port." Avoid unnecessary conversation.
3. Allow no smoking, loitering, or nuisance to be committed near the post.
4. Take charge of all State property in view.
5. Sentinels on post must not take off their clothing or accoutrements, nor quit hold of their arms.

Calls.

6. (a) In case of any disturbance on or near the post which the sentinel is unable to quell, or any person attempts to cross his post without authority, or he wishes to be temporarily relieved, call "Corporal of the Guard No. —" (giving number of post).

Each sentinel will repeat all calls coming from posts more distant from the guard tent than his own. For example: If No. 6 should call out: "Corporal of the Guard No. 6!" No. 5, 4, 3, 2 and 1, repeat this call in the same words in the order named, until it reaches the Corporal at the guard tent.

(b) The Commanding Officer may require the hours, or half hours of the night to be called from taps until reveille. In such case the call will commence with Sentinel No. 1, who calls the number of his post and the time, as: "No. 1, twelve o'clock." No. 2 then calls the number of his post, repeats the hour and adds: All's Well! ("No. 2, twelve o'clock, all's well"). In this manner the call is passed through the whole cordon of sentinels. When the last sentinel has repeated the call, No. 1 will call: "All well round!" Should any sentinel fail to call in turn, a corporal and two men of the guard repair at once to the post not reported, to ascertain the cause.

Passes and Orders.

7. Allow no one to cross the post or beat (except commissioned officers) without a pass from the proper authority, or by order of the Officer of the Day, commander of the camp, or the officers or non-commissioned officers of the guard.

8. Obey no orders, except those coming from the commander of the camp, Officer of the Day, officers or non-commissioned officers of the guard. But, on obeying any orders different from those received upon being posted, call the "Corporal" and notify him of the fact. Be relieved by no one, and allow no person to take your arms, except those officers and non-commissioned officers above mentioned.

Salutes by Sentinels.

9. Salute all officers according to their rank, viz: all officers above the rank of Captain, Commander of the camp, and the Officer of the Day, with "present arms." All other officers with the "Sergeant's salute." In saluting, face outward (the back toward the thing guarded.) If an officer cross the post, or passes along in front (outside) of the post, salute. If he passes along, and in rear, (inside) do not salute but stand at attention (arms at a carry). If he continue standing on the post, march the post with arms at a carry while passing him.

10. Salute all bodies of armed men as large or larger than the guard, with "present arms." If commanded by a commissioned officer; all smaller bodies according to the rank of the officer commanding. No salutes are given after retreat. Between retreat and the hour for challenging, stand at attention to officers when they approach or pass the post, facing outward, arms at a "carry."

11. A sentinel about to salute will halt promptly, facing in the direction he happens to be walking; as he halts he brings his piece to a "carry." He then faces outward, as above stated, and salutes.

12. When the corporal approaches with the Relief and is 15 yards off, halt and bring the piece to a carry. At 6 yards distance the corporal will command "Relief, halt!" At this command the sentinel faces toward the Relief. The corporal will then command: "No.—Arms port!" at which command the sentinel will come to arms port, and advance toward the relieving sentinel (who also executes arms port). The old sentinel under supervision of both corporals whispers his instructions to the new sentinel; both then come to a "carry." The new sentinel faces outward and stands at attention and the old sentinel steps in rear of the new sentinel (also facing out, arms at a "carry") leaving space enough for the Relief to pass between the two sentinels. As the Relief passes, the old sentinel falls in the rear, bringing his piece to a support (or right shoulder) and marches off with the Relief.

13. Sentinels will allow no trifling, quizzing, or chaffing with them on post by commissioned officers, or any other persons. No one has the right to ask a sentinel what his instructions are, except General officers, the Commander of the Camp, the Officer of the Day, and officers and non-commissioned officers of the guard.

At the Guard Tent.

14. Sentinel No. 1 and those in vicinity of the guard tent will be selected for their soldierly bearing and neat appearance generally. The Guard is turned out by way of compliment to the Governor of the State, Adjutant-General, all general officers, the commanding officer of the camp, and to the Officer of the Day.

A sentinel at the guard tent, or vicinity, when he sees any body of troops or officer entitled to the compliment approach, will call loudly: "Turn out the guard!" and at the same time call out who approaches as, "Governor of the State!" "General Officer!" "Commanding Officer!" or "Officer of the Day!" as the case may be.

15. The guard also turns out when an armed body of troops approach or pass, and when commanded by a commissioned officer, the guard presents arms, officers saluting.

16. The field music of the guard will sound a march when the Governor of the State passes the guard; also when the National or regimental colors pass. When an officer of the rank of Brigadier-General passes, the field music will execute one ruffie, the trumpets (if any) sounding one flourish. The music will sound in each case at the command: "Present arms!"

17. The guard turns out and presents arms to officers entitled to the compliment as often as they pass or approach its post. If such officers pass in rear of the guard, it does not salute, but stands with arms at a carry facing to the front.

18. Should the officer or distinguished person not desire the salute from the guard, he will answer the call of the sentinel by saying: "Never mind the guard," and thereupon the sentinel will repeat or call out: "Never mind the guard!" and it will not be paraded.

19. Guards do not turn out as a matter of compliment after retreat sounds, nor will any compliments be paid by the guards between retreat and reveille (except as presented for Grand Rounds).

Night Orders for Sentinels.

20. The Countersign is a secret word given to guards and sentinels to distinguish or identify persons at night. It is given to such persons as are entitled to pass and re-pass during the night, and to officers, non-commissioned officers and sentinels of the guard. For officers commanding the guard a second word called the Parole is given from headquarters as a check on the former, and by which persons entitled to make a tour of inspection or grand rounds may be identified.

21. It is the gravest breach of military honor and discipline for an officer or soldier to give the countersign to any person not entitled to it.

22. No sentinel will give or impart the countersign to any person whatever. Sentinels receive the countersign from others, but never communicate it to any one (except relieving sentinel).

23. After retreat (or other hour appointed by the commanding officer) until broad day light a sentinel challenges every person who approaches him, taking at the same time the position of charge bayonet. He will suffer no person to come nearer than the point of his bayonet until the countersign is given, or the person is passed by an officer or non-commissioned officer of the guard.

24. A sentinel, in challenging, will call out—"Who comes there?" If answered—"Friend, give the countersign," and he be instructed to pass persons with the countersign, he will reply—"Advance, friend, with the countersign." If answered—"Friends," he will reply—"Halt, friends! Advance one, with the countersign!" If answered—"Relief," "Patrol," or "Grand Rounds," he will reply—"Halt, Advance Commander, with the countersign!" and satisfy himself that the party is what it represents itself to be. If he have no authority to pass persons with the countersign, if the wrong countersign be given, or if the persons have not the countersign, he will cause them to stand and call—"Corporal of the Guard!" (adding number of post).

25. After the countersign is given by the non-commissioned officer of the Grand Rounds, the sentinel will reply—"Advance Rounds," and thereupon the sergeant (or corporal) returns to his position, and the officer making the rounds comes forward and questions the sentinel as to his orders or instructions. As the rounds pass on, the sentinel will stand facing outward, arms at a "carry."

26. Sentinels will allow only one person to approach at a time to give the countersign; and when the countersign is right, and the sentinel is also satisfied that nothing is wrong,

He will answer: "Countersign is right; advance friend," (or other name given in answer to the challenge). If, in spite of the countersign, the sentinel is convinced that the person ought not to pass, he will call for Corporal of the Guard.

27. After challenging and receiving a reply from a mounted person or party, call out: "Halt! Dismount!" and then advance them as before explained for dismounted persons.

28. Sentinels challenge at night the corporal (or sergeant) with the relief as it approaches, and cause the same to halt, and then advance the commander of the relief to give the countersign.

29. Special instructions are often given to sentinels; particularly as to guarding prisoners at the guard tent, and as to guarding quartermaster and commissary stores, etc., which instructions are to be strictly observed. (See par. 8.)

At the Guard Tent at Night.

30. The sentinel at the guard tent does not receive the countersign. When any person approaches the post of the guard at night, this sentinel challenges. Receiving answer, he will call: "Halt!" and then call: "Corporal of the Guard, friend (or friends) with the Countersign," (according to the answer of the person challenged). The Corporal of the Guard then orders: "Advance friend," and receives the countersign (or advances one), etc.

31. If Officer of the Day, or other officer entitled to inspect the guard, is the party challenged, the corporal advances to within four paces of this officer and demands the countersign. The corporal then faces towards the guard tent and calls: "Turn out the Guard, Officer of the Day!" (or other title of officer). As soon as the guard is formed, the corporal will say: "The Countersign is right!" The commander of the guard then calls: "Advance, Officer of the Day!" (or as the case may be). If the Parole is demanded by the commander of the guard from the officer challenged, the former will advance beyond the hearing of any one except himself and so receive it.

32. The guard is never turned out by way of compliment after Retreat, unless especially ordered. It is turned out after Retreat for service, for inspection by Officer of the Day (or other officer entitled to inspect it), and on approach of the grand rounds.

33. The guard should turn out and stand to arms at night on approach of patrols, rounds, or any armed body of troops. Sentinel No. 1 will call out the guard.

GRAND ROUNDS.

Any general officer, the Commander of the Camp, and the Officer of the Day are entitled to make the grand rounds.

34. The Officer of the Day wishing to make the rounds will take an armed escort of a non-commissioned officer and two men. This escort marches in front of the officer, the non-commissioned officer between the two men.

35. When the rounds are challenged by a sentinel, the Commander of the escort (the non-commissioned officer) will answer: "Grand Rounds!" and the sentinel will reply, "Halt, Grand Rounds! Advance Commander With the Countersign;" upon which the commander (non-commissioned officer) advances and gives the countersign. The sentinel will then call: "Advance Rounds!" when the escort commander returns to his position. The officer making the rounds then advances and questions the sentinel as to his orders or instructions. When satisfied, he will join his escort and proceed to the next sentinel. As the non-commissioned officer advances to give the countersign, the two men of the escort face inward, facing each other, and step back one pace to allow the officer to pass between them, closing again on the non-commissioned officer, when he returns to his place.

36. When the sentinel before the guard post challenges and is answered, "Grand Rounds!" he will reply: "Halt, Grand Rounds! Turn Out the Guard! Grand Rounds!" Thereupon the guard will turn out and be drawn up in good order at carry arms, the officers taking their posts. The officer commanding the guard then directs a sergeant and two men to advance towards the rounds and challenge.

37. When within ten paces the sergeant halts and challenges: "Who Comes There?" The Commander of the Rounds escort answers: "Grand Rounds!" The Sergeant of Guard replies: "Advance Commander With the Countersign!" The escort Commander advances alone, gives the countersign, and returns to the rounds. The Sergeant of the Guard calls to his officer: "The Countersign is Right!" at which the Officer of the Guard calls: "Advance, Rounds!" The Officer of the Rounds then advances alone and is met by the Officer of the Guard just out of hearing of the guard, and receives the Parole. The Officer of the Guard may demand the Parole from the Officer of the Rounds. The guard stands at carry arms.

38. The Officer of the Rounds examines and inspects the guard, orders his escort to return to their guard, and taking a new escort proceeds in same manner to other sentinels and posts not visited.

39. All material instructions given to sentinels on post by officers entitled to make grand rounds, must be promptly notified to the Commander of the Guard by the officer who gives the instructions.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR SERGEANTS AND CORPORALS OF THE GUARD.

For Sergeants.

40. See that the reliefs are turned out at the proper time, and that corporals promptly obey the calls of sentinels. Receive prisoners and see that they are kept secure. Assist Officer of the Guard in dividing guard into three reliefs and making list of the guard. Sergeants will assist corporals in posting and relieving sentinels (the posts being numerous.)

41. Sergeants will familiarize themselves with their duties and those of Corporal of the Guard as laid down in Tactics and these instructions.

For Corporals.

42. Immediately after officers of the day have made their visit to the guard at guard-mount, it is divided into three reliefs. A corporal is assigned to each relief.

43. The first relief having been designated and brought to a carry arms, its corporal commands: "Call Off!" Commencing on the right, the men call off alternately front and rear rank: "One, two, three, four, five, six," and so on, according to number of posts. The Officer of the Guard then inspects the relief. The corporal then commands: 1. Right Face; 2. Support (or right shoulder) Arms; 3. Forward, March!

44. The corporal marches on the left and near the rear file. The corporal of the old guard marches on the right of the leading file, and takes command when the last one of the old sentinels is relieved, changing places with the corporal of the new guard. Both corporals carry arms.

45. At fifteen yards from a sentinel the corporal commands: "Relief Halt!" and then to the sentinel: "No. — Arms Port!" (For explanation of relieving the sentinel, see par. 12.)

46. When instructions are being whispered from old to new sentinel, both corporals, with arms at a carry, stand facing each other just outside the sentinels, the new corporal to the left of the new sentinel. After instructions are passed from old to new sentinel, both come to a carry, facing outward; the old sentinel in the rear of the new sentinel with space between sufficient for the relief to pass through. Both corporals then resume their positions as before prescribed and the corporal in charge then commands: "Support (or right shoulder) Arms; Forward, March!" As the relief passes, the old sentinel takes his place in its rear at a support (or right shoulder) arms. The other sentinels are relieved in the same manner.

47. The old relief on coming in will be reported by its corporal to the Officer of the Guard and will be then inspected by said officer.

48. A relief will always march in the greatest order; corporals and sergeants will see to this, and that sentinels perform their duties with spirit and exactness.

49. The corporal of each relief will answer all calls of his relief for "Corporal of the Guard," etc., but another non-commissioned officer may answer calls, if proper corporal is absent or engaged.

50. Each corporal will make a list of his relief for reference in case of necessity.

51. Corporals and sergeants will make at least one tour by day and one by night, visiting all sentinels with an officer who will give instructions in guard duty.

52. Corporals and sergeants of the guard receive no orders from any one except the Commanding Officer, Officer of the Day, and the commissioned and non-commissioned officers of the Guard.

53. When a sentinel is relieved for necessary purposes, the corporal on duty will see that he is again returned promptly to his post.

54. The corporal whose relief is on post at twilight (or the hour for challenging), will communicate the countersign to his relief, making a tour of the sentinels for that purpose, if necessary. Afterwards the countersign is communicated by the old sentinels to the new ones when they relieve each other.

55. Corporals are often called on to perform the duties of a sergeant (and vice versa.) They will, therefore, be familiar with the duties of each position.

OFFICERS OF THE GUARD.

56. Officers of the Guard will observe their duties as laid down in Article XXXIII, par. 356 to 363 inclusive, U. S. Army Regulations, 1881, and Upton's Infantry Tactics, par. 818, on "Guard Mounting."

57. Both old and new guards being at order arms at the guard tent, the officers of the new guard divide their guard into three reliefs, numbering them first, second and third, from right to left, and with the assistance of non-commissioned officers make out a list of the guard. Experienced soldiers will be placed over the arms of the Guard and at remote and responsible posts. For post No. 1, and those contiguous to it, select men of the nearest personal appearance and most soldierly bearing. The senior Officer of the Guard then takes formal possession of the guard tent and the articles and prisoners in charge.

58. The Officer of the Guard will observe these instructions: Inspect the sentinels of each relief, both when they go on and off their posts. Inspect the guard at Retreat and Reveille. Let the roll of the guard be called by the sergeant when the guard is paraded for inspection at Retreat and Reveille. Also turn out the guard for roll-call at Tattoo.

Accompany the corporal (if possible) at twilight, or hour for challenging, and see the countersign carefully communicated to each sentinel.

Turn out the guard promptly and with a vim. Be vigilant and correct in deportment and dress, thus setting an example for others.

Impress upon the men the necessity of soldierly bearing and neat personal appearance when on guard duty. Nothing is more calculated to show discipline and military efficiency than the appearance and bearing of sentinels on post, or the guard at its station.

See that all prisoners are kept securely.

Instruct the guard and sentinels in their duties, and to this end visit the sentinels frequently.

One officer at least must be constantly at the guard tent. Officers of the Guard will constantly wear their swords. None of the Guard must be allowed to take off any part of clothing or accoutrements, while on guard at guard tent, or while on post as a sentinel. This rule applies to officers of the guard also.

Keep a book or memorandum of entries of every member of the guard who is absent by authority, noting the hour of his departure and return.

Ten minutes will be allowed soldiers for purpose of visiting the sinks.

One officer of the guard must be on the alert, and vigilant, during every hour of the day or night. The night may be divided into watches for this purpose.

All orders received, whether verbal or written, will be turned over by the Commander of the old guard to the Commander of the new guard, on being relieved.

HEADQUARTERS SECOND BRIGADE, I. N. G., QUARTERMASTER DEPARTMENT.
SPRINGFIELD, November 23, 1864.

COL. CHAS. F. MILLS,

Assistant Adjutant General, Second Brigade, I. N. G.

SIR: I have the honor to submit the following report embracing the operations of this department in the preparation for and during the encampment, Second Brigade I. N. G. at Springfield, Ill., August 5th to 11th, 1864.

Upon the receipt of General Orders No. 2, Headquarters Second Brigade dated July 10, 1864, and under verbal instructions of the Brigade Commander, I commenced to clear the grounds selected for the encampment purposes, and on the 2d day of August began erecting the tents for occupancy of the troops composing the Second Brigade. The camp was laid as per plat herewith submitted.

Each regiment was supplied with tents according to number of companies, each company being furnished, for officers, two 9x9 wall tents. For enlisted men eight 9x9 wall tents.

Regimental headquarters were furnished tentage as follows: one 14x21, two 9x15, three 10x12 wall tents.

Brigade headquarters, which was located near the entrance to the camp grounds, had tentage as follows: seven 14x21, two 9x9 wall tents, one 20x30 wall tent for dining; while the Battery was supplied with two 12x12 tents, and ten 9x9 wall tents. The guards were furnished with twelve 9x9 wall tents.

The business of the Quartermaster's Department was transacted in a tent 30x50. This made a grand total of canvass used at the encampment of four hundred and thirty-five tents.

The Brigade headquarters, Regimental headquarters and line officers' tents were floored; there being no bed sacks for use, loose straw constituted the bedding for the enlisted men.

In addition to the canvass used, buildings, sheds and stabling were erected as follows:

For Commissary Department, store room, office for issue and boiler room, a building was erected 16x60; brigade kitchen, 12x12; horse sheds, building 16x75.

Garrison equipage for the purpose of repairing and polleing, an ample supply of axes, spades, rakes, etc., were provided by this department and were distributed with the view of keeping the sanitary condition of the camp up to a high standard. The different messes were supplied with all necessary utensils for cooking, including camp kettles, frying pans, tin plates, tin cups, knives, forks and spoons, all of the U. S. army style and pattern, and no complaints were received at any time regarding the supply of these articles. Horses were supplied by this department, under the orders of the Brigade commander, to the staff of the Governor, the General commanding and staff, mounted officers of the regiments, Battery "A," and such officers as visited the camp from the First Brigade.

The Regimental Quartermasters were all new in their positions, except those of the Sixth and Ninth Regiments, and were not as thoroughly instructed in their business as they should have been, yet I found very little cause for actual complaint, each endeavoring to obey such orders and instructions as were given them from time to time.

The Quartermasters of the Sixth and Ninth Regiments were of great assistance to me in my work, and I can only repay their good and willing works by this acknowledgment of their worth and efficiency. The work of laying out the camp, pitching the tents, erecting the necessary buildings, striking the tents and clearing the camp grounds was performed by hired laborers under my immediate supervision. The camp was in readiness for troops on August 5.

The expenditures of this Department were as follows:

For labor.....	$728 16
For carpenter work.....	187 65
For hauling.....	192 25
For fuel.....	211 54
For straw.....	97 65
For rent part of camp.....	15 00
For forage.....	92 00
For water supply, pipes, hydrants, etc.....	211 10
For rent of boiler for Commissary Department, Eng., etc.....	50 00
For powder for battery.....	20 00
For rope.....	15 00
For lumber.....	262 21
For water barrels.....	3 00
For rent of tents.....	38 45
For horse hire.....	1,128 07
For printing.....	57 00
For telegraphing.....	15 06
Total.....	$3,317 66

The vouchers for the above amounts were made out and forwarded to the Quartermaster General for approval and payment.

The mistakes of the past should enable us to avoid recurrences of the same in the future, and I recommend that in selecting the place for encampment that a tract of ground large enough to most effectually carry out the object of camp instructions and exercises in all of the tactics, especially battle tactics with skirmish formation, ranges for target-practice, be secured on line of railroad remote from towns. If a permanent camp is established for this Brigade, I would recommend that neat, one-story barracks should be erected for the troops and do away with tents, which require constant repairing and replacing. The men learn nothing by going into wall-tents; they do not pitch them, and in case they went into the field they would not be supplied with them.

Single tent sacks of uniform pattern should be furnished by the State, to be filled with clean straw for the use of the troops while in camp. These could be washed and would, in my opinion, be more cleanly and healthful.

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN C. BELL,

Capt. and A. Q. M. Second Brigade, I. N. G.

“I.”

HEADQUARTERS SECOND BRIGADE, ILLINOIS NATIONAL GUARD,
SPRINGFIELD, August 1, 1884.

General Orders No. 5.

I. Details for Brigade Guard during each day of the Fifth Annual Encampment of the Second Brigade, Illinois National Guard, will consist of one sergeant, one corporal, one musician from each regiment, and privates as follows: 5th Infantry, 30; 6th Infantry, 25; 7th Infantry, 22; 8th Infantry, 26; 9th Infantry, 32; Battery A, 1st Artillery, one corporal and three privates.

II. Commanding officers will see that their respective details each day are marched on to the parade grounds in front of Brigade Headquarters under the senior officer or non-commissioned officer of the detail, promptly at 8:30 A. M.

III. The Officer of the Day will post artillerymen at Brigade Headquarters.

By order of Brigadier-General Reece,

CHARLES F. MILLS,

Assistant Adjutant General.

HEADQUARTERS SECOND BRIGADE, I. N. G., COMMISSARY DEPT.,
SPRINGFIELD, December, 1884.

BRIG.-GEN. J. N. REECE, Commanding Second Brigade, I. N. G.:

GENERAL: I have the honor to make the following report of the subsistence department for the Fifth Annual Encampment of the Second Brigade, Illinois National Guard.

In compliance with S. O. No. 74, dated Headquarters Second Brigade, July 21, 1884, (see "A") requisition was made on the Commissary-General for subsistence stores for the use of this Brigade while attending this encampment, which were issued as per statement.

The rations consisted of fresh beef and ham every alternate day, fresh bread, beans, rice, coffee, tea, sugar, vinegar, candles, soap, salt, pepper, potatoes, pickles and mixed vegetables daily, and were issued in accordance with the regulations for the subsistence department of the United States army. Fresh beef and vegetable soup were furnished in addition to the regular ration without extra cost to the State (except for vegetables), it being prepared from the savings of such parts of fresh beef and stale bread as could not be utilized by the different messes in camp, and proved to be not only an acceptable addition to the regular ration, but very beneficial to the health of the troops, more especially those who had not the experience of "veterans" in cooking for themselves from 1861 to 1865, (when it was not what we subsisted on, but how to get it). Annual encampments, as schools of instruction in the manual of arms, manoeuvres and duties of the soldier, have been visited and complimented by officers of the army and members of the press. There is much credit due the company and regimental officers, whose duty it has been to look after and instruct the troops how to obtain their rations, and also how to prepare them. For the improvement they have made in this department with only a few days in each year to practice this important part of soldier life, I refer you to the last encampment, when nearly every command came into camp with ration returns ready for the approval of the Post-Commander, drew rations from the Commissary, and prepared their first meal nearly as quickly as old veterans. I mention this, that you may know to what extent the citizen soldiers in your command could be depended on if called into the field.

It is an accepted fact that the success of an army depends almost entirely on the health of the troops; too much attention can not be paid to their subsistence. Without good food at proper intervals no soldier can maintain his health. I would call your attention to a great want felt by most of the companies at our annual encampments. While the troops are armed and equipped in nearly everything necessary for active service, there are two articles which, if called into service, would be indispensable, and should be furnished every soldier in the Illinois National Guard: most of the companies have long and changeable routes to make before reaching camp, often twelve or more hours on the road; as no provision is made for subsistence while en route to and from encampments, haversacks and canteens should be furnished, for the convenience of the soldier, to take with him such subsistence as is necessary while traveling.

Very respectfully,

WILLIAM F. SMITH,

Capt. and A. C. S., Second Brigade, I. N. G.

HEADQUARTERS SECOND BRIGADE, I. N. G.,
SPRINGFIELD, August 11, 1884.

General Order No. 13.

Commanding officers of Regiments and Battery "A" of this command will direct that tents fall at the roll of the drum at 2 o'clock P. M., August 11, 1884.

Commanding officers will see that each tent is folded up compactly, the fly then folded, and the tent rolled up in the fly, the cords tied tightly and carefully with the guy ropes. No tent pins must be rolled up in the tents or flies, but the pins must be carefully drawn and turned over with the tents.

The ridge-poles and uprights must then be piled by companies, at the quarters of the Brigade Quartermaster.

All camp utensils must be carefully cleaned, dried and placed in piles by companies.

Pay-rolls for four days' service must be completed, signed and returned with the consolidated morning report of this date.

Commanding officers will forward without delay requisitions for return transportation. Sufficient rations to subsist the several commands until they reach home will be issued on approved ration returns.

By order of Brigadier General Jasper N. Reece, commanding.

CHARLES F. MILLS,

Assistant Adjutant General.

LIGHT BATTERY "A," ILLINOIS NATIONAL GUARD,
DANVILLE, August 25, 1884.

COL. CHAS. F. MILLS, A. A. G., Second Brigade I. N. G., Springfield, Ill.:

SIR: In compliance with General Order No. 10, from Headquarters Second Brigade Illinois National Guard, dated August 8th, 1884, I have the honor to submit the following report of the tour of duty of my command in connection with the Fifth Annual Encampment of the Second Brigade, I. N. G., to-wit: In compliance with General Orders No. 3 from Headquarters Second Brigade, I. N. G., dated July 24th, 1884, my battery proceeded by a special train from this city August 5th, 1884, at 12:17 p. m., arriving at Camp Logan, Springfield, about 5:30 p. m., where we found our camp in readiness for us. I immediately had straw ticks made for the tents, two for each tent, size of ticks 9 feet by 4½ feet, by means of which the men were enabled to keep their tents clean and tidy and have comfortable beds.

For the purpose of instruction the entire command each morning during the encampment performed the ceremony of Guard Mount (artillery), as prescribed by the tactics, with Lieut. E. S. Coffin as battery officer of the week. Our regular detail for guard duty was one corporal and three enlisted men, who were posted at Brigade Headquarters. Instead of having any regular detail stand for 24 hours, I caused a new detail to be made at the expiration of 12 hours, by which means all my non-commissioned officers and enlisted men in camp were enabled to have a tour of guard duty.

On Thursday morning, August 7th, I received horses for my battery and immediately harnessed and hitched up and moved out to accustom the horses to the harness and to have drivers' drill, to which work I devoted about two hours. Promptly at 1 o'clock that afternoon boots and saddles sounded, and in very short time the horses were harnessed and we proceeded to the general drill ground and devoted three hours to a mounted drill. In firing I found the horses would become almost unmanageable. Friday morning, August 8th, at 9 o'clock, we again hitched up and had mounted drill until 12 o'clock; did not unhitch but fed the horses by means of their nose bags. Promptly at 1 o'clock we again moved out and drilled one hour, by which time the horses were doing much better in every thing except they were very restless during firing. At 2 o'clock took our position in the brigade for review by the Commander-in-Chief. After the review we drilled until 6 o'clock and during the drill, at the request of the Commander-in-Chief, we executed in very good style "On Right into Line" from column of sections at a gallup. Halted, "Action, Front," and fired by battery, making the run of entire drill ground and back to starting point, about one mile, time from starting until first shot was fired, six and a half minutes. Had we known we were to be timed we could have executed it in two minutes less time. On Saturday morning we again had mounted drill until noon, and in the afternoon of that day took part in the street parade and also in the brigade dress parade, after which we turned in our horses. Altogether our mounted drills during the three days we were furnished with horses were very satisfactory, indeed.

Sunday morning, August 10th, camp and park were thoroughly policed, and at 11 o'clock were inspected (dismounted). At 6 o'clock that evening tents were struck and all Quartermaster's stores turned over to the A. Q. M., Captain Bell, and at 9:10 p. m., having previously loaded all our guns, caissons, &c., on cars in readiness for them, left Camp Logan for Danville, arriving there Monday morning, August 11, 1884, at 1:15 a. m.

The health of my men during the encampment was generally good. Some little sickness caused by change of water and habits, but nothing serious or that prevented any man from performing any duties required of him. My battery was ordered to report to the Surgeon of the 7th Infantry for medical treatment, to whom I desire to return thanks for his prompt attention to all cases from my command.

We devoted the time almost exclusively to mounted drills, owing to the fact that we are unable to have mounted drills only at the annual encampments, and during the entire year in our Armory the drills are confined to standing gun drill and school of the battery dismounted.

I would most respectfully recommend that at the next encampment, instead of going into camp in the middle of the week, arrangements be made to go into camp on Monday, leaving our respective stations on Sunday, and breaking camp on the following Sunday evening, giving an entire week for the encampment. Under the present system two weeks are broken up and only about four days secured in camp. The men should also have pay for the entire time, instead of for four days; it would encourage a better feeling and a more cheerful obedience to orders.

In conclusion I desire to return thanks to General Reece, Surgeon Dixon, Captain Bell, Captain Smith, yourself and the other members of General Reece's military family, for the many favors and attentions shown to myself and command during the encampment.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

EDWIN WINTER,

Captain Light Battery "A," I. N. G.

G

REPORT OF BRIGADIER-GENERAL CHARLES FITZ SIMONS, COMMANDING FIRST BRIGADE.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST BRIGADE, I. N. G.,
CHICAGO, October 1, 1884.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL J. W. VANCE,

Adjutant-General:

GENERAL: I have the honor to submit the following report to His Excellency the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, of the operations of the First Brigade, in a camp of instruction near Rockford, Ill., from July 14 to 19, 1884, inclusive, held in conformity to Special Order 113, dated General Headquarters, Springfield, Ill., May 31, 1884.

I have delayed making the report in order to collect certain data, which might prove of importance as affecting future encampments of the State troops, in the lessening of expense and making them effective in educating the troops.

The First Brigade had been in camp but once previously—in the summer of 1879—under another commander, and, until the various regiments reported to me at Rockford, I had never had an opportunity to inspect them or judge of their efficiency. As several of the regiments had rarely had an opportunity to assemble for drill or camp duty as entire commands, and had never been supplied with proper clothing and camping outfits necessary for a tour of camp duty, the work of organizing preparatory to going into camp and the details necessary to bring the brigade into working condition, after it had been assembled, was greater than though these conditions had failed to exist. The Commissariat and Quartermaster's departments had in a measure to be newly organized, and it was well known to the Brigade Commander that a portion of the troops were in no sense properly equipped for duty in camp in the event of bad weather. What uniforms the troops now possess were purchased with private funds, mainly contributed by the soldiers themselves. This has occasioned a variety of styles of uniform, and the soldier's equipments seldom were of that service character to stand him well for actual campaigning. It consisted generally of what is usually termed a dress coat, shako or helmet, trousers, and, in most instances, white cross belts and body belt. Few of the troops possessed overcoats, or a "kit" or knapsack. The dress uniforms were never of a character suitable for actual field work and the protection of the wearer, and the incongruities in style were so great as to make the equalization of the companies difficult. In this knowledge the companies were directed to conform to the following bill of dress as closely as possible: Dark blue blouse, light blue trousers, dark leather cartridge-boxes and belts (State equipments), white helmets. They were also instructed to carry their fatigue caps. This was done in the knowledge that a large proportion of the command could conform to the order without any new expense. The remaining companies joined in the effort to make this equipment general, and, as a result, the brigade as a whole, in camp, presented nearly a uniform appearance, and when massed or in column presented somewhat that of a body of United States troops in their fatigue or service dress. Many of the uniforms were very much worn, and few of the troops possessed overcoats, which were found essential in rainy weather and for night patrol duty.

The camp selected was north of the city of Rockford, on the banks of the Rock river, and had been occupied during the war of the rebellion by various bodies of Illinois volunteers, and had already received the name of Camp Fuller. The regimental camps were pitched within an area of 15 acres, and were necessarily too close to each other for the easy enforcement of proper camp discipline. The parade ground adjacent contained 20 acres of rolling ground, possessing a firm turf, but likewise inadequate for brigade evolutions, except when massed. Owing to the short period of encampment, the camp was pitched by a working party, hired for that purpose, to enable the troops to enter upon their camp duties without delay. The tents were of the ordinary wall pattern, 9x9, and were expected to accommodate five or six soldiers each, as the exigencies of the encampment might require. Each soldier was supplied with a woolen blanket by the State, and a quantity of loose straw for bedding purposes. In the case of the First Infantry, bed-sacks were supplied by that command for the use of its troops, and the straw being carefully sacked, it afforded the soldiers more comfortable beds and an altogether tidier camp.

The State furnished each company with camp kettles and pans for cooking over an open fire, and this rule was followed by the Fourth Infantry and First Cavalry, in providing for their messes, but the remaining commands generally had procured the use of portable oil stoves, which had been found economical and suitable for the work required of them. The cooking was usually done by hired cooks.

The commands reporting for duty were: First Infantry, Col. E. B. Knox; 2d Infantry, Lieut.-Col. Robert Vierling; 3d Infantry, Col. C. M. Brazee; 4th Infantry, Col. Fred Bennett; 1st Cavalry, Lieut.-Col. Welter; Battery "C," Maj. R. M. Woods; Battery "D," Maj. E. P. Tobey. The following table represents the average strength of the brigade on duty:

No soldiers were excused from the performance of the full tour of duty, except in three instances, where the imperative nature of the case was considered sufficient to permit them to return to their homes before the close of the encampment.

The cavalry detachment performed its tour of camp duty dismounted, though a sufficient number of horses had been procured for mounting one troop, and which performed effective provost duty, and also served as an escort on several occasions.

Battery "C" was not supplied with caissons and worked in the field without them. Battery "D" had a full equipment. Horses were selected by Maj. Tobey, especially fitted for battery work, and the animals being made very soon acquainted with firing of the field pieces, and becoming adapted to the work in other ways, the drill of the battery was marked with effectiveness and was very creditable in every way. Battery "C" worked under some disadvantages, but in all the features of its working drill displayed skill and proficiency in the working of their guns.

In the manual of arms and in all their marching movements the infantry commands, without exception, showed commendable proficiency. The great lacking was in the proper knowledge of the duties of a sentinel among the troops, and many of the officers lacked a proper knowledge of their duties during the ceremony of guard mounting and as officers of the guard. On the First Brigade guard mount detachments were reported without having passed a proper inspection. Many of the men were without gloves, and their general appearance was certainly not soldierly. After the first guard mount the detachments were reported promptly, the men were always neat and in proper condition for inspection, and the ceremony was in a measure perfect.

A brigade dress parade occurred each day, and after the first parade, when several of the commands failed to report in time, it was well performed and generally with great precision. Regimental dress parades usually followed that by brigade. Three brigade drills occurred, during the progress of one of which a battery was brought into action. The brigade was exposed to a flanking fire from Battery "D" while marching in column of fours by the flank. The brigade line was formed in masses faced to the rear, the movement being executed under cover of a rise of ground, and the line was then moved forward, the battery having taken a new position direct in front of the new brigade line. Battery "C" was moved up to the support of the brigade, taking a position in the centre. After throwing out a skirmish line, the main force advanced under the protecting fire of the battery, the movement concluding by the retreat of the attacking battery. This was the only instance during the encampment when blank cartridges were used, in an effort to add reality to any of the field movements.

No ground could be found suitable for the establishment of a rifle range, and much to the regret of the brigade commander, no rifle practice was possible during the period of the encampment.

Few of the companies showed any knowledge of the skirmish drill and it will be my special duty to impress upon regimental commanders to arrange for drill by companies, and, when practical, by regiments, in skirmish drill and firing, prior to the holding of another brigade encampment.

I have the honor to invite your attention to the subjoined reports of Capt. E. A. Potter, Brigade Quartermaster, in which the expense of preparing the camp for the reception of the troops and the cost of maintaining the troops in camp is stated. With the experience of the encampment fresh in mind, I am led to strongly recommend the selection of a permanent camping site for this brigade, or one which can be used conjointly by all the State troops. This, in my judgment, can be secured and maintained from a saving of the amount required to pitch a new camp each year. The benefits which would follow the establishment of a permanent camp are obvious.

It would make needless a search for suitable grounds, which can be discovered only in rare instances possessing sufficient area and suitable for all the purposes of so large a camp.

A construction of rifle ranges, sinks, shed for animals and quartermaster and commissariat storehouses, also the sinking of wells, once having been accomplished the expense would not again recur.

Any improvements, once made, would be permanent in their character, and the troops would have the benefit of them.

The chief item of expense, by the pitching of a permanent camp,—that of transportation of camp equipage and stores from the depot,—would be almost entirely obviated, provided the camp selected was in close proximity to the railway, so that all camp baggage and commissary stores could be landed inside the camp.

The benefits which would accrue to the troops from the establishment of a permanent camp, as compared to a temporary one, cannot easily be enumerated in a brief space. Its chief advantage would be, that it could be occupied at any time, by any body of the State troops, for the purpose of drill or target practice, so that its benefits would extend the year through, instead of being confined to a few days. The State camp equipage, and the company and regimental camp property, could be stored on the grounds, saving all expense of freightage, and thus enable the troops to repair to camp without the confusion and work otherwise incident to going to an unimproved camp, carrying their property with them each time. All the work incident to the pitching and striking of tents could then be accomplished without extra expense, and every moment of the time allotted could be given up to military duties. The tract secured for camp purposes should embrace from 160 to 200 acres, which should not cost the State to exceed $40 an acre, or an original expenditure not to exceed $8,000 for land. The construction of buildings and rifle-ranges would not exceed $7,000 additional, or a total expenditure of $15,000. The care of the grounds would not exceed $1,500 annually, which could be saved from the item of cartage and purchase of lumber alone.

The paramount necessity of the troops at this time is a State uniform. I have the honor to recommend that the necessities of the troops in this regard be brought to the attention of the State Legislature. As I have already remarked, they are illy clad at best, and at their own expense, and if not properly clothed and equipped they cannot display the efficiency which should be expected from the troops of this State. Once properly clothed, it is my judgment thereafter the equipment could be maintained, without any direct appropriation, from the saving from a properly administered militia fund.

I subjoin to this report the reports submitted by the various brigade staff officers.

I cannot close this report without commending the alacrity displayed by all officers and soldiers in responding to orders, and in exerting themselves to make the camp perfect in the point of discipline. The regiments, as a whole, are composed of a splendid soldierly element, capable of the highest efficiency. Experience proved the necessity of a longer period of encampment, which should extend at least over six to eight days. With the benefit to be derived from at least one yearly encampment, and if properly equipped, I have reason to have absolute faith in the troops of this brigade performing creditably any proper duty which might ever devolve upon them.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

CHAS. FITZ SIMONS,

Brig.-Gen. Com'd'g First Brigade.

APPENDICES TO REPORT OF FIRST BRIGADE.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST BRIGADE I. N. G.,
CHICAGO, July 21, 1884.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL CHAS. S. DIEHL,
A. A. G. First Brigade I. N. G.:

SIR: I have the honor to report that at the late Brigade Encampment at Rockford, Ill., owing in part to the nature of the ground and in part to the proximity of the encampment to the city of Rockford, it was found impossible to obtain a rifle range for practice without danger to the surrounding inhabitants and to people using the public roads. For these reasons, rifle practice was found to be impracticable.

I have also the honor to report that, in my tour of duty as Provost Marshal, I found the officers and men of the First Brigade who visited the city of Rockford on passes issued by the proper authority, to be uniformly courteous, sober and well behaved, so much so in fact that not a single arrest was made for disorderly conduct.

Respectfully submitted.

THOS. C. CLARK,

Lieutenant-Colonel, Inspector Rifle Practice and Acting Provost Marshal.
Official:
CHARLES S. DIEHL, A. A. G.

FIRST BRIGADE I. N. G., INSPECTOR'S DEPARTMENT,
CHICAGO, July 21, 1884.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL CHARLES S. DIEHL,
A. A. G. First Brigade I. N. G., Chicago, Ill.:

SIR: I have the honor to submit herewith a report of the conduct and condition of the First Brigade during its encampment at Camp Fuller, near Rockford, July 14 to July 18 inclusive, touching but briefly upon the various points which came under my personal observation, and leaving all details to the heads of departments, who will doubtless make similar reports.

GROUNDS AND QUARTERS.

I judged that the grounds were especially well adapted to the health, comfort and convenience of the troops, both for quarters and parade, being elevated, clean and dry, and covered with a thick sod.

The pitching of tents was nearly perfect in all the commands except the First Cavalry, which command was crowded into a small space, owing to an error of calculation. The quarters of the officers and men were, as a rule, kept in cleanly order.

In this connection I would submit a comparative statement, showing the condition of the several regiments, battalions and batteries composing your command, as follows:

CAMP EQUIPMENTS AND COMMISSARY SUPPLIES.

From the fact that I heard few complaints in regard to the issue of camp equipments and subsistence, and from my own personal observation, I should say that the quartermaster and commissary departments were excellently managed, and that Captains Potter and Buchanan, the respective heads, are entitled to great credit for the zeal and efficiency displayed by them in conducting their arduous duties.

SINKS.

Each command had its own sinks, which were under the supervision of the sanitary officers of the camp, and I heard of no complaint concerning them.

DRILL AND DISCIPLINE.

In the matter of drill, discipline and general competency, the brigade averaged extremely well. While some commands showed considerable need of training, others were high on the road to perfection, and all manifested a disposition to take advantage of all the facilities which were afforded to assist them in acquiring information and efficiency.

GUARD DUTY.

This branch of camp work was, with a few notable exceptions, but indifferently performed, and the fact was all the more annoying because the commanding officers were fairly warned to thoroughly instruct their recruits in this most important feature of the service. It was, however, very encouraging to see the junior officers and men do their best to profit by the instruction which was untriflingly meted out to them by their seniors, and it was with pride that I noticed a decided improvement along the line, toward the end of our short encampment. Could we have had double the length of time allotted to our troops for field duty, I will venture to assert that we might have returned with more than double the amount of efficiency. There were many new recruits doing duty as sentinels, who, in my opinion, should have been instructed in at least the first principles of guard duty before they were intrusted with the care of a post.

I would suggest that a general order be issued from Brigade Headquarters, requiring all company commanders to devote a portion of each drill throughout the year to instructing recruits in the all-important, but much neglected, duties of a sentinel.

Under the personal instructions of General Fitz Simons, I visited every relief of the guard, and went the "grand rounds" every night except one. I endeavored to instruct each sentinel as to his duties in detail, and gave such suggestions to the officers of the guard as I was able. Both officers and men were apparently not only willing, but anxious to learn all points which they had not mastered, and not an instance occurred which led me to believe that my instructions were not taken in a kindly and grateful spirit.

BRIGADE EVOLUTIONS.

Although long prejudiced against brigade evolutions to any great extent as an instrument of practical instruction to National guard troops, believing that valuable time would be taken up which could be better spent by regiments composed of scattered companies in battalion drill, I have become a partial convert in favor of division movements, for the reason that I judged from what I saw that each and every command of men in the brigade received practical instruction in company, battalion and brigade drill at one and the same time, thus enabling officers and men to discover the real object of many movements which might look senseless to an inexperienced recruit, when witnessed in connection with the work of a separate company in an army. In camp all were given an opportunity to learn the company movements and their ultimate objects. I think that some brigade drilling is beneficial.

RIFLE PRACTICE.

There were no exercises in target practice whatever during the encampment. I would respectfully refer you to the report of the staff officer in charge of that department for particulars.

On the whole, Colonel, if you will permit me, I would say that, in my opinion, although some few mistakes may have been made by officers and men, of high and low degree, our last brigade encampment was one of profitable instruction to all connected therewith. The only regret is, the time was not half long enough to justify the great expense of pitching and striking the camp.

I have the honor to be,

Your obedient servant.

ELLIOTT DURAND,

Major and Inspector-General First Brigade.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST BRIGADE I. N. G., QUARTERMASTER'S DEPT.,
CHICAGO, October 13, 1884.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL C. S. DIEHL,

A. A. G. First Brigade I. N. G.:

COLONEL: I have the honor to submit, for the information of the commanding General, the following report of the operations of the Quartermaster's Department during the encampment of the First Brigade, at Camp Fuller, on July 14 to 19 inclusive:

The site selected for the encampment contained about 35 acres, of which 15 acres were occupied by the camp and 20 acres as a parade ground.

The rental of the grounds, together with the expense of sinking four "drive wells," was generously donated by the citizens of Rockford.

The camp was lighted at night by ten electric lights, mounted upon tall masts, the expense of which was defrayed from the proceeds of the rental of the sutler's privilege.

The camp equipage belonging to the State was shipped to Rockford, on July 8, in charge of an employe of the State arsenal; that portion of the equipment which the State could not furnish being rented from dealers in Chicago.

The tents were pitched and struck by laborers and the State property turned over on the field to an officer of the arsenal. The expense in this department was as follows, viz:

Teaming	$333 00
Carpenters and laborers	704 93
Rent of tents, tent pitchers, etc.	422 41
Lumber	625 00
Hardware	23 74
Horse hire	1,064 15
Forage	334 17
Straw	139 16
Water barrels	37 50
Fuel	218 15
Ice	49 43
Pointing	7 80
Targets	8 20
Powder	60 00
Labor, breaking camp	98 25
Rent of ground for stable and sinks ..	15 00
Sundries	46 92

Total (not including transportation) $4,187 81

I am unable to give the total cost of transportation, as all the railroad companies transporting the troops, except the Chicago and Northwestern, sent their accounts direct to general headquarters at Springfield. The transportation bills of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway Co. amounted to—

Transportation of artillery, horses and camp equipment.....	$566 17
Transportation of officers and men	2 136 54
Total transportation Chicago and Northwestern Railway.....	$2,764 71

I would respectfully recommend that a modification be made in the form of transportation vouchers now in use—that the blanks be bound in book form and numbered, with stubs corresponding with vouchers; that they be issued only to the proper officers by the Brigade Quartermaster. Such a system would enable the Quartermaster to account for all transportation blanks and rectify abuses to which the present system is liable.

The ground occupied for this encampment was altogether inadequate, in size, for the number of troops in the field; and in this connection I would respectfully suggest that, in view of the difficulty in finding suitable grounds for the encampment of the brigade, and the large expense incurred each year in putting the grounds in order, erecting sheds, building sinks, rifle-batts, etc. (most of which expenditure is lost, so far as permanency is concerned), if the State would establish a permanent camp at some point within fifty miles of Chicago, located near one or more of the principal railroads, after the first outlay for such a camp, a saving of at least $2,000 could be made in the expense of the annual encampments. Permanent stables, guard-houses and sinks could be built and rifle-ranges established. Companies or regiments could visit such a camp at convenient times throughout the year and derive the benefit of camp duty, drill and rifle practice, in addition to that of the regular encampment.

I have the honor to be,
Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

REPORT OF CAPT. J. A. P. HAMPSON, U. S. A., ON THE SECOND BRIGADE ENCAMPMENT.

FORT WAYNE, MICH., September 25, 1888.

To the Adjutant-General, U. S. Army:

SIR: In compliance with paragraph 1, Special Orders No. 159, Department of the East, August 25, 1888, I have the honor to submit the following as the result of my observations while at the camp of the Second Brigade Illinois National Guard:

The camp was in the suburbs of Springfield, Ill.—was called Camp Logan. The encampment continued for six days, from August 30 to September 4, 1888. Brig. Gen. J. N. Reece was in command of the brigade and camp. He had the following staff: Lieut. Col. C. F. Mills, Assistant Adjutant General; Lieut. Col. W. J. Fort, Judge-Advocate; Lieut. Col. J. M. Rice, Inspector of Rifle Practice; Maj. J. W. Vance, Assistant Inspector of Rifle Practice; Maj. T. G. Black, Surgeon; Capt. J. C. Bell, Acting Quartermaster; Capt. W. F. Smith, Acting Commissary of Subsistence; Lieut. B. C. Winston, Aide-de-camp, and Lieut. Daniel Stevens, Aide-de-camp.

The troops of the brigade in camp were companies B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I, and K, Fifth Regiment, Col. James H. Barkley commanding; Companies A, C, D, E, F, G, H, and I, Sixth Regiment, Col. William Clendenin commanding; Companies C, F, H, I, and K, Seventh Regiment, Col. C. A. W. Fash commanding; Companies A, B, C, D, E, F, I, and H, Eighth Regiment, Col. Rely M. Smith commanding; Companies A, C, D, E, G, H, I, and K, Ninth Regiment, Col. Louis Krughoff commanding; Battery A, Capt. Edwin Winter commanding; Battery C, Maj. R. M. Woods commanding, of the First Brigade. There was also present in camp at various times the Commander-in-chief, Gov. John M. Hamilton, and his staff; also the commander of the First Brigade, Illinois National Guard, Brig. Gen. Charles Fitz Simons, and his staff.

The ground for the camp was very good, but was not quite ample enough for the encampment of a brigade. The infantry was put in camp according to tactics, with the exception of the company kitchens, which were on the wrong flank; but the ground would not permit of it otherwise. The artillery was not camped strictly in accordance with tactics; but the ground was not large enough for the purpose.

The encampment was for the purpose of instruction, and the time was taken up by company and battalion drills, battalion and brigade dress parades, inspections, reviews, grand guard mountings, and target practice.

Some of the companies drilled very finely and some very poorly. The battalion drills were fair as a whole. The Fifth and Sixth Regiments drilled much the best. Some of the company officers needed instruction; others, again, seemed to be well posted in their duties. The principal mistakes I noticed were that guards were posted, too frequently, where not required; dressing the companies to the wrong flank, and officers facing in the wrong direction when dressing their companies; and frequently the commands not given correctly by the battalion commanders, and a misconception of commands—for instance, marching the battalion by the flank in column of fours, the command was given, "Continue the march, fours right, march," instead of "Fours right, march," "Guide center." Officers used their swords too much in dressing their companies, instead of keeping them at a carry; and here I might say that at inspection most all the officers brought their swords, when approached by the inspector, to the position prescribed for non-commissioned officers with swords.

The discipline was not as good as it ought to have been; there was too much talking and looking about. The men were not steady enough in the ranks; I noticed this especially at dress parade. Company C, Captain Brinkerhoff, Fifth Regiment; Company C, Captain Reed, Sixth Regiment; and Company H, Captain Vance, Eighth Regiment, were notable exceptions. They drilled finely and showed a good state of discipline. There were other companies which drilled well, but many of them showed a want of instruction and discipline. The setting up drill seemed to have been neglected. The grand guard mounting was not good; it showed want of instruction and discipline. The staff officer who mounted the guard, Major Vance, understood his duties, but he was but one in many. The guard duty was not well done; the sentinels were not thoroughly instructed in their duties, and they lounged too much on their posts; there were exceptions to this. Some of the sentinels understood their duties very well, and realized the responsibilities of the position of a sentinel. The police of the camp did not receive the attention it ought to have done.

At inspection I found the arms of many of the companies in bad condition; not properly cleaned, and some rusty. The accoutrements and armaments were not properly cleaned. The arms and accoutrements of some of the companies were in very good condition. The police about the company streets was good, but about the mess table it was bad. The mess furniture was not in good condition; the knives and forks needed scouring. The companies had plenty of good wholesome food, and well cooked. The dinner of Company C, Fifth Regiment, looked very tempting. The company street and tents of Company C, Sixth Regiment, were in the best condition of any of the companies. I witnessed a very fine drill by a section of Captain Winter's Battery A. The target practice was not as effective as it might have been, for want of flags on the range to indicate the direction and strength of the wind.

The staff departments were well managed. The commissary department deserves special mention. It was under the control of Capt. W. F. Smith, an efficient officer. It was provided with the regular army ration, and everything was of the best. There was ham in lieu of salt pork. A feature of that department was a steam-heating apparatus, by which rations were well cooked for the companies in a short space of time. Good hot soup was ready at all times to be issued to troops upon their arrival in camp. The engine used for furnishing the steam was utilized for lighting the camp by night with electric lights. Captain Bell, the energetic quartermaster, was always on hand and ready for any emergency; he did his work well. The wants of the sick were well looked after by the surgeons, Colonel Dixon and Major Black.

There was a street parade by the Second Brigade through Springfield, passing in review before the Governor; there was also a grand review of the troops by the Governor in the camp, and on both occasions the troops marched well and presented a fine appearance.

There was a sham battle during the encampment, the object of which was to see how soon the troops could turn out under arms. They formed promptly and in good time, and executed their maneuvers very creditably.

Finally, I should say that the encampment, as a whole, was a success, and very honorable to the State. The troops would have looked much better and have appeared to a much better advantage had they all been uniformed alike; but the State does not uniform its soldiers. They have to buy their own uniforms, and, as a consequence, there are about as many different uniforms as there are companies, and they present a motley appearance. The State furnishes the arms, pays the expense of the encampment, and pays a dollar a day to each soldier for the time of the encampment.

There should be a better militia law to make the National Guard effective and what it ought to be. It should be fostered and cared for by the General Government. It should be well armed, well uniformed, and well paid, and the camps of instruction should be for longer periods, and made, what they claim to be, camps of instruction exclusively.

The Second Brigade Illinois National Guard is made up of splendid material. In its ranks are men from every walk in life—lawyers, doctors, ministers, editors, bankers, civil officers, skilled mechanics, laborers, rich and poor. It is a splendid body of men, and by drill and discipline can be made a tower of strength to keep law and order.

In closing, I will say that I was treated with the greatest kindness and utmost consideration by every one. General Reece is a fine officer, well understanding the necessities and responsibilities and requirements of the service. He has a staff of competent and gentlemanly officers. Brig. Gen. I. H. Elliott, Adjutant-General of the State, is an officer full of energy and enthusiasm. He was very much interested in the success of the encampment. He met with a sad bereavement during the encampment in the death of his mother, which necessitated his absence from the camp most of the time.

Capt. Edwin Winter, Battery A, wished me to present a request of his, that one, two, or three of his battery might be sent to Fort Leavenworth for instruction. Captain Winter and his battery were highly spoken of to me. He impressed me as a very capable officer, and one who was desirous of making his battery an honor to the National Guard.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

J. A. P. HAMPSON,

Captain, Tenth Infantry.

REPORTS OF LIEUT.-COL. N. B. SWEITZER, U. S. A., ON ENCAMPMENTS FIRST AND SECOND BRIGADES, 1884.

CHICAGO, ILL., August 20, 1884.

Assistant Adjutant General, Division of the Missouri.

Sir—I would respectfully report, that in obedience to paragraph 2, Special Orders No. 82, Headquarters Division of the Missouri, dated July 23, 1884, I proceeded to Camp Logan, the camp of the Second Brigade, I. N. G., located north of the city of Springfield, Ill., and near the city limits. I reported my arrival to Brigadier-General J. N. Reece, I. N. G., commanding the Brigade and camp.

The command consisted of Brig.-General J. N. Reece and staff, aggregate 10.

Fifth Regiment I. N. G., Colonel J. H. Barkley, field, staff and band and eight companies; aggregate present, 292.

Sixth Regiment I. N. G., Colonel W. Clendenin, field, staff and band and eight companies; aggregate present, 299.

Seventh Regiment I. N. G., Lieut.-Col. J. Elder, field, staff and band and seven companies; aggregate present, 316.

Eighth Regiment I. N. G., Colonel R. M. Smith, field, staff and band and eight companies; aggregate present, 282.

Ninth Regiment I. N. G., Colonel L. Krughoff, field, staff and band and seven companies; aggregate present, 362.

Battery "A," I. N. G., four 3-inch guns, four caissons, four horses each; officers mounted; commanded by Captain E. Winter; aggregate present, 57.

Chicago Light Infantry (colored), Capt. A. Brown, commanding; aggregate present, 53.

Grand aggregate present with Second Brigade, I. N. G., at Camp Logan, 1,761.

The ground for camp and drill ground was in form of letter L.

The infantry camped in column of companies on side of long arm of the area. The cook fires and mess tents on the right flank of companies; the company officers in line further to the right, and regimental field and staff outside of company officers on same flank still further to the right.

Brigade Quartermaster and Commissary store tents and temporary wood structures and sutler's tents on the flank—behind row of regimental staff.

The Brigade Headquarters tents were on side of short arm of L. with the battery opposite. The guard tents on side of camp nearest town.

The command was sheltered in tents same as used for First Brigade at Rockford, principally wall tents. The mess tents large and similar to hospital tents. A temporary board shed was erected for officers riding horses.

The camp was on good hard soil covered with short grass. Water was obtained from hydrants with pipes connecting with water supply of the city, conveniently located. The sinks were pits dug on the right flank of camp some distance from the lines of tents. They were provided with seats and enclosed by a close board fence. They were daily disinfected by earth thrown in.

The tents of officers were floored, the men's were not. Loose straw was generally used for bedding by the enlisted men. Battery "A" had bed sacks for holding their straw for bedding, which was much preferable, preventing the straw from being scattered about the camp and allowing better police and airing ground in tents, and a neater arrangement of the interior of the tents. The bed sacks were provided by the battery.

The State allows one blanket per man during camp. The blankets are returned to the State after encampment.

There was a brigade hospital tent pitched but it was not used during the encampment. The cases of sickness (very light) were treated in the company tents. A surgeon was detailed daily for general duty of camp. Regular inspections of camp and messes made daily. Regimental surgeons attended men sick in quarters. No serious cases requiring treatment in brigade hospital during camp.

The camp, though well planned, had the regiments too closely camped together to allow proper police guards to regimental camps. The line of sentinels enclosing the whole area of camp, including drill grounds, required too large a detail with long intervals between sentinels, which made it difficult to carry out orders to prevent persons crossing the line. The length of the grounds allowed the regiments to form simultaneously on the flank of camp, but the grounds were not of sufficient extent to allow the regiments to drill properly at the same time, especially at skirmish drills.

The headquarters of Brigade and Regiments had separate messes with cooks hired by the officers. The company messes had cooks hired by the companies; the company officers messed with their respective companies.

The State allows one ration per day for each officer and soldier, and one dollar per day for each officer and soldier for four days while in camp. The cooking by companies was generally by camp fires; in some cases sheet iron camp stoves were used. The messing was well conducted and food well cooked and good in quality. Th

State furnishes camp kettles, mess pans, knives, forks and spoons, tin plates and cups; camping implements, spades, axes, mauls and wash basins to officers. The officers and some company messes provided their own table furniture and cooking utensils; noticeably company "C," 5th regiment, from Springfield, and at home, had a very elaborate mess arrangement and table furniture.

The infantry regiments of this brigade, made up of companies from different localities, were uniformed according to the fancies of the different companies, which gave a variegated appearance to the regiments, and detracted from the uniform and military appearance which a regiment presents when uniformed the same throughout.

The battery was in mounted artillery uniform. The undress uniform similar to the U. S. Army, being cheap and serviceable, would, if adopted for camp by the whole regiment, give a more uniform and military appearance.

The infantry was armed with Springfield rifle, breech loading, calibre 45, throughout, excepting Company "A," 9th Regiment, and the Chicago Light Infantry company, who had calibre 50. The arms were generally in fair condition.

The cartridge boxes and belts were of various patterns. Some old and some new styles; some of material and pattern according to fancy of company. (Note.—Should be furnished by the General Government.)

Battery "A," four 3-inch rifled guns and caissons, four horses each. Officers mounted. Horses hired during camp (four days). Ammunition, blank. State furnishes no fixed ammunition. Had a few solid shot furnished by battery. State furnishes horse equipments. The four guns donated by special act of Congress. The State furnished two gun carriages and limbers and two caissons. The battery itself bought two gun carriages and limbers and two caissons.

The battery was in remarkably good condition, well drilled, military in appearance. It was a matter of surprise that in so short a time (four days) horses hired from teams should be handled, manœvered and accustomed to firing. It shows that horses broken to harness and accustomed to work can, in skillful hands, be formed into artillery teams and used to manœver a battery after a few drills. With skillful officers and good drivers the horses give little trouble.

The appearance of the infantry was generally good except as to uniformity in dress. The personal appearance was good, hair properly cut, faces properly shaven, young and active.

The 5th and 6th regiments, as regiments, were in best condition as to general appearance, though some individual companies of the other regiments presented a better appearance than the 5th and 6th. The 5th regiment, taken all together, was rather the best in general appearance.

The Chicago Light Infantry (colored) company was among the best in cleanly, soldierly appearance.

The camp was daily and well policed. The A. C. S. of the Brigade, Capt. Smith, had a very convenient and successful mode of cooking by steam: a boiler similar to those used by portable steam engines, a gas pipe connected with boiler and pierced at proper intervals with pipes with stop cocks. The branches led into ordinary barrels with lids to them; in these barrels were placed any articles to be cooked: as vegetables or hams, either loose in the barrels or in tin vessels, as soup, rice, or any food requiring cooking. When cooked sufficiently the steam was turned off by stop-cock on the branch leading into that particular barrel. Such articles as I tested were well cooked. Some such arrangement could be attached to army ranges and stoves, with great saving in expense and increase of capacity to stoves or ranges in cooking.

The duties of camp were regulated by orders from Brigade Headquarters. The reports and daily records were kept on blanks furnished for that purpose.

The time from Reveille to Retreat was fully occupied by duties, the system of duties as prescribed in the U. S. Army Regulations being conformed to until guard mounting. After guard mounting the time was occupied by drills, reviews, until evening parade. The guard mounting was by brigade. Owing to the many kinds of uniform, and white gloves being worn by some companies and not by others, the uniform appearance was destroyed. The formation and evolutions improved from day to day, and on the last days of camp were performed very creditably.

Major W. S. Brackett, the staff officer in charge of guard mounting, was well informed in his duties, and the forms and movements were conducted according to U. S. Army Regulations.

The guard duties, sentinels, etc., showed a want of individual instruction. The duties and details had been set forth in orders in the minutest detail by orders from Brigade Headquarters, but as the short time of camp, with its many duties, compressed in so limited a time, does not allow the individual instruction necessary to prepare the soldier for the duties of a sentinel, the time not allowing each soldier to go on guard more than once during camp, it follows that individual instruction must be given at the armory before going into camp.

The drills were principally brigade and regimental. The manœuvres in close formation. There were some skirmish drills, but the small space of ground for drill and the drilling of other regiments prevented anything like an extended battle formation of a regiment in skirmish drill.

The evolutions of the brigade at brigade drill, and regiments at brigade and regimental drills, improved from day to day, until the facility of changing from line into column, changing front, deploying, marching in line and column, etc., showed a facility that a little practice would enable a commander to manœuver these troops with ease and compactness to any required position, and place them in any required formation. This "manœuver tactics" in modern warfare, more than formerly, is distinguished from the "fighting tactics," which latter, with very rare exceptions, is "open order formation." Instruction in the "fighting tactics" requires more time in camp, after the facility of manœuvering into position to form for fighting, than is at present allowed. More space is required for drill, in order that the regiments can be formed as nearly as possible with the space for skirmish line and distances for supports and reserves, as required in action, in order to properly understand the actual positions of the different parts of the regiment when formed for actual service. The time required, and the distances of the lines (skirmish, supports and reserves) from each other, are almost habitually underestimated, from the habit of exercising, with small detachments or limited spaces, requiring the distances to be lessened below the distances necessary in service.

The organization of regiments, as required by the U. S. tactics, fulfills as well as any, and better than that of most armies of civilized nations, the formation rendered necessary by breech-loading arms. The habitual fighting tactics being open order, requires a greater proportion of officers than close order. The three lines, skirmish, support and reserve, require more field officers than are in the organization of battalions generally. There should be two majors to each infantry battalion or regiment, in order to give one field officer to each line when first formed, and when the three lines are consolidated in final assault, to have the portions of the line formed of different companies mixed together under the control of field officers. From the nature of the present fighting with the modern breech-loader, an officer can have charge of a limited portion of the line under fire, and the advance must be made by successive advances of portions of the line—the line will, therefore, be cut up into detachments with companies mixed up.

Experience has proved that it is impossible to avoid mixing men of different companies and of regiments, when brigades are supported by brigades. It is also found that the attempt to prevent companies from being mixed up in an attack leads to greater confusion than having the different lines formed of entire companies. Trying to have portions of each company in each line so as to reinforce each company by its own men, causes the company officers to lose control of their own company earlier in the action, and earlier in the action leads to greater confusion than by having the different lines composed of entire companies, in forming the battalion for action.

The manœuvers of fighting tactics, from the limited time in camp and the small space, was necessarily not exercised, except the deployment of small detachments as skirmishers. The regiments were capable of being brought on the ground and moving in double column, the best recognized formation preparatory for forming into the lines in "fighting tactics," but time and space of drill ground would, as before stated, not allow exercise in the final tactics that all the other drilling and tactics are but preparatory to.

In our present infantry skirmish tactics the fours can only deploy from one flank of the sets of fours; it is thought they should be capable of deploying from the flank the nearest side from which the fours take intervals, whichever flank of the fours it may be. It is also thought that too much rigidity is enforced in the lines in marching in close order, the men being required to keep too close in marching in line. That they should not be required to keep up a continual touch; that a little space should be allowed between each file for greater freedom and ease in marching; also that in wheeling, the eye should not be fixedly kept toward the marching flank, but the line should be kept by observing both flanks.

The necessity for freedom and facility in using the breech-loader under all circumstances, requires perfect freedom from crowding, independent of the greater comfort and less fatigue in marching. The tactics should be so worded as to direct as much individual freedom as compatible with concert of action in the preliminary drills.

There was no instruction in signaling. Charging in mass or shock tactics, and firing in close order, in modern battles, except in very exceptional cases, having become obsolete with our present breech loaders, our tactics should conform to the change, and the battle tactics in open order should be written out. The principles of the mostly accepted battle tactics were used in our late war, by the cavalry fighting on foot; a thick line of skirmishers, a second line of supports and reserves, which, owing to the wooded and broken country, could be held close at hand, (and embracing the two lines of support and reserve in the approved formation) to reinforce the skirmish line, and for the closing rush, was the habitual form, at least in the regiments I was connected with. No regard was had to prevent mixing of companies in reinforcing the skirmish line, and different regiments, by converging in the same theatre of attack, were frequently mixed among each other, officers commanding those in front regardless of company or regiment.

Maneuvering in battle under fire is reduced to advancing, or holding position or retiring; no flank movements practicable. The old movements in mass or close column being relegated to maneuver tactics beyond the area of fire. Our teaching in tactics should conform to the change made necessary by the introduction of breech loading and magazine guns.

Drilling from our present tactics is principally confined to precision and uniformity in handling the arms, cadence of step and rigidity and right lines in close order.

This character of cadenced and compact movement necessary for instruction in maneuver tactics, and for discipline to accustom troops to concerted action, generally must in fighting tactics be qualified by the greatest possible individual freedom to allow the most effective use of the rifle. Intervals between skirmishers and alignments, qualified by topography of ground and obstacles affording shelter, the advance of the line by succession, rushes of portions of it from shelter to shelter until the final assault is made. To troops accustomed to simultaneous manual of arms and close order with dressed lines, the fighting tactics seems disorderly and confusing. As this apparent disorder is incident to every fight, troops should be exercised at skirmish drills in the battle formations to prepare them for what must follow in action.

In the cavalry, the habitually required touch of boot to boot, leads to crowding and impossibility of free government of horse or use of arms. Instead of a touch being required it should be insisted on that in manœuver tactics the troopers should be required to keep not less than six inches or a foot from boot to boot.

TARGET PRACTICE.

A rifle range capable of allowing a distance of 500 or 600 yards was obtained near the camp. Five targets with shelters for markers were erected, and telephone communication from the firing party to the markers at the targets. The targets were after the Swiss plan, each with two sliding frames. Each slide a target could be fixed upon while the bullet holes in the other were being patched. A detail of eight men from each regiment were under instruction during the hours for target practice. The distance fired was, after one afternoon at 200 yards, increased to 500 yards, as a range of this distance could seldom be obtained by the companies at their homes.

The difficulties under which target practice at the stations of the companies can be done, the want of ranges, the expense of targets, the little or no appropriation for ammunition, etc., renders target practice almost impracticable, except such as gallery practice with reduced ranges and miniature targets. This latter is an excellent practice, accustoming the men to aiming and handling the rifle and principles of firing at target.

Colonel J. A. Shaffer, Inspector of Rifle Practice on the Governor's Staff, and Lieutenant-Colonel J. M. Rice, Inspector Rifle Practice Second Brigade, were well posted in their duties and indefatigable in their efforts to organize a system of rifle practice, and instruct the regimental inspectors of rifle practice; and the details furnished for rifle practice during the encampment, as new details, were furnished at each practice. The instruction was limited to the most practical and necessary details of target practice, and to instruct officers from the different regiments who could act as instructors to their own regiments.

I found in the Second Brigade, as in the First, that the expenses of keeping up the Illinois National Guard fall principally on the different organizations, or private organizations or private subscription, the State furnishing less than half the necessary expenses.

I would refer to my remarks concerning this subject in my report on the First Brigade. The State owes protection to its citizens. A purely volunteer system, unaided by the State, in our present organization of society, is as impracticable as a volunteer unpaid police would be in a city. Paid fire departments are found to be cheaper, more efficient and conducive to good order, less liable to riots, confusion and plunder, the regular pursuits of citizens, less disturbance and in every way more efficient, causes less disorder, and is more economical than a volunteer fire department. The same result it is apparent would be the case in a purely volunteer State force. The losses in case of uprising of the disorderly elements of society, when no efficient organized force is at the disposal of the authorities, would be far greater, and the disorganization of society would be such that it would outweigh a hundred fold the cost of a properly organized and maintained force continually at the call of the State. The very existence of an organized, efficient force would tend to keep down the riotous element of society. The elements of disorder are incident to the highest civilization; and the more intelligent the vicious, the more dangerous, requiring a better organized and prepared force necessary to uphold the laws in the protection of society.

The State should provide all requisite means for an efficient force subject to its call.

To most efficiently carry out the object of camps of instruction, an area of ground should be had sufficient for exercises in all the tactics, especially battle tactics with skirmish formations, and ranges for target practice, on lines of railroads removed from towns. The larger the force the better the discipline can be maintained, as emulation between organizations is greater, and less individuality is allowed.

It would be to the advantage of both State and U. S. troops if both could be assembled together in camps of instruction, and instructed in the movement and evolutions of large bodies of troops.

The scattered and isolated condition of our regular army affords no larger bodies of troops than a battalion, and in a great many cases the force at posts does not allow more than a company drill. A camp of instruction where regimental and brigade tactics are exercised, would familiarize the officers to large bodies of men and stimulate to information in the higher branches of military art and science, and more positive information as to the details of service.

The State should have a uniform to be worn by the troops when assembled in camp or active service.

The troops should be instructed in the individual duties of a sentinel at their armories or stations before going into camp.

Governor J. M. Hamilton and staff were frequently in camp, reviewing the troops, inspecting the troops and camp, to find out the wants and requirements of troops.

United States Senator S. M. Cullom was also present at different times, evincing much interest in the condition of the troops and their efficiency.

Brig.-Gen. J. N. Reece, commander of the brigade and camp, proved an efficient commander in the disciplining, handling and administration of his command. He was well assisted by his staff. His Adjutant-General, Col. C. F. Mills; Quartermaster, Capt. W. F. Smith, and Commissary, Capt. J. C. Bell, were model staff officers in their several duties.

Gen. J. W. Vance, Adjutant-General of the State, and Col. J. A. Shaffer, Inspector of Rifle Practice, on the Governor's staff, were present in camp during the encampment, rendering efficient service in the instruction and inspection of the troops.

The object of assembling in camp is obviously for such instruction as is not practicable at the home stations of the companies, separated as they are at present stations; therefore, in view of the short period of encampment, all individual squad and company instruction should be as thorough as possible, and imparted before going into camp,—the duties of sentinels, and the principles of target practice taught by gallery practice. To execute regimental and brigade drill in close order, it is not essential that privates should know more than company drill. If the officers and guides are well posted in theoretical tactics, as laid down in the tactics, there need be no delay in executing the movements.

Time spent at home learning well the tactics, will save time for skirmish drill in camp, the most essential tactics for practical application when necessity arrives for the use of troops.

The practical is often neglected for the pomp and scenic display of troops, as best exhibited with close ranks of marching columns, with cadenced step and bands of music. As the breech-loader has ordered all such formations beyond the zone of fire, the formations and tactics necessary within the zone of fire should be given their proper attention, study and drill.

I was most hospitably entertained in camp during my stay, and every courtesy and opportunity was extended me in furthering the execution of my orders.

The camp was broken up on Monday, August 11, 1884.

CHICAGO, ILL., July 15, 1884.

Assistant Adjutant-General, Division of the Missouri:

SIR—I would respectfully report that agreeably to Special Orders No. 66, dated Headquarters Division of the Missouri, Chicago, Ill., June 30, 1884, I proceeded to the camp of the First Brigade, Illinois National Guard, named Camp Fuller, and reported my arrival to Brigadier-General Charles Fitz Simons, commanding the brigade and camp.

The camp was located on the bank of Rock river, about a mile and a half from Rockford, Ill.

The command consisted of Brigadier-General Charles Fitz Simons and staff; aggregate, ten officers.

First Infantry, I. N. G., commanded by Colonel E. B. Knox, composed of field, staff and band, and nine companies; aggregate present, 294.

Second Infantry, I. N. G., commanded by Colonel R. W. Vierling, composed of field, staff, band and eight companies; aggregate present, 297.

Third Infantry, I. N. G., commanded by Colonel C. M. Brazee, composed of field, staff, band and eight companies; aggregate present, 305.

Fourth Infantry, I. N. G., commanded by Colonel F. Bennett, composed of field, staff and band, and seven companies; aggregate present, 298.

First Cavalry, I. N. G., commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel D. Welter, composed of field, staff, band, and five troops, (dismounted); aggregate present, 220.

{ Battery "C," I. N. G., commanded by Major R. M. Woods; four guns, no caissons, guns drawn by two mules each; officers mounted; aggregate present, 57.

Battery "D," I. N. G., Major E. E. Tobey, commanding; four guns, four caissons, drawn by four horses each; present, two officers, 877 men; aggregate, 79. Total aggregate present, 1,560.

The command was sheltered entirely in tents owned or hired by the State, the regulation wall tent prevailing. The quartermaster and commissary store tents, hospital tents, brigade and regimental headquarters mess tents, and mess tents for companies, were similar to the regulation hospital tents. The horses of battery and mounted officers were sheltered in large conical tents, raised some six feet from the ground.

The camp was pitched on three sides of a quadrangle. The line of brigade headquarters tents parallel to the river, facing from the river. The regiments and batteries on the sides perpendicular to the line of brigade headquarters tents in columns of companies. The cavalry on the flank and the batteries on the other flank opposite the cavalry. The guard and sutler tents on the extreme flank of camp away from river.

The camp was well drained, with a close-cut, firm sward of grass and good sanitary conditions.

Good water was obtained from driven wells conveniently located, or from the river—clear, good water, affording excellent facilities for bathing. The camp was lighted in the evening by electric lights, elevated on high masts, generated by a portable engine furnished by citizens.

The sinks were pits, dug and furnished with board seats and close board enclosure, and were daily disinfected. Officers' and men's sinks separate.

The tents of the officers were floored, but very few of the enlisted men's were.

The First Regiment Infantry had bed-sacks entire—provided by themselves—and some individuals of other regiments, but generally the other regiments except the First had loose straw for beds. Bed-sacks are much preferable, as it is more cleanly, keeps the straw from being scattered about, and allows the tent to be aired and ventilated and keeps the company streets from being littered by loose straw. The State could issue them during the encampment, have them washed and stored for other encampments. The State allows one blanket per man during encampment. They are turned back to the State after encampment.

A brigade hospital, with accommodations for 30 patients, was established, and a medical officer detailed for duty at hospital during 24 hours. The hospital was neat and clean. Hospital duties thoroughly performed. Regular daily inspection of sanitary condition of camp and the company messes by a medical officer.

No deaths during camp. The cases of sickness numbered 73, all light. Two cases developed epilepsy; recommended by surgeon for discharge. The sickness diminished as the men became accustomed to tent life.

The company grounds were well policed and tents kept in good order, especially the First Regiment Infantry, who had the advantage of the bed-sacks to prevent the straw from scattering, and allowed a neat arrangement of the beds.

The brigade was too closely camped; did not give room for regiments to form simultaneously or establish color lines. This condition was the result of too little ground allowed for camp in order to allow as much space as possible for drill ground, the whole being about 170 acres. The area of drill grounds outside of camp was also too small. The brigade could not form in line except in "mass of regiments in close column."

The regiments and batteries could not drill independently at the same time. Skirmish drills, except by a small portion of the command, were impracticable.

There were no target grounds, and none in the neighborhood except a small one of 200 yards some miles distant.

Skirmish drill and target practice being the most necessary instruction for modern warfare, a camp of instruction should be selected favorable for this instruction. The ground selected for the camp of instruction was deficient in extent and suitable ground for rifle range.

The brigade headquarters and staff, the regimental headquarters and staffs, had their separate messes with hired cooks. The companies each had their own messes, company officers messing with companies. The State allows one ration per day for officers and men, and one dollar per day for officers and men during camp of four days.

The companies generally hired their own cooks, and stoves were generally used, but the Cavalry and Fourth Regiment Infantry used camp fires, and the Cavalry cooked by details from the several troops of the regiment. The First Regiment Infantry used gasoline stoves, consuming two gallons gasoline for headquarters' mess per day, at 10 cents per gallon, and cooking for 50 or 60 persons. The bill of fare embraced a variety of dishes as is ordinarily given at dinner—meats, vegetables, deserts.

The State furnishes camp kettles, mess pans, knives, forks and spoons, tin plates and cups, as in the regular service, but the cooking utensils and table furniture is provided by the different messes.

The messes were liberally supplied with a variety of food well cooked. Bread was purchased by the commissaries from bakers in Rockford. The cost per ration during the camp was 26.9 cents. The coffee, first day, was pronounced bad; it was condemned and a better article supplied.

The uniform of the infantry was undress, similar to U. S. infantry with summer helmets, regulation pattern.

The artillery had undress uniform similar to U. S. artillery.

The cavalry, undress uniform similar to U. S. cavalry. In addition to forage cap had a cap without vizor with a yellow band.

The first regiment of infantry had a regimental uniform, "gray dress coats," in addition to the undress regulation uniform. The troops while in camp wore the undress regulation uniform.

The other infantry regiments reported the different companies having uniforms for dress occasions, according to the fancy of the company, this arising from the companies living separated in different towns, and the State making no appropriation for uniforming the troops.

Battery "C": Four 6-pounder smooth-bore guns, furnished by citizens of Joliet and bought as condemned cannons at Rock Island Arsenal. No caissons. Guns drawn by two mules each, hired by Brigade Quartermaster during camp of four days. Drawn by lines, the driver sitting on limber box; officers mounted on horses, hired during camp. Guns well cared for. Men soldierly in appearance, handling their guns very well.

Battery "D": Four Napoleon brass guns, four caissons. Furnished by Citizens' Association of Chicago. Each piece and caisson drawn by four horses, with driver as in U. S. light batteries. Horses hired for camp four days and two days in coming and going, at $2 per day each, and $2.25 for saddle horses. Officers mounted. Ammunition, harness, etc., furnished by Citizens' Association. The battery in good condition and soldierly in appearance, drilling and manœuvering very creditably.

The Infantry were armed with the Springfield rifle, breach-loader, cal. 45, principally, except five companies of Second Infantry armed with cal. 50, old pattern Springfield rifle. U. S. regulation equipments. Arms and equipments in good order.

The Cavalry were armed with Springfield breach-loading carbine and sabre. U. S. regulation pattern. Equipments U. S. regulation. Arms and equipments in good order.

The State furnishes no regular allowance of ammunition for its troops.

The general appearance of the command was good. Uniforms clean. Their hair closely cut and faces shaven or beards neatly trimmed. Young and active in appearance. Attentive in ranks and orderly and well behaved in camp.

The orders of the camp were announced from Brigade headquarters, also a list of calls.

No regular set of brigade books were kept. The regimental records regularly kept, especially the First Regiment of Infantry and First Regiment of Cavalry. The Second Regiment of Infantry labored under the misfortune of having no Adjutant or Regimental Quartermaster in camp.

The time from Reveille to Tattoo was fully taken up with guard-mounting, drills, reviews and parades, brigade and regimental. The guard-mounting was by brigade. The first day the guard-mounting was somewhat awkward and the men not uniformed as to white gloves, etc. The last two days showed a clean uniform guard, soldierly in appearance and marching.

The drills were principally brigade and regimental, in solid formation. The brigade drill movement, forming line and column in masses, change in front, etc.

In regimental drills—forming column of company divisions and fours, changing from column into line and line into column. Marching in line and column, etc. The improvement in these movements was very decided and the regiments finally went through the evolutions smoothly and with little hesitation. There was but little skirmish drill, the want of room being against it. There was also no target practice, there being no range. There was no instruction in signaling.

The parades were very well conducted and very creditably executed.

Brigade parade was in line of masses. The regiments in column closed in mass, as there was but ground sufficient for a parade of a regiment in line. Several parades were held the same evening. Regimental parade after brigade parade. The regimental parade were in line of battle.

Governor Hamilton, Governor of Illinois, and staff, were at the camp several days observing the troops and inspecting the camp. A review was given the Governor which was very creditable; the line—regiments in close column with the batteries on the left. The line then formed into column of masses by regiments, changing direction by the left flank. The column was then formed with full distance, from head of column, and passed in review.

The First Regiment Infantry and First Regiment Cavalry (dis-mounted) and Battery "D" were especially noticeable. The whole did very well.

There were some minor mistakes, as two or three officers forgetting to salute, a couple not saluting properly, and some companies not preserving proper distance, but this could hardly be otherwise, as this was probably the first time some of the companies had even been on parade or even in a regiment assembled. Battery "C," for want of caissons and horses, labored under great disadvantage. The personnel of the battery was good.

The Governor expressed himself as well pleased with the review and the appearance of the troops.

The manner in which the duties of sentinels were performed and the manner they were posted and relieved, showed the most want of instruction. Sufficient instruction is impracticable in a camp of so short duration; all the men could not get one lesson. Armory instruction must supply the want of time in camp for instruction in the elementary duties of a sentinel. The individual setting up of a soldier must be done in the Armory, as no time is allowed to get below the drill of the company or even of the regiment.

During a brigade drill at which the Governor was present, there was a simulated attack by a battery opening fire on the brigade from some distance; the brigade was moved in mass behind shelter of rolling ground to the rear; the other battery was put into position and opened fire on the attacking battery, that was manœvering to open fire on the new position of the brigade. Skirmishers were thrown out, the battery attacked and driven off. The movements in mass were well executed. The skirmishing showed want of familiarity with that drill—the most necessary for modern fighting.

There was also a prize drill for companies of the brigade. But three companies entered for the prize: Two companies 1st regiment of Infantry, and one company 4th regiment Infantry. The prizes were a gold badge offered by the Brigadier-General commanding the brigade, and a silver badge offered by the Brigade Staff. The gold badge was won by Captain F. B. Davis' Company "G," 1st Infantry, I. N. G. The silver badge by Captain S. Smith's Company "E," 1st Infantry, I. N. G.

Captain Blanchard's Company "D," 4th Infantry, drilled well but was handicapped by one or two recruits. His company showed good and intelligent work.

The manual and drill prescribed was well executed by all three of the companies.

Major Vance, Adjutant - General of the State, was present during the encampment, witnessing the exercises of the troops and assisting to render the encampment as successful as possible. Colonel Hill, on the staff of the Governor of Michigan, was also present during the encampment.

*Co. "H," 4th Infantry, absent entire—numbering about 60, aggregate.

The reasons given for the large number absent are, the difficulty of withdrawing from necessary occupations; the unwillingness of employers to lose the time of their employes, and the expense that the individual members of the organization have to meet, which in many cases they are hardly able to bear, which expenses the State should pay.

I found, during the inspection of the regiments and batteries, that one great difficulty in maintaining the different organizations was in getting means to meet the necessary expenses. The allowance of the State in case of the infantry being less than one-half required, and in the batteries and cavalry one-fifth the amount required, the remainder supplied by citizen contribution, or by the organizations themselves. The State supplies arms and accoutrements to the infantry, $1.00 per day and rations for four days while in camp, and transportation to and from camp; also some small incidental expenses of camp and an allowance for expenses of armory. The proportion of an allowance to a regiment or battery is in proportion to the number mustered at some stated muster.

No allowance for uniform or for horses for cavalry or light batteries for drills; no specified allowance of ammunition for target or blank firing; no allowance for horse equipments and harness for cavalry or artillery, or armament for cavalry or artillery, let alone pay as soldiers of the State, except $1.00 per day while in camp four days.

The necessity for an armed organization subject to the orders of the State is universally recognized as necessary for the safety and welfare of the State. The expense of keeping up this organization, it would seem, should be met by a just proportion by every citizen of the State, and all the necessary expenses should be paid out of treasury of the State. A higher standard of efficiency would be attained, and a stronger claim had on the services of the troops.

The allowances to a regiment or battery should be in proportion to the number of hours drilled and average number present at drills—up to a maximum allowance.

Batteries and cavalry should be allowed expenses for horses for stated number of mounted drills, receiving pay for actual number of drills performed. The officers and men pay for number of drills performed, and fined for drills absent from without authority.

Uniforms should be furnished, and sufficient ammunition for target and blank firing. Target ranges should be established and encampments held where sufficient range of country could be obtained for evolutions in open order or skirmish tactics and target practice. The number of days spent in camp should be greater. The camp was broken up on the morning of the 19th. The tents and blankets, the property of the State, were turned over to the State, whose officers took charge, packing for future use.

I found General Fitz Simons zealous in the discharge of his duties; having served during the war, was well posted, firm and judicious in discipline. He was well supported by an intelligent staff, capable in the discharge of their duties. The regimental and battery officers were attentive and well informed in their duties, and the great improvement in the short time in camp showed that it only required time and opportunity to have commands that would be a credit in any service. The enlisted men were everything that could be desired to make good, reliable and dashing soldiers.

I was courteously received by Governor Hamilton and General Fitz Simons, and generously entertained. Every assistance was given by staff and regimental officers to enable me to carry out my instructions and fulfill the object in visiting the camp. A tent was furnished me, and I remained in camp during the encampment, leaving the morning of July 19, 1884.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

Signed:

N. B. SWEITZER,
Lieut.-Colonel, 8th Cavalry.

REPORT OF OPERATIONS IN MADISON AND ST. CLAIR COUNTIES.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF ILLINOIS,
ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,

SPRINGFIELD, June 11, 1883.

To His Excellency JOHN M. HAMILTON, Governor and Commander-in-Chief:

SIR—I have the honor to transmit herewith the reports of General J. N. Reece, of the Second Brigade, and Colonel J. H. Barkley, of the Fifth Infantry, Illinois National Guard, acting under orders for the preservation of the peace and enforcement of the laws in Madison and St. Clair counties during the latter part of May, 1883.

Very respectfully,

I. H. ELLIOTT,
Adjutant-General.

HEADQUARTERS SECOND BRIGADE, I. N. G.,

SPRINGFIELD, June 8, 1883.

Brigadier-General I. H. ELLIOTT, Adjutant-General I. N. G., Springfield, Illinois:

GENERAL—I have the honor to transmit herewith report and other papers in connection with the late riots in Madison and St. Clair counties.

Colonel J. H. Barkley, commanding Fifth Infantry, I. N. G., was detailed to proceed to Collinsville, Ill., and make investigation as to the necessity of sending a military force to aid the civil authorities in preserving the peace and enforcing civil law. (See Special Orders No. 106, dated General Headquarters I. N. G., Springfield, May 25, 1883, marked "A," and Special Orders No. 15, dated Headquarters Second Brigade, I. N. G., Springfield, May 25, 1883, marked "B.")

Upon the receipt of the first telegraphic advices (see "C" and "D") from Colonel Barkley, concerning the situation at Collinsville, I recommended (see "E") that sufficient force be ordered to report, without delay, to that officer, to enable him to aid the sheriff in preserving order.

In accordance with Special Orders No. 107, dated General Headquarters I. N. G., Springfield, Illinois, May 25, 1883, (see "F") Colonel J. H. Barkley, commanding Fifth Infantry, I. N. G., was directed, in Special Orders No. 16, (see "G") from these headquarters, to detail two or more companies of his command for duty at Collinsville, and on their arrival report with the same to Sheriff Hotz, and under his orders render necessary aid in enforcing civil law.

In accordance with Special Orders No. 109, dated General Headquarters I. N. G., Springfield, May 26, 1883, (see "H,") Colonel J. H. Barkley, commanding Fifth Infantry, I. N. G., was directed, in Special Orders No. 18, from these headquarters, (see "I,") to disperse or arrest all riotous and unlawful assemblies, and turn the prisoners over to the civil authorities for punishment, as provided by law.

In accordance with Special Orders No. 108 dated General Headquarters I. N. G., Springfield, Ill., May 27, 1883 (see "J") I proceeded to East St. Louis with Assistant Adjutant General Charles F. Mills, and after consultation with Col. J. H. Barkley, commanding 5th Infantry I. N. G., the civil officers and mine owners found that the reports had been greatly exaggerated concerning the threatened attack by the rioters on all the miners, and that they resumed work on Monday morning, May 28, 1883, (see telegram "K.")

The sheriff of Madison county having informed Col. J. H. Barkley of his ability to protect the miners in that county without further aid of the military, and the sheriff of St. Clair county not having asked for the assistance of the military, orders were issued to the several companies to return by first train to their respective stations, and preparations were made accordingly. As the hour approached for departure of the companies to their respective stations, telegram (see "L") was received from the sheriff of St. Clair by Col. J. H. Barkley, asking that the troops be sent without delay to disperse a mob at Reinecke's mine. The telegram was immediately forwarded you, and further instructions asked. The sheriff of St. Clair was at the same time wired to make application direct to the Governor for military assistance.

In compliance with telegraphic orders (see "M") from the Governor, Colonel Barkley was ordered to report with his command to the sheriff of St. Clair, at Reinecke's mine, and under the sheriff's orders aid the civil authorities in restoring peace, and protecting life and property.

Telegrams (see "M" and "O") were sent Sheriff Ropiequet, asking his personal presence at the Reinecke mine, to take charge and cooperate with the troops in arresting the rioters, and upon receipt by telegram of his assurance that he would meet the troops and order the arrest of the mob, the companies proceeded with all possible dispatch to the mine named.

I accompanied the troops to Reinecke's mine, and for particulars concerning the engagement at that point, beg leave to refer you to the detailed report of the officer in command, Col. J. H. Barkley, which report is sent herewith (see "P.")

In conclusion, will say that Col. J. H. Barkley handled the troops to the best possible advantage, that all movements were carefully planned and well executed. There was no apparent lack of ability or effort to faithfully discharge every duty imposed upon the officers and men by the deputy sheriffs.

The flagrant violation of the orders of Col. J. H. Barkley by the engineer of the train transporting the command from East St. Louis to the scene of action, in refusing to stop the train before reaching the mine, prevented the carrying out of the original plan, which would doubtless have resulted in the capture of a majority of the rioters.

There is no doubt but that the rioters had fully intended to resist the civil and military forces, by the use of fire-arms, and their haste in opening fire on the sheriff and the troops before they could get off the cars, was not the result of accident or excitement at the appearance of the military.

The officers and enlisted men at the critical moment were under good discipline, and there was not the slightest evidence of undue excitement or alarm among the troops.

Deputy Sheriff Anthony, under whose orders the troops acted, as well as the officers and enlisted men, were repeatedly fired upon by the rioters before the companies could be formed and while the soldiers were getting off the cars. But not until Deputy Sheriff Anthony had fired several shots at the mob and ordered the troops to return the fire, was a shot fired by the military, who promptly obeyed the direct and unmistakable orders of the Deputy Sheriff.

The firing was ordered stopped by Colonel Barkley as soon as he could be heard along the line, which was being formed as rapidly as the men could alight from the train, which barely stopped and was suddenly pulled out from the station before all the soldiers could get off the train.

Immediately after the firing ceased, Deputy Sheriff Anthony was requested by Colonel Barkley to make a statement in the presence of all the officers concerning the orders given the soldiers to fire upon the rioters.

Deputy Sheriff Anthony stated that he was fired upon by the rioters while commanding them to peaceably surrender to the civil authorities, and that when the mob continued to fire on him and the soldiers alighting from the cars, he discharged his revolver at the crowd and ordered the troops to return the fire and arrest all present.

I have the honor to be

Special Orders, No. 107.

Brigadier-General J. N. Reece, commanding 2d Brigade I. N. G., is hereby directed to move a sufficient force of his command, at the earliest possible moment, to Collinsville, Illinois, to aid the civil authorities in preserving the peace and enforcing the civil laws. General Reece will instruct the commanding officer to use the force at his command only in the aid of the civil authorities in preserving the peace and enforcing the laws, and to look to the sheriff of Madison county, Illinois, who has called to his aid the military force, for directions as to where and how that force shall be used.

General Reece is directed to furnish necessary subsistence, and to arrange with railroad companies for necessary transportation, which will be paid by the State.

By command of JOHN M. HAMILTON, Governor.

HEADQUARTERS SECOND BRIGADE, I. N. G.,
 SPRINGFIELD, May 26, 1863.

Special Orders, No. 16.

In accordance with Special Orders No. 107, dated General Headquarters I. N. G., Springfield May 25, 1863, and sent herewith, Col. J. H. Barkley, commanding 5th Infantry, I. N. G., will detail two or more companies of his command, and order them to report under arms ready for duty, without unnecessary delay, at Collinsville, Ill.

Colonel J. H. Barkley, commanding 5th Infantry, I. N. G., will assume command of the companies on their arrival at Collinsville, and in compliance with enclosed orders (107) from General Headquarters I. N. G. and the sheriff, in enforcing the civil law.

By order of BRIG.-GEN. REECE.

CHARLES F. MILLS,
Asst. Adjutant-General.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF ILLINOIS.
 ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE, SPRINGFIELD, May 26, 1863.

Special Orders, No. 109.

The Sheriff of Madison county having reported to the Governor his inability to maintain order, and having asked for military assistance to preserve the peace at Collinsville and vicinity, Brigadier-General J. N. Reece, commanding 2d Brigade I. N. G., will direct the officer in command of the force at Collinsville to give notice to ill-disposed and riotous persons congregated at and near that place to disperse and quietly return to their homes.

If such order is not complied with, he will use his command to disperse them and restore order and quiet. Having accomplished this, he will withdraw his troops and send them to their respective stations.

By command of the Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

I. H. ELLIOTT,
Adjutant-General.

Special Orders, No. 18.

Col. J. H. Barkley, commanding 5th Infantry I. N. G., having been placed in command of the Illinois National Guard, at Collinsville, Ill., for the purpose of aiding the civil authorities of Madison and St. Clair counties in preserving peace and protecting property therein, and acting in conjunction with the peace officers, will command, in published orders, and in compliance with Special Orders No. 109, General Headquarters I. N. G., of this date and sent herewith, that all persons in the neighborhood of Collinsville observe the peace and aid in the execution of the laws, prohibit and promptly disperse riotous and other unlawful assemblies; that citizens appearing in public, in any considerable numbers, armed with weapons of any kind, will be regarded as rioters and dealt with accordingly; that all boisterous and unruly persons will be arrested and punished as provided by law.

Special Orders, No. 108.

The disturbance among the miners of Madison and St. Clair counties having assumed such magnitude as to threaten a general interruption of the coal business and the transportation interested in connection therewith, Brig.-Gen. J. N. Reece will proceed without delay to East St. Louis, carry out verbal instructions, and, if the exigencies demand additional forces, he will issue the necessary orders for sufficient troops to meet any emergency, and assume command of the several regiments.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

EAST ST. LOUIS, ILL., May 28, 1883.

GENERAL I. H. ELLIOTT, Adjutant-General I. N. G., Springfield, Illinois:

Colonel Barkley and command are here. All quiet at the several mines in the Collinsville district. Miners at work as usual. Sheriff of Madison county has about twenty-five writs, and will arrest the leaders this afternoon. Sheriff Hotz and principal mine owners think there is no further use for the military. Colonel Barkley will order troops to their respective stations this P. M., unless further orders are received from Springfield.

HEADQUARTERS FIFTH REGIMENT, I. N. G.,
 ADJUTANT'S OFFICE,
 SPRINGFIELD, ILL., June 6, 1883.

BRIGADIER-GENERAL J. N. REECE, Commanding Second Brigade:

GENERAL: I have the honor to submit the following as my report of the movements of a portion of the Fifth Regiment Illin is National Guard, consisting of companies "B," "F" and "G," under my command, while engaged in assisting the civil authorities of Madison and St. Clair counties in keeping the peace and protecting property from the striking miners in that district, from May 24, to 29, 1883:

In obedience to instructions from Governor Hamilton, I left Springfield, Thursday, May 24, 1883, for Collinsville, Illinois, to act as his special agent in observing the facts and causes of the troubles in the mines at Collinsville, and to report to him the situation.* Before leaving, Captain Ridgely, at my direction, sent the following telegram to the commanders of company "F," company "B," and company "G," Fifth Regiment:

"Notify your company to be in readiness for immediate service; not necessary to assemble at armory, but arrange to assemble at a moment's notice. Have you ammunition? Answer."

Answers were received from the various companies that they would be in readiness. On reaching East St. Louis, I found I could not get to Collinsville until the following (Friday) morning, having missed connection with the Vandalia road.

I arrived at Collinsville, Friday, May 25, 1883, about 8 o'clock A. M., and at once proceeded to find Dr. J. L. Wadsworth, to whom I had a letter from the Hon. J. M. Pearson. Through Dr. Wadsworth's kindness I was introduced to Jas. M. Lawrence, Justice of the Peace; Hartley Lanham, Deputy Sheriff Madison county; and John C. Long, Deputy Sheriff St. Clair county.

I learned from these gentlemen that for some time there had been a steadily growing ill-feeling between the coal miners and the mine operators in the district which supplies the St. Louis market; that this trouble culminated May 1st, in a general strike of the coal diggers, resulting in the shutting down of all the mines except those known as "Machine Mines."

On Wednesday night, preceding my arrival, a meeting of the miners had been held at Belleville, and about 2 o'clock Thursday morning, May 24th, marching to the music of fife and drum, about 400 strikers appeared at Mine No. 4, of the Abbey Company, where stood the boarding house occupied by 150 machine men. They demanding of these men that they stop work, and the men replying that they were satisfied with their wages, they (the striking miners) knocked down and maltreated those of the machine men that offered any remonstrance, and with drawn pistols compelled all hands to fall in line, and marched them to East St. Louis, a distance of twelve miles, threatening to kill any who returned to work.

I found, that on Friday, the 25th, this same mob gathered about 3 A. M., between the two machine mines of the Abbey Company, to see if any men returned to work, and that none of the men daring to return, they had left a small guard to watch those mines, and had gone off in a body in the direction of Troy and Confidence.

The following communication was telegraphed on the 25th day of May:

To Gov. J. M. HAMILTON, Springfield, Ill.:

We, the undersigned, testify that there are from 250 to 400 men, armed with revolvers, clubs and stones, threatening the peace of this and adjoining towns; that they are preventing men employed in the mines here from pursuing their lawful business and threatening the public peace, and that further, in our opinion, the sheriff is not able to provide the necessary protection to life and property, and the exigencies of the case demand the interference of the State militia.

Signed,

JOHN C. LONG, Deputy Sheriff St. Clair Co.
HARTLEY LANHAM, Dep. Sheriff Madison Co.
WM. STEVENS, Mayor of Collinsville.
JAS. M. LAWRENCE, Justice of the Peace.
E. J. CRANDALL, Abbey Coal and M. Co.
J. H. WICKLIFFE, Sec. Collinsville Coal Co.
J. L. WADSWORTH, M. D.

After the above was wired to Gov. Hamilton, I telegraphed the sheriff of Madison county, and asked further instructions from you.

In the meantime I received the following dispatch from Confidence, Illinois, and repeated it to the Governor at once:

The Collinsville strikers have gone to Troy. Belleville men are here intimidating by shooting off guns, yelling, etc.

Signed,

J. WEISENBERGER, Superintendent.

In the afternoon, at 4 o'clock, I received the following from Governor Hamilton:

Taylorville and Edwardsville companies are ordered to report to you at Collinsville immediately. You will take command, and place yourself under direction of sheriff of Madison county.

And in response to my telegram to Sheriff Hotz, of Madison county, asking him to come to Collinsville, I received the following:

I feel unable to come. Please consult with Deputy Lanham.

Signed,

GEORGE HOTZ,

Sheriff Madison County.

Upon which I sent the following to Sheriff Hotz:

Am ordered by Governor Hamilton to act under your direction with militia. Your immediate presence here absolutely necessary. Come with Capt. Fahnestock's company.

Signed,

J. E. BARKLEY,

Col. Com'g 5th Infantry.

To which I received the following answer:

Will be down as soon as we can get there, according to your order.

Signed,

GEO. HOTZ,

Sheriff.

In order to impress upon him that I was to act under his orders and upon his responsibility, I again telegraphed him:

Am here to act under your orders in assisting you to preserve the peace.

Signed,

J. H. BARKLEY,

Col. Comg 5th Infantry.

The following was received from General Elliott:

What force will you probably require?

Signed.

J. H. ELLIOTT,

Adjutant-General.

To which I replied:

There are 8 mines in immediate vicinity, in radius of 10 miles, and about 2,000 striking miners are in this district. They have, so far, never mustered over 400 men, but boast that they can raise 1,000 if necessary. We will have to-night about 60 men, and think we should have at least 100.

Signed,

J. H. BARKLEY.

Col. Comg 5th Infantry.

General Reece telegraphed me:

Capt. Wilson will report to you with 25 men to-morrow morning.

Signed,

BRIG.-GEN. REECE.

Upon which I arranged for transportation of them, and telegraphed Capt. Wilson:

Train on Vandalia line will await you at East St. Louis. Don't delay.

Signed,

J. H. BARKLEY.

Colonel Commanding 5th Infantry.

During the afternoon, while sending these messages, I must have seen over a hundred miners pass in groups of from four to ten, all armed with heavy clubs, returning from the neighborhood of Troy and Confidence, where they had forced all the mines to shut down. I was told the men came principally from the mines about Belleville, and had marched twelve miles across the country into the Collinsville district on Wednesday night, to aid in closing the Abbey machine mines Thursday morning, and had remained to close the other machine mines at Troy and Confidence on Friday.

About 7 o'clock the Edwardsville company reported, having come 12 miles from Edwardsville in wagons, and I marched them down to the depot in a heavy rain. I had arranged with Mr. Crandall to furnish us subsistence, and the best quarters possible at the boarding house used to board his men, about half a mile distant from the railway station. We marched up there about 10 o'clock P. M., through a drenching rain and deep mud, and took possession of the miners' boarding house as headquarters.

By direction of Sheriff Hotz, I caused guards to be stationed at such points as afforded access to the mine and surrounding property, with orders to allow no one to pass, and suggested that Mr. Crandall have his men brought out from East St. Louis the following (Saturday) morning, and I would see that they were allowed to work. Company B, Taylorville, was to report at 9 o'clock, but, owing to an accident on the Wabash railroad, did not reach me till about 1:30 A. M. Saturday morning, Major J. S. Culver coming with them.

About 3 o'clock A. M. a report was brought in that the strikers were gathering at Caseyville, distant from us about two miles, towards East St. Louis; and I visited the sentries in person, increased their numbers and stations, and cautioned them to warn me of the first approach of any mob. Everything remained quiet, however, and about 6 o'clock A. M. a train of box cars with closed doors brought about 110 workmen out from East St. Louis, and both of Mr. Crandall's machine mines were soon at work, under protection of our troops. This I did under instruction contained in telegram received on May 25, as follows:

Protect life, property and men who wish to go to work. By order of the Governor.
Signed, I. H. ELLIOTT,

Adjutant-General

Everything remained quiet during Saturday at Collinsville, and the mines owned by the Abbey Company raised about 25 cars of coal, only a little below their out-put. Capt. M. C. Wilson, commanding Company "G," arrived with his command about 8:30 A. M.

In response to the following telegram from Sheriff Hotz, saying:

Miners at Troy becoming hostile. Protection is called for. Send 8 or 10 men on 12 o'clock freight.

I sent Capt. Wilson and 14 men to protect the mine at Troy, 7 miles east of Collinsville, ordering Capt. Wilson to keep me advised, from time to time, as to the situation there.

In response to a telegram from H. G. Bohm, manager of the mine at Confidence, two miles east of Collinsville, I sent a detail of 10 men, to remain there to protect the men at work, and telegraphed General Reece as follows:

Just received telegram from Sheriff Hotz, saying miners at Troy, seven miles east, were becoming hostile, and requesting 10 or 12 men. Have sent them 14 men. We have direct information that Belleville will ask for military protection this afternoon, and from my information it will require 100 men, at least, at that point. With my men scattered as they now are, if I am to protect Belleville, I would require 100 more men. If I have no further demand, now, since Virden's arrival, I have men enough.

Signed,

J. H. BARKLEY,

Colonel Commanding 5th Infantry.

To which, in reply:

Your detail for Troy correct. Keep me advised fully. Have you received orders telegraphed this afternoon?

Signed.

BRIG.-GEN. REECE.

About 4:40 P. M. I received the following dispatch:

BELLEVILLE, ILL., May 26, 183.

I would like 75 men placed at my disposal on Monday morning. Men to report at Belleville.

FRED. ROPIQUET Sheriff.

We had, up to this time, had no difficulty and encountered no mob. The mines in the Collinsville district were all at work, and we felt that the civil authorities should, from this on, preserve order, unaided by the militia. At 9:15 P. M. we received special order No. 109, Headquarters Adjutant-General Elliott, also special Order No. 18, Headquarters 2d Brigade, and according to them I thought I should be justified in withdrawing, and sending companies to their respective stations. At the earnest solicitation of some of the mine operators and citizens, however, I consented to remain till Sunday evening, as I could not have left East St. Louis before that time, at any rate. I had also previously received a telegram in answer to Fred. Ropiequet's request for men at Belleville.

Sheriff Ropiequet, St. Clair, has heretofore reported his entire ability to keep the peace in that county, and has not called on me for assistance. When you have restored the peace and dispersed the mob in Madison county, withdraw troops as ordered to-day.

Signed,

JOHN M. HAMILTON, Governor.

Which further strengthened me in my intention to withdraw. At the earnest desire of many of the mine owners and citizens, however, I agreed to remain Sunday until they could communicate further with Governor Hamilton.

I received on Sunday, the 27th, the following telegram from the Governor:

Use your careful discretion about withdrawing to East St. Louis to-morrow. If rioters appear again, take as many of them prisoners as you can, disarm them and turn them over to the civil authorities, to be sent to jail.

Signed

JOHN M. HAMILTON.

Everything remained quiet at Collinsville during Sunday, and I was satisfied that as long as the militia were there no disturbance would occur; but knowing we could not stay there, I planned to let it be generally known that the militia were going home, procuring a special train, putting my men on board and leaving for some telegraph station near East St. Louis, where we could readily communicate with Collinsville, remaining there; and should any trouble occur as the men went to work Monday morning, to appear again on the ground and arrest the rioters. Accordingly I procured four box cars, and an engine, to move according to my orders, and left Collinsville Sunday night about 10 o'clock, taking all my men with me. We pulled down to Venice Switch, three miles from East St. Louis, and lay there all night. Major Culver, Captain Ridgely and myself slept upon the floor of the telegraph station, and were in constant communication with Collinsville. In spite of the fact that all of the miners at Collinsville thought the militia had withdrawn, no disturbance had occurred; and about 6 o'clock, placing Major Culver upon the engine, with orders to stop the engine before we reached the scene of any disturbance, to afford us time to form the men and surround the strikers, I ran back to Collinsville, where I found all the men at work and everything quiet, and thence proceeding up the road, past the Heintz mine, and those of Confidence and Troy, and finding the same condition of affairs at each place, I withdrew from Collinsville about noon on Monday, and arrived at East St. Louis about 1 o'clock. Here I found Brig.-Gen. Reece and Lieut.-Col. Mills, and from this on, consulted with them. I telegraphed Gen. Elliott that I was at East St. Louis with my command subject to his orders, and received orders from him to send companies to their respective stations, and report to him in person. While awaiting the departure of the trains at East St. Louis, I received the following telegram:

BELLEVILLE, ILL., 5-2-98

Cannot master mob at Reinecke's mine No. 1, on L. and N. R. R. There are about 200 men and 50 women that want to destroy pit. I just received telephone, by L. and N. R. R. to ask you for militia, and hope that you will send a company immediately, on special train, to Birkner Station, about 1 mile from pit, or to pit itself if you can do so.

(Signed)

FRED. ROPIEQUET, Sheriff.

I at once repeated this to Governor Hamilton, and asked instructions, and telegraphed Sheriff Ropiequet as follows:

Telegraph Governor J. M. Hamilton, at Springfield, and I will respond to his orders.

(Signed.)

J. H. BARKLEY,

Colonel Commanding 5th Infantry.

An employè of the Reinecke mine, from St. Louis, also waited on me, and declared the mine was surrounded by the mob, who had Reinecke prisoner, and threatened to burn the shaft, and leave workmen at the bottom to the mercy of the flames. An employè of the L. and N. R. R. also came to me, and agreed to get ready a special train at once.

I received the following from Governor Hamilton, in answer to my request for instructions:

If you think advisable, and can send part of your command at least, by fast train to aid sheriff of St. Clair county and capture rioters, you may do so; sheriff must take command and capture as many as possible, to be turned over to the civil authorities. Use proper discretion.

(Signed.)

JOHN M. HAMILTON, Governor.

Whereupon I at once telegraphed Fred. Ropiequet, sheriff St. Clair county, Belleville, Ill.:

Will you appear at once in person at Reinecke mine, and coöperate with troops in capturing rioters. If so, I will come with sufficient force.

(Signed.)

J. H. BARKLEY,

Colonel commanding Infantry.

To which in reply, I received the following:

Will be at Reinecke's mines to meet you, to arrest rioters. Will start there immediately.

(Signed)

FRED. ROPIEQUET, Sheriff.

I immediately procured a special train on the L. and N. R. R., and started for Reinecke's, but was detained after leaving the Re la House, and compelled to await the regular passenger train. Major Culver was placed on the engine, with instructions to halt about one-half or one-fourth mile before we reached Reinecke's mine, in order that the troops might be deployed in different directions, surround the men and effect their arrest. The engineer at first refused to allow Major Culver to ride upon the engine, but being compelled to do so, I think acted in bad faith. Major Culver states that he called upon the engineer repeatedly to stop before reaching the mine, which they had agreed to do, but he ran the train directly up into the midst of the rioters. The shaft known as the Reinecke mine, No. 1, is situated upon the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, about ten miles from East St. Louis, and three miles from Belleville. The railroad here runs upon an embankment, and upon a hill on the left, or north, side of the track stands the shaft; upon the right the embankment extends about twelve feet upon a level with the road bed, and then the ground recedes to a level space, much lower than the track, entirely unbroken for fifty or sixty yards to the south, where there is a small stream four or five feet in width, after which the ground rises in steep hills, covered with green underbrush and forest trees.

About one mile before we reached the shaft I saw Deputy Sheriff Ragland, of St. Clair county, who was awaiting us and stopped the train. He then told me in the presence of Captain Ridgely, that the strikers were at the shaft and in possession, that they numbered about 150 men and 20 to 30 women, the rest of the rioters having withdrawn. He ordered me in the name of the Sheriff of St. Clair county to arrest every riotous person at the shaft, as he had ordered the mob to disperse and none of those present had business there. While receiving these instructions, and contrary to my expectation and wishes, the train suddenly pulled out and we were obliged to run to catch it, Captain Ridgely, Deputy Ragland and myself fortunately getting on the back platform. The train rapidly passed on, and instead of stopping according to my instructions, and the repeated demands upon the engineer by Major Culver, before we reached the shaft, stopped just at the shaft, and we found ourselves confronted by about 150 strikers, standing just to the right and south of the track. The train had hardly stopped when the General Reece, getting off the front car, met Deputy Sheriff Anthony. General Reece, Col. Mills, Major Culver and Deputy Sheriff Anthony were on the left of the line we were forming, and Captain Ridgely, Deputy Ragland and myself upon the right. About this time, my men having scarcely disembarked from the still moving cars, and before the line could be formed, firing began, by the strikers and was returned by the left of my line. Probably twenty-five shots were fired in return at the strikers before my orders to cease firing could be heard. I quickly passed to the left of the line and demanded who had ordered the firing, when Deputy Anthony replied that he had commanded the troops to return the fire. We then found that one striker had been killed and one wounded in the hip. Twenty-six of the miners were then taken prisoners, and placing a guard over them I deployed two of my companies in order, if possible, to capture more of the men seen on the tops of the hills beyond the small stream before mentioned; but these strikers fled upon seeing the troops approaching, and owing to the character of the ground, as before described, pursuit was difficult and would have been useless, and the companies therefore returned, having picked up six or eight stragglers who were escaping down the railroad towards Belleville. The Deputy Sheriff, Anthony, then at my request, in the presence of General Reece, Colonel Mills, Major Culver, Captain Ridgely, Captain Wilson, Captain Fahnstock, Captain Crooker and myself, repeated the statement that he (Anthony), after calling on the mob to surrender in the name of the people, and being fired upon by the rioters, had returned their fire himself and ordered the men to fire upon them. I had this done in order to show clearly that the men had merely acted under the direction of the civil authorities. After this Deputy Anthony went up to the shaft and called on the women to disperse and go home. They refused to do so and he was obliged to take a club away from one of them who threatened him. He called on me for assistance; I went up to the shaft, where the women had possession; I spoke kindly to them asking them to disperse and go to their homes, which they finally did under protest, and taking their own time in withdrawing slowly, after which the proprietor, who had been a prisoner since 10 o'clock in the morning, was released, and the engine started and the men brought up. At the request of Deputy Anthony I detailed Company F, under command of Captain Fahnstock, to remain to guard the prisoners and assist him, and left with the rest of my command for East St. Louis, whence, in compliance with orders from General Elliott, I sent each company to its station. And at midnight, Monday, May 29, 1863, together with General Reece, Colonel Mills and Captain Ridgely, I arrived at Springfield.

Company F remained the next day at the mine, then escorted the prisoners to Belleville, and there being no signs of further open violence, returned home Tuesday night.

In closing my report I desire to express the highest satisfaction at the discipline that prevailed amongst the officers and men of my command. Owing to the small force at my command, and extent of territory we were obliged to cover, the officers and men were subjected to double duty, but the fatigue and discomfort consequent to that and the extremely inclement weather were borne with soldierly fortitude, and no one failed in his duty.

Respectfully submitting the foregoing report, I have the honor to be, General, most respectfully, your obedient servant,

J. H. BARKLEY,

Col. Commanding Fifth Infantry.

Extract from the Report of His Excellency, Governor John M. Hamilton, to the Thirty-third General Assembly:

* * * * *

This affair demonstrates the necessity of the maintenance of a reasonable force of well-organized militia in this State, as a reserve police power, to be used to aid the civil authorities in emergencies like this,—for without the aid of that power, mobs and rioters would have ruled in those counties, and law and civil government would have been powerless.

The following circular, issued from General Headquarters upon receipt and consideration of the reports herein, is published for the information of the public:

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF ILLINOIS,
ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
SPRINGFIELD, June 12, 1863.

The thanks of the Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the military forces of the State of Illinois are hereby tendered to the officers and men of Companies "B," "F" and "G," Fifth Regiment Infantry, Illinois National Guard, for their prompt and cheerful response, their faithful services and good discipline, when called into active service in assisting the civil officers of Madison and St. Clair counties, in Illinois, to disperse and control assembled mobs and lawless rioters in those counties in the latter part of May, 1888; also to J. H. Barkley, Colonel commanding the above mentioned companies of troops while in such service, for his prompt action and cool discretion and good judgment in the management of his command.

The entire conduct and operations of said military force having been officially reported to me, are hereby approved.

By order of the Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

I. H. ELLIOTT,
Adjutant-General.

GENERAL ORDERS AND CIRCULARS.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS,

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., October 6, 1883.

General Orders No. 2.

I.

Hereafter all discharges of enlisted men whose terms of service have expired, shall be granted by commanders of regiments and batteries.

II.

Applications for discharge for any other cause, must be forwarded through regular channels to General Headquarters for approval.

By order of the Commander in Chief,

I. H. ELLIOTT,

Adjutant-General.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF ILLINOIS,

SPRINGFIELD, May 13, 1884.

General Orders No. 3.

I.

HON. JOHN M. HAMILTON, Governor and Commander-in-Chief:

SIR—I have the honor to tender you my resignation as Adjutant General of this State, to take effect on May 15th, inst. I take this occasion to express my appreciation of the kindness and courtesy you have shown me during the time I have been associated with your administration.

I am, Governor, very respectfully yours,

I. H. ELLIOTT.

II.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, EXECUTIVE OFFICE,
SPRINGFIELD, May 13, 1884.

General I. H. ELLIOTT having this day tendered his resignation as Adjutant-General of the State of Illinois, to take effect on the 15th inst., the same is hereby accepted, with the sincere thanks of the Governor and Commander-in-Chief for the valuable services General Elliott has rendered to the Illinois National Guard and to the State, during the term he has held this responsible office.

III.

J. W. VANCE, Major and Inspector of the Second Brigade I. N. G., is hereby appointed Adjutant-General of the State of Illinois; his commission to date May 15, 1884, on which date he will assume the duties of that office, and from and after that time he will be recognized and obeyed by all officers and soldiers of the Illinois National Guard.

JOHN M. HAMILTON,
Governor and Commander-in-Chief.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF ILLINOIS.)
ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE.)
Springfield, May 21, 1884.)

General Orders No. 4.

DIRECTIONS FOR FOLDING, BRIEFING AND INDORSING OFFICIAL LETTERS.

I. Whenever more than three pages of the sheet used are required for the body of the communication, an additional half sheet, or more if necessary, will be neatly pasted to the first sheet so that the outer page may be left entirely blank.

II. Letter paper will be folded in three, foolscap in four, equal folds, parallel with the writing. The inner edge of the sheet is the top when folded. The left-hand fold of the outer page is the first fold.

III. The first fold is used exclusively for a brief analysis of the contents of the original communication, the office marks, and noting of inclosures.

IV. Indorsements commence at top of the second fold and follow each other in regular order of date on the successive folds, leaving room after each for office marks.

V. In no case will a loose wrapper be placed around an official paper, except as a mere covering. But additional space for indorsements will be provided by neatly pasting slips of paper on the under side of the last fold—right-hand edge of the original paper—each slip to correspond in length and width (when pasted on) with the length and width of the original folds, and to turn back upon the last fold like the leaves of a book. By this arrangement the first fold, on which the office marks and brief are made, is always outside.

VI. All inclosures are numbered and bear the proper office marks. Inclosures of the original communication are noted on the first fold just below the brief. If others are added when an indorsement is made, the number of them is noted at the foot of their appropriate indorsement, and also on the first fold of the original communication, and to the latter notation is added the number of the indorsement to which they belong, thus: One Inclosure—Fifth Indorsement. Inclosures to indorsements are numbered in the same series as those to the original paper, and the number of the indorsement to which they belong is added below.

If few in number and not bulky, inclosures may be kept inside the original paper. If otherwise, they will be folded together in a wrapper marked "INCLOSURES," as an accompanying package.

VII. Officers through whose hands official papers pass will make the inclosures and slips attached secure, when they are not so.

VIII. The model sent herewith for reference is a reprint of model furnished by the War Department. The principle is the same when applied to this service, and it is recommended that officers study or read carefully, noting the difference between communications forwarded from inferior to superior and the converse. The observance of this system is to be enforced by intermediate commanders on the officers of their command.

IX. Officers will return to this office receipt for order and model, and the latter will be accounted for as public property.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

JOSEPH W. VANCE,

Adjutant-General.

General Orders No. 5.

GENERAL HEADQ'RS, STATE OF ILLINOIS,
ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
SPRINGFIELD, June 20, 1884.

I. The Commander-in-Chief desires to ascertain the exact amount of State property in the hands of the troops, and in the possession of officers of the staff and line not in command of troops, as well as of those in command.

II. In order to obtain this information, blank "Semi-Annual Statements" will be furnished to each officer in the Illinois National Guard, who will at once make direct return to these Headquarters of all State property in their possession. In addition to property enumerated on blank, any unenumerated property that may have come into their possession will be taken up on account.

III. Officers are reminded that "Army Regulations" and "Model Letter" are property and must be accounted for as such. Commanding officers should endeavor to collect the "Army Regulations" that are in possession of resigned officers who did not turn over the same to their successors.

IV. It has come to the knowledge of these Headquarters that tents, tent flies, small arms, overcoats and other property have in some instances been issued to officers without requiring proper receipts, or have been taken possession of at encampments, or by reason of having been abandoned; all such property will be taken up and accounted for.

V. Officers having knowledge of old arms (muzzle loaders) that have been replaced by B. L. rifles and not returned to State arsenal, or of arms, accoutrements, clothing, etc., of disbanded organizations that have not been returned to arsenal, will report the same to these Headquarters.

VI. Commandants of batteries, troops and companies will make minute inspection of all property, and a company report with a detailed inventory of damaged property. Arms should not be reported as complete without bayonets and all parts in perfect condition; deficiencies will be enumerated on inventory of damaged property. The calibre must in all instances be stated. In reporting arms of calibre 45, the number with "safety-notch" must be stated in reference note or column of remarks; also designate the number of each McKeever and old pattern cartridge boxes.

VII. Hereafter, officers not responsible for State property will so state in tendering their resignation. If responsible for State property they will accompany the tender of resignation with a temporary receipt covering the same, from the next officer in command, or the proper officer to receive the property, to become binding or take effect upon acceptance of the resignation.

VIII. It is preferable, in tendering resignation, to name the date it is to take effect, giving (except in urgent cases) time for the transmittal and return of order of acceptance.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

J. W. VANCE,

Adjutant-General.

THEO. EWERT,

Captain First Cavalry I. N. G., A. A. A. General.

HEADQUARTERS ILLINOIS NATIONAL GUARD,
 ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
 SPRINGFIELD, ILL., September 4, 1884.

General Orders No. 10.

I.

The following modifications of the tactics as promulgated in General Orders No. 54 and 94, C. S., Headquarters of the Army, are hereby published for the information and guidance of the Illinois National Guard:

1. The length of the direct step in common and quick time will be thirty inches, measured from heel to heel; the cadence will be at the rate of ninety steps per minute for common time, and one hundred and twenty steps per minute for quick time. A natural swinging motion of the arms will be permitted when marching.
2. The length of the short step and back step in common and in quick time will be fifteen inches.
3. The length of the double step will be thirty-five inches, and the cadence will be at the rate of one hundred and eighty steps per minute.
4. When the manual of arms is executed while marching, each motion of the manual will correspond with the cadence of the step.
5. The length of the balance step will be fifteen inches.
6. The length of the step of the pivot-man, on a moveable pivot, will be ten inches; if in close column it will be fifteen inches.

II.

Each officer in the Illinois National Guard, acting as instructor, will use his utmost endeavor to rapidly and practically substitute the above for the old (now obsolete) method of instruction.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

J. W. VANCE,
Adjutant-General.

OFFICIAL:

THEO. EWERT,
Captain First Cavalry I. N. G., A. A. A. General.

HEADQUARTERS ILLINOIS NATIONAL GUARD,
 ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
 SPRINGFIELD, ILL., September 10, 1884.

General Orders No. 11.

The Commander-in-Chief can see no good reason why the Illinois National Guard, with its splendid material in officers and men, should not occupy the very front rank in the National Guard Phalanx, and he is determined to do all in his power to so increase its efficiency and usefulness as to inspire the public with confidence and pride in its citizen soldiers, trusting thereby to secure such recognition from the next General Assembly of its representatives as may at least provide it with a good service uniform and pay the cost of its maintenance. The recent inspections and encampments of the Illinois National Guard have clearly demonstrated the superior excellence of regiments and companies that have been subjected to a constant, thorough and systematic course of instruction, over other commands whose method of instruction has been of the haphazard order. While all instruction should be systematic and thorough, the best instructors cover the widest range of maneuvers, thus imparting not only the greatest variety of professional information, but rendering their drills interesting and avoiding weariness in the ranks.

Experience has not shown to the officers of the U. S. Army or National Guard of the various States that the successive steps in the course of instruction as prescribed in "Upton's Tactics" can be materially improved upon; hence it is recommended that the routine as prescribed therein be closely adhered to.

The National Guard of this State being largely composed of very young men, with but imperfectly developed frames and muscles, it is therefore ordered that commandants of companies, troops and batteries afford every possible facility and encourage their men in a love for gymnastic exercises, athletic sports and manly prowess.

The "setting up" exercises and bayonet drill will be taught with this end in view.

Commencing with September 15, 1884, each company, troop and battery in the Illinois National Guard will parade for drill at least once each week, at an hour to be designated by regimental commanders, or commanding officers thereof, selecting such time as will secure the largest uniform attendance.

A report of one drill each week will, in infantry and cavalry companies, be forwarded on the same date thereof to their respective regimental headquarters, showing the number present, number absent, aggregate strength of command, and give the pages of the tactics from which the company or troop was instructed. Battery commanders will forward to the Assistant Adjutants General of their respective brigades, giving the same information in substance as called for from infantry and cavalry companies.

The Chicago Light Infantry will send reports direct to this office.

On the present supply of blanks, the note directing one copy to be sent to the Brigade Inspector, and the entering of names on the back of the report, is hereby revoked. The form can be ruled in company books and date of drill entered in column of remarks, in place of filing one copy with company papers, where this is deemed preferable.

Regimental Adjutants will consolidate these drill reports by companies, and transmit them, through regular channel, to these headquarters, with such remarks and recommendations as commanding officers may deem proper.

The school of the soldier should be taught to recruits in squads of not more than four men under command of non-commissioned officers; all under the immediate supervision of the Captain or one of his subalterns. The position of the soldier should be so thoroughly understood by every officer and enlisted man that they might be able to repeat orally, giving the reasons why.

Recruits will be advanced from "Position" to the "Setting up," then the facings, parade rest, balance step, direct step, short step, mark time, change step, side step, back step, double step, salutes, alignments, marching in line, by the flank, to the rear, backward, oblique, change direction in column, to pass from common to quick and double time and the reverse, the principles of the wheel on both fixed and movable pivot, the turn, first in single, afterwards in double rank, each movement being thoroughly comprehended before advancement.

The squads should be graded, that the intelligent recruit may not be retarded and wearied by those that are dull and inattentive.

Having first learned to march without arms, the rifle will be placed in the hands of the recruit, and by similar method will be taught the manual of arms, the loading and firings, direct, oblique, by file, by rank, kneeling, first in single, then in double rank, both with and without numbers, also the fire lying down. The value of a thorough knowledge of the "School of the Soldier," the very foundation on which a soldier is built, can not be overestimated.

The officers of companies, troops and batteries should be able to give the names of the different parts of the rifle, carbine, field-piece or gatling gun, readily explaining their uses, as well as to explain the object of the various maneuvers in which their commands are exercised.

Thorough preparation should be made before attempting to instruct, as the least display of ignorance on the part of an officer lessens the respect for his authority by those under his command. Instruction in the school of the company should be pursued in a methodical way, not undertaking new movements until those attempted are thoroughly understood and well executed.

The formation of the company and the position of officers and non-commissioned officers should be strictly tactical; in fact, no officer should receive the company from the First Sergeant until all the details are complied with, but require them to dismiss and reform until a correct formation is made.

Guides and file-closers should have paragraph 159 of the tactics at their "tongue's end," and be taught that a "company in line" is regarded as a "sub-division in column" under this paragraph.

The skirmish drill, the most important in modern warfare, is perhaps the least understood and practiced by the troops of this State. Its principles should be thoroughly inculcated in the Illinois National Guard, and when suitable grounds can be procured practiced in the field.

The ceremonies of dress parade, review, inspection, guard mounting, and the duties of sentinels should be frequently practiced in the armory, as a preparatory school for the short tours of camp duty.

This will familiarize subalterns with the field duties of Adjutants at parades and guard mounts, and the duties of Officer of the Guard and Officer of the Day, and non-commissioned officers with duties of Sergeants and Corporals of the Guard, and in reporting details. In the armory, reviews may be had in column of platoons. At guard mount, after platoons are wheeled into line, preparatory to breaking into column of fours, the second platoon may be halted and represent the "old guard."

Subalterns should be offered frequent opportunities to command, that they may feel at ease and be familiar with their duties when occasion requires.

Commanding officers of city regiments will institute schools of instruction for officers in battalion drill and in customs of the service, and will maneuver their commands in battalions of such size as the armory spaces will permit. Regiments made up from detached companies will be deprived of the practical benefit of schools of instruction for officers, but will, in lieu thereof, divide the school of the battalion into lessons or courses, giving the numbers of the paragraphs for one lesson, or for one month, and require company officers to study or to assemble and discuss the same, under the Captain as instructor.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

J. W. VANCE,
Adjutant General.

General Orders No. 13.

1. The following Boards of Officers, for the 1st and 2d Brigades. I. N. G., respectively, are hereby ordered to convene (without expense to the State) at Chicago, Ill., at 10 o'clock, A. M., November 13, 1884, or as soon thereafter as practicable, for the purpose of effecting their permanent organizations, and prepare themselves to examine such officers, after January 1, 1885, as may be ordered to appear before them, by the Commander-in-Chief, under the provision of Par. 3, Article 2, Military Code and Regulations.

DETAIL FOR THE BOARD.—(1st Brigade.)

Colonel E. B. Knox, 1st Infantry.
Colonel H. A. Wheeler, 2d Infantry.
Lieut.-Col. F. Q. Ball, Judge Advocate, 1st Brigade.
Major Elliott Durand, Asst. Insp. Gen'l, 1st Brigade.
Capt. A. E. Bourne, Company "G," 3d Infantry.

Capt. K. S. Conklin, Company "I," 7th Infantry.
Capt. C. V. Jaquith, Company "H," 8th Infantry, Recorder.

The basis upon which examinations are to be conducted will be embodied in letters of instruction, and mailed to the presidents of the respective boards from this office.

2. Having effected permanent organizations, as contemplated in Par. 1 of this order, the boards will adjourn subject to the call of their respective presidents.

3. The attention of all officers of the Illinois National Guard is directed to Par. 3, Article 2, Military Code and Regulations of the State, under the provision of which the above named boards are ordered, and it is hoped (as it is firmly believed) that every officer, ordered to appear for examination, will pass satisfactory to the requirements of the law and the service, and with credit and honor to himself.

HEADQUARTERS ILLINOIS NATIONAL GUARD,
 ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
 SPRINGFIELD, ILL., Sept. 30, 1884.

Circular.

I.

General orders issued from this office are sent to Regimental Headquarters in sufficient numbers, and for the purpose of distribution—one to each commissioned officer.

Hereafter, upon receipt of orders, or circulars, for distribution, regimental commanders will direct their adjutants to mail copies to companies, not stationed with headquarters, without unnecessary delay, that there may be no excuse of "Orders have not been received," as in some instances heretofore.

II.

The Inspector-General will direct Assistant Inspectors-General to examine (at each regular inspection) company and regimental files of orders, and embrace in their report whether these are complete, and received within a reasonable length of time after date of issue.

III.

There appears to be an utter lack of appreciation of promptness among the officers of the Illinois National Guard. Reports and returns are allowed to remain unrendered for months after the date upon which they fall due. This not only retards the work of Regimental, Brigade and General Headquarters, but is unmilitary in the highest degree, and must be discontinued.

Reports and returns should be and must be rendered promptly when due, and regimental commanders are especially directed to enforce this order. Any officer who obstructs the transaction of official business by his carelessness, lack of interest, or incapacity, should resign, as his connection with the military establishment of the State is of no benefit, but rather an injury.

Each and every officer should feel a pride in being prompt to forward papers on the very day on which they are due, as it is by these signs that good, efficient and zealous military officers are recognized.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief,

J. W. VANCE,

Adjutant-General.

Circular.

HEADQUARTERS ILLINOIS NATIONAL GUARD,
ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
SPRINGFIELD, ILL., Oct. 20, 1834.

The following letter from the Adjutant-General, I. N. G., to the presidents of the boards of examination convened by General Orders No. 13, C. S., Adjutant-General's Office, is hereby published for the information of all concerned:

HEADQUARTERS ILLINOIS NATIONAL GUARD,
ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
SPRINGFIELD, ILL., Oct. 20, 1833.

SIR—Under the present system of law in this State the officers of the National Guard are elected by the commands in which they are to serve, though in many cases this system may work injuriously on another portion of the military force, and may not subserve the best interests of the entire State military service. Whenever a member of any company possesses social qualities to render himself a favorite to his comrades, it becomes merely a question of time when he will be elected Captain of that company, irrespective of how unfit he may be to creditably fill the position, or how much extra labor he may impose on his Adjutant, Colonel, and other superior officers, through his inability to properly perform duties that the office demands.

There are several requisites necessary to constitute a good soldier, —there are a great many more necessary to constitute a good officer.

In order to counteract the possibility of a great number of persons securing commissions in the State military service, (by the system of election) that are unworthy either through lack of education or gentlemanly qualifications, the Military Code contains paragraph III, Article 2, under the provision of which a board, composed of officers of the National Guard, can pass their judgment on the qualifications and general worthiness of their brother officers, and can recommend, for the action of the Commander-in-Chief, their dismissal or retention. In order, then, that all examinations may be conducted on a just and equitable plan, the following is submitted as a basis upon which the examinations before your Board are to be conducted.

Every officer appearing for examination should be, physically, free from deformity; he should be gentlemanly in appearance, speech, and behavior; possess the ability to read and write the English language with facility and correctness; should possess a general knowledge of the tactics,—at least of that particular branch of the service of which he is a member—be competent to take apart and put together the weapon with which his command is armed; should thoroughly understand the duties and instructions of sentinels; the method and manner of mounting guard; and the routine of all camp duties and ceremonies.

Captains should be conversant with all orders of the current series, and such orders of former series as still govern; be able to name all returns and reports required by Regimental, Brigade and General Headquarters, from a company, state when these should be sent, and thoroughly understand how to make them out correctly.

Field officers should not only know all the foregoing, but, in addition, be thorough in their tactical knowledge of battalion drill and evolutions of the regiment.

All officers should possess a ready knowledge on the care of public property, arms and equipments, and the method of maintaining these in a perfect condition.

In convening the Board at any time, every effort should be made to secure the presence of as many of the members as possible, though three (3) will constitute a quorum legitimate for the transaction of business.

Your Board is authorized to sit without regard to hours.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
[Signed] J. W. VANCE, Adjutant-General.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief,
J. W. VANCE,
Adjutant-General.

HEADQUARTERS ILLINOIS NATIONAL GUARD,
ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
SPRINGFIELD, ILL., Dec. 1, 1884.

Circular.

The following directions will be observed, in the Illinois National Guard, in making out and furnishing to enlisted men the new form of discharge blank issued from this office:

Whenever a soldier of the Illinois National Guard has served his term of enlistment to within ten days of its expiration, the troop or company commander will make a correct transcript on the discharge blank from the troop or company record books, will sign (with rank, company and regiment) the character portion of the discharge paper, and will then forward the same to the headquarters of the regiment for the final action of the regimental commander.

Upon receipt of this discharge paper, the regimental commander will satisfy himself, by scrutiny and examination, that no errors exist, that the orders relating to the making out of discharges have been observed and obeyed, and will, if found correct, sign the discharge proper and return it to the troop or company commander, who will hand the same, on the day on which the term of service expires, to the man entitled to receive it.

Whenever the discharge of an enlisted man is ordered by the Commander-in-Chief, for causes other than expiration of term of service, the same routine will be observed, and the entry immediately after the words "in consequence of" on the blank, will quote the source, number, and date of the order that directs the discharge to be made.

In all cases of dishonorable discharge, the character portion of the discharge paper must be cut off, before the discharge proper is signed by the regimental commander, and every discharge, thus mutilated, will be known and considered as dishonorable.

The greatest care should be exercised by officers making out the final papers of enlisted men, 1st, that the transcript of the man's services from the record book is complete, and correct in each particular; 2d, that the penmanship is, at least, legible; 3d, that the discharge paper is turned over to the man in a clean and unsouled condition; and, 4th, that the character given on the discharge conforms strictly and impartially to the man's record as a soldier during his term of service.

Characters are graded (in conformity to the custom established in the U. S. regular service) as follows: "Fair," "Good," "Very Good," "Excellent," with such additional remarks as may, in the opinion of the troop or company commander, be pertinent to the case. Every enlisted man, whose connection with the Illinois National Guard is severed from any cause whatsoever, (except desertion,) is entitled to and should receive a discharge paper, and the fact that such paper has been furnished will be entered opposite the name of each man reported as "discharged" on the annual muster rolls, thus: "Discharge paper given," and the same entry will be made on the troop or company record books.
